Displaying better teamwork and an ability to pass the New London Rangers took a league game from the J. B. Martin soccer team at the Martin field Sunday afternoon 3 to 1. The Rangers kept the locals on the defensive practically during the entire game and hopelessly outclassed them in the first half. Nice shots by L. Wilson, inside right, and C. Bauhof, center forward, gave the Rangers their points in the first half. Only once did the Velvetmen have a good chance to score in the first half and that was on a penalty kick but it went wide of the goal.

CHURCHES BEGIN UNION SERVICES FOR ANNIVERSARY OF PENTECOST

Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church, gave an instructive sermon on the subject, The Pentecostal Truth, at the first of a series of union services in observance of the 1,900th anniversary of Pentecost held Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, a large representation of members of the Protestant churches uniting being present. Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the church, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, participated in the service.

I believe we have been waiting too long for a time when we should warm our hearts with protracted meetings, said Rev. Mr. Shipherd, who took his text from the last few words in chapter 15 of the Gospel of Saint Paul. This idea of the celebration of the 1,900 years in the establishment of some form or other of Christian church has its values, the account of Luke in Acts being disappointing, but that of John very rewarding. Paul loved to say that which is natural is first and that which is spiritual comes later.

The approach of the spirit of God, the spirit of Truth, is through they that are natural, said the speaker. I live in the midst of grand old trees, the pines, the maples, the elms. The peculiarity of the trees are that they take their moisture through the roots in the ground and breathe through the leaves that grow out of the branches. It is anchored. It is different from people in that it knows what to eat and what not to eat, so the selection exercised by the trees is much better than yours. Unlike us in another responsiblity it is anchored. We often wish we could be anchored. We never are. So when we think of the influence of the spirit of God, the spirit of truth, we have to stop. We are not like the trees. We have no foundation. Life is fluid, we are aflow, always flowing. Our life is full. We play with each other, toy with each other, we play with ourselves, so unsteady and fluid is our existence. The speaker likened the flow of life to a river, from the beginning to the end.

Three things were mentioned by the speaker that the Holy Spirit teaches us to do, the first of which is truthfulness. It is a courtesy to people relatively uncommon. I don't know of anything I'd rather do than speak the truth. Religion is common sense, stalwart, sturdy, firm. This is a kind of helpfulness that is helpful, the determination to be truthful.

The second thing that the Holy Spirit helps us to do is open heartedness. The world is full of people that are afraid of people. You can feel them as they come near you, they make something rise in you. There is a profound humility that brings us yearningly to the Holy Spirit. The help, the helper, brings us courage, grace and affection that makes the truthfulness. It takes a good deal of effort to keep our hearts open and be affectionate towards other people. I'd rather be openhearted than to be shut in by myself. I want to tell you that the world as I know it is thoroughly scattered with people who come forth with their hearts just as open as they dare to open them.

The last, the greatest matter, is that the Holy Spirit, helper of God, truth of God, teaches us to trust God. Trusting God is not a moving mood. It is the drive into the issues of everyday lives. To do the gracious things is a superb testimony of man. When a man is maltreated and remains a gentleman he can face God. We must learn the compassion of Jesus.

The second of the series of union meetings is to be held this (Monday) evening at the First Congregational church, Norwich, when the speaker will be Rev. Harry P. Brothwell of the Third Baptist church.

SECOND FIRE IN TWO DAYS IN WILLIMANTIC SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 5.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, caused damage estimated at $2,000 at the Oaks grammar school on Fairview street this evening. A bell alarm was sounded from Box 52 at 7:07 and recall was at 8:32. The blaze started in the kindergarten room and worked up into a closet room on the second floor, where it was finally checked by the firemen, who used three lines of hose to combat the blaze. Fire was confined to the interior of the building, which is of brick.

After studying the situation tonight, Acting Fire Chief Michael J. English said that in his opinion fire had been set by an incendiarist. This points to suspicious circumstances of a fire in the basement of the school, which caused damage estimated at $1,000 Saturday noon. The cause of Saturday's fire had been put down as undetermined and it is understood that both are to be investigated. The building is owned by the town and the school is operated under supervision of the state in conjunction with the normal school.

JURY FINDS WASHINGTON IS NOT HALF AS BAD AS PAINTED

Report Made to the Supreme Court After Session of Three Months—Had Agents Investigate 40 Places That Had Been Described as Booze Resorts—Conditions No Worse, Probably Better, Than in Other Sections of the U. S.—Finds Large Numbers of Cases of Crime Due Directly or Indirectly to Violations of the Prohibition Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The national capital, pictured recently in the senate as a vice-ridden liquor oasis, was reported today by a federal grand jury to be not half as bad as it has been painted.

The report was made to the supreme court of the District of Columbia at the conclusion of a tempestuous three months session in which the jury heard charges of police failure to enforce the prohibition laws and the alleged bungling of the investigations of two mysterious deaths.

The jury, which directed police and federal prohibition agents to make a special investigation of 40 places that had been described as notorious booze selling resorts, said: "while there are numerous violations of the prohibition law in the District of Columbia, conditions are certainly no worse and are probably better than those existing in other sections of the United States.

"It is the opinion of the grand jury that Washington is not the vice-ridden, lawless community that it has been pictured.

"We feel, however, that a large number of the cases of crime presented before this body are directly or indirectly attributable to violations of the national prohibition act, due no doubt to the lack of complete cooperation on the part of the public in general in the enforcement of the prohibition laws."

It was this grand jury that invited Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, to testify concerning what he had called in the senate "the Wall street booze party" given at the Willard hotel here three years ago and attended by him and other senators.

Another witness who appeared was E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, also a guest at the dinner. The jury took no action in the matter, reporting that the extraordinary lapse of time since the party prevented it from obtaining material evidence.

Early in its investigation the jury cited for contempt of court three local newspaper reporters who refused to divulge the names of persons from whom they said they had bought liquor, while obtaining information for stories dealing with the situation in Washington.

The grand jury next caused a stir on Capitol Hill when it issued subpoenas for Senators Blease of South Carolina and Heflin, of Alabama, who had refused to present information concerning the death of Detective Sergeant Arthur Scrivener which they had said was in their possession. Blease, standing on his rights of congressional immunity, refused to respond to the summons. The matter was not pressed and neither he nor Heflin testified.

CLAIMS CREDIT FOR REPORTING "SICK DOG"

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6— (AP)— Mrs. Gladys Cozart, 43, came forward today and made affidavit that she is the woman who called at the clinic of the Humane Society of Missouri December 24 and told Robert F. Sellar, executive secretary that there was a "sick dog in the alley behind the Mullanphy hospital."

Dr. Robert Emmett Kane, a chief surgeon at the hospital and former president of the St. Louis Medical society, reiterated his doubts, however, that the dog's mouth had been sewed as Sellar reported. Last Friday, after Dr. Kane had asserted it was a "mythical dog" Sellar had described, the Humane society offered a $500 reward to Sellar's unidentified informant if she would come forward.

The case had attracted nation-wide attention and rewards totalling more than $3,000 had been posted for capture of the dog's alleged mutilator

Mrs. Cozart explained her tardiness in appearing by the statement that she left the city a day or two after Christmas.

PRINCESS MARIE JOSE MEETS ALL HIGH OFFICIALS OF ITALY

ROME, Jan. 6—(AP)—Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, standing beside her future husband, Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, this evening made the acquaintance of all the high officials of the kingdom over which she will one day reign.

Surrounded by the members of her own and her fiance's families, the royal young lady from the north was the center of attraction at a formal reception in the Quirinal palace, residence of the sovereigns of Italy. For brilliance of decoration and wealth of gowns and uniforms the reception surpassed any such function that Rome has seen for a quarter of a century.

The select company invited to be presented to the princess, was restricted to the visiting kings and queens and princes and princesses, the principal officials of the Italian state, and the Belgian officials accompanying the bridal party. The members of the diplomatic corps, including Ambassador and Mrs. John W. Garrett, of the United States, were the only others invited.

ACCUSED CUSTOMS GUARD INFORMALLY QUESTIONED

BOSTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Edward F. Foley, 64-year-old customs guard under suspension pending official presentation of charges of intoxication and misconduct, while guarding the captured rum runner Black Duck, in Pawtuxet cove, R. I., visited the office of Moses E. Mann, deputy surveyor of the port, here today. He was subjected to a brief, informal questioning.

Foley was suspended yesterday after the collector had investigated reports that while in an intoxicated condition he had brandished a revolver before persons who attempted to quiet him and telephoned to the Boston customs office for reinforcements on the grounds that he was being attacked. The Black Duck is being held under guard pending the investigation of the killing of three rum runners aboard her by coast guards a week ago.

Collector Lufkin said that Foley had been in the service for five years, that he was regarded as being a thoroughly reliable customs officer and had had until yesterday an absolutely clean record.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP THE WAR DEPARTMENT SUPPLY BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The house will begin consideration tomorrow of the $435,231,000 supply bill of the war department for 1931, without waiting for information on the economic survey of that branch instituted by President Hoover last June.

Although the measure, as reported by the house appropriations committee, calls for an increased outlay of $442,000 over the current year, it carries a provision which would restrict the use of funds appropriated should economies be enforced as a result of the survey.

Staying within the budget estimates by $2,767,000, the bill designated $327,-038,000 for military activities and $117,173,000 for non-military purposes. The former represents an increase of $6,019,000 and the latter a decrease of $5,577,000, as compared with 1930.

DELVING INTO RECORD OF MAGISTRATE VITALE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Born of an interest aroused by the famous hold-up dinner in a Bronx Italian restaurant, the police investigation into the professional and personal activities of Magistrate Albert H. Vitale continued today, with several developments.

Declaring his investigation into Vitale's record on the bench was at the request of the New York City Bar association, Police Commissioner Whalen made public today police and court records and affidavits indicating that the magistrate had set free on one occasion a self-confessed thief without calling to the stand the policeman to whom the confession had been made.

At the same time the New York Evening Post stated it had given to Commissioner Whalen information that the magistrate had frequented an uptown night club also frequented by Jack ("Legs") Diamond, wanted now in connection with a double murder in the Hotsy Totsy club July 13.

TWO SLAYINGS IN FIGHT OF RUM RUNNERS AND HI-JACKERS

MCALLEN, Texas, Jan. 6.—(AP) —The slaying of two youths and perhaps a third in what authorities believe was a fight between Mexican border rum runners and hi-jackers was disclosed here today.

Bodies of Juan Gonzales and Salvador Bruno, who had been shot and beaten to death were recovered from the Rio Grande and search was continued for Cipriana Ybarro, also believed to have been slain.

Officials said investigation indicated the killings were in reprisal for the hi-jacking of a cargo of liquor smuggled across the border.

Two murder charges were filed against Manuel Zamora and a second suspect believed to have fled into Mexico.

Zamora had boasted, said Assistant District Attorney Rogers Kelley, who filed the charges, that he "would get even with them for hi-jacking our liquor." The liquor caravan had been held up near the Rio Rico international bridge.

He expressed belief that the bodies had been dumped into the river several days ago was strengthened by the report of immigration officers at the bridge that they heard firing and groans and calls for help several nights ago and investigated without result.

SOME PROBLEMS FACING REPARATIONS CONFERENCE

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan. 6—(AP)—Delegates to the second session of the reparations conference are facing several problems which have upset the time schedule of the conference and which have necessitated the calling in of further experts.

Announcement was made today that efforts to bring about an agreement between Austria and her reparations creditors have failed although further efforts at negotiation are in progress. The general reaction to this development was a disposition on the part of the big powers to disregard the reparations interests of the smaller creditors and to go ahead with adoption of the Young plan as soon as possible.

Along with that announcement came news that Foreign Minister Briand will leave The Hague on Friday in order to get to Geneva comfortably for the council meeting of the league of nations January 13. The fact that Premier Tardieu has taken things in hand was believed in some quarters to account for the foreign minister's decision.

Governor Caulfield's display includes a pair of sport shoes trimmed in white and black to be worn with flannel trousers and dark coat, white and tan trimmed sport shoes for day wear with a brown ensemble, several pairs of street shoes in both black and tan, wing tip oxfords for afternoon wear and patent leather oxfords for formal evening occasions.

NEW PLAN TO PREVENT SMUGGLING FROM CANADA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Plans for tightening up the Canadian border to prevent liquor smuggling have been worked out at the treasury department and tentatively provide for an increase of approximately 500 in the number of ports of entry and consolidation and increase of the border guards.

Under the plan, the number of ports of entry would be raised from 100 to approximately 600 and entrance to or exit from the country forbidden except at the designated points. The plan has been proposed to Canada.

If finally approved it is expected to reduse to a minimum the smuggling of liquor into the United States and of merchandise from this country into Canada.

At present any person may enter the United States from Canada at any point, the only legal restriction being that if the crossing is made in a vehicle or merchandise is brought in, a report must be made to the nearest immigration station.

Senate Has Resumed Work On Tariff Bil[illegible]

Adopted 13 Amendments [illegible] viding Increases in [illegible] Wool Schedule.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Fresh from a two weeks' rest, the senate returned to consideration of the long-pending tariff bill today and, in a little more than three hours, adopted 31 amendments to the wool schedule providing increases all along the line on manufactured wool, including yarns, fabrics, blankets, clothing and rugs.

The action, marked by another split in democratic and western republican ranks which made possible the increases, all but completed work on the wool schedule and paved the way for early grappling with the most controverted rates in the bill—sugar. These might be reached tomorrow, when the tariff will have been before three sessions of congress almost continuously for exactly one year.

Only one roll call was taken during the day. This provided a coincidence in that Senator Grundy, new republican senator from Pennsylvania, was called upon to cast his first vote not only on a section of the bill in whose interest he had carried on activity in Washington before he entered the senate but on the very item which he manufactures—yarn. Grundy asked to be excused from voting because of this personal interest and listened attentively to the remainder of the debate.

Grundy's pre-senate activities were inquired into at length by the senate lobby committee. The only reference that approached this phase was made by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi. He called the wool schedule a "stink in the nostrils of the American people" and added:

"Yes, it began before my friend, the junior senator from Pennsylvania got here. He didn't have a hand in that unless it was a hand from the outside—but it is done."

The roll call on the yarn amendment was 36 to 29 in favor of increasing both the compensatory and protective duties on fine yarns valued at between $1 and $1.50 a pound and yarns worth more than $1.50.

Eight republicans, mostly from the west, joined 21 democrats against the increases, while two independents and four democrats combined with 29 republican regulars for the raises.

Most of the increases were compensatory to bring the processed wool rates in line with the increase voted in the special session on raw wool.

HEFLIN CALLED TO ORDER BY SENATOR BINGHAM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Tariff and a mass of other business confronted congress as it resumed its long session today and the holiday prohibition quarrel was submerged for the present at least.

It did not take the senate long to begin exchanging sharp words after the returning members had warmly exchanged greetings.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, was taken to task when he undertook to question the motives of Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, in objecting to consideration of a bill of the Alabama senator. After Senator Heflin said Phipps was seeking to punish him, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, demanded that the senate rules forbidding a member to challenge the motives of another be enforced. They were.

FRIENDS TO DRAFT PERSHING FOR THE SENATE

LINCOLN, Nebr., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Reported disinclination of General John J. Pershing to become a candidate for United States senator will not prevent his friends in Nebraska from drafting him for the place, was the declaration here today of Mark W. Woods, a prominent republican worker of Nebraska and an almost lifelong personal friend of General Pershing, who first suggested him for a senate seat last Saturday.

"General Pershing drafted us when he needed an army, now we will draft him when we need a senator," Woods said in explaining that the refusal of General Pershing to be a candidate would not change plans of friends here to have him run against Senator George W. Norris of McCook.

A. F[illegible]L. To Endeavor [illegible]onize The South

[illegible]as Decided to Establish Southern Headquarters at Birmingham, Ala.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 6—(AP)—The selection of Birmingham, Ala., as the southern headquarters of the American Federation of Labor in its proposed campaign to unionize the south was announced late today by President William Green at the southern labor conference here.

The announcement climaxed the day's sessions which had included a keynote address by President Green in which he declared labor was coming south with an outstretched "hand of friendship."

He also announced the personnel of the committee which is to have charge of the proposed organizing campaign. The members of the committee are: Paul Smith, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America; W. C. Birthright, vice president of the Barbers' International union, and Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America.

This committee, Green said, will begin work at once in making plans for "carrying the gospel of unionism" south of the Mason and Dixon line. It is to arrange an itinerary for Green to visit "stragetic" cities in the south for the purpose of addressing mass meetings, and to start actual organization work.

During the day, presidents of seven of the southern Federations of Labor made addresses, outlining the necessity for immediate organization.

Addresses also were made by a number of national officials who told of plans for organizing in the various groups affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, pointed to the former fights in the organization of textile unions and declared "we expect to have a fight here."

Green's address was featured by the declaration that "we believe that if we are permitted to function in the south, we could develop cooperation and understanding between employers and employes. We come with a hand of friendship."

Green also assailed communistic labor organizations, declaring that there must be a "never-ceasing, never-ending conflict between the American Federation of Labor and these organizations."

PROF. FISHER SEES DANGER IN DEFLATION OF GOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Professor Irving Fisher of Yale university, testifying today before the legislative committee considering the revision of the public service commission law, said the gradual deflation of gold since the World war is seriously menacing the future business prosperity of the United States.

Unless something is done by business interests to counteract the impending gold shortage, he said, the country faces conditions verging on a panic within three years.

Professor Fisher suggested that to prevent such a crisis, the gold producing properties throughout the world be controlled internationally by the league of nations or a similar international body.

Professor James C. Bondright, of Columbia university, member of the legislative committee, said Professor Fisher's testimony may have some bearing on the recommendations the legislative committee will make to the legislature relative to establishing basic rates for public utilities.

FUEL FOR AUTO, COLUMBUS TO NEW YORK, COST $1.30

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.— (AP)—Clessie L. Cummons, of Columbus, Ind., arrived in New York today in a passenger automobile powered by a crude-oil-burning Diesel motor built for use in small water craft.

Cummons brought the automobile to the auto show here from Indianapolis. He said he traveled the 792 miles on 30 gallons of fuel, costing $1.30. His average speed he said was 31 3-8 miles an hour and he made the trip in 25 hours of driving time.

His auto, a 1925 model, has a standard chassis and is equipped as any other car, except that the usual auto engine has been displaced by the Diesel marine motor. Compression of air, rather than the action of spark plugs, ignites the fuel, and the fuel is pre-heated and gasified before it enters the cylinders.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Jules W. Arnold, better known as Nickey Arnstein, whose marriage last October in Quebec to a wealthy Chicago woman, was learned today, is now at liberty without bond for the first time in more than 10 years.

$850,000 ASKED FOR COAST GUARD ACADEMY, NEW LONDON

In Estimates Submitted to Congress by President Hoover—Deficiency Estimates Call For an Immediate Outlay of $61,820,000, Covering Every Important Branch of the Government—Prohibition and President Hoover's Survey of Economic Conditions Are Among the Most Important Items—Sinking of the Schooner I'm Alone Cost the Government $32,500

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—President Hoover laid before congress today deficiency estimates calling for an immediate outlay of $61,831,000 to care for contingencies which have arisen in practically every important branch of the government.

The funds sought would supplement those made available by the last congress for the fiscal year 1930, which amounted to $3,823,000,000, exclusive of $842,125,000 for postal revenue expenditures.

The total asked by President Hoover for deficiencies was brought by this latest request to more than $80,000,000. The first deficiency bill passed by the last congress under the Coolidge administration amounted to $97,000,000.

The estimate of $37,413,000 submitted today for the agriculture department was the largest, and contained the biggest item, calling for $31,400,000 to reimburse states for amounts expended under the federal aid road act.

Prohibition and President Hoover's survey of the country's economic condition were among the important items provided for in the estimates.

For the treasury department, the funds of the Coast Guard would be increased by about $1,500,000, about $450,000 of which would be spent for boats and repairs to vessels to be used combating smugglers of liquor and other contraband. The treasury asked for 30 motor boats and 90 men to operate them on the Great Lakes in this connection.

"The situation as regards liquor smugglers on the Great Lakes," the estimate said, "calls for definite action in order to combat the activities of rum runners and the boats requested are urgently needed for this purpose."

The sum of $850,000 was asked for the Coast Guard academy to be built at New London, Connecticut.

Another angle of the liquor question was found in the estimate of $263,801 for the state department, $32,500 being asked to settle arbitration expenses for the claims submitted by the Canadian government on account of the sinking of the schooner I'm Alone by a Coast Guard boat in the Gulf of Mexico.

A special commerce department estimate of $37,885 was submitted to provide for additional personnel necessary to conduct President Hoover's survey of the nation's economic condition. Funds from this estimate would be used also to meet expenses for a survey and report upon claims against the United States Grain corporation called for by the senate.

In the war department estimates of $7,998,096, the sum of $5,386,367 was provided to defray expenses of the pilgrimage of gold star mothers and widows to the cemeteries and [illegible] fields of Europe where their dead are buried.

An estimate of $2,144,370 was submitted for the justice department to assist in enforcing the nation's laws and to improve conditions at federal penal institutions. Unusual demands on the bureau of investigation caused a request of $395,000 for detection and prosecution of law violators. In addition, $100,000 was asked for salaries and expenses of United States marshals, federal courts and assistant district attorneys.

More than $500,000 was asked for the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas; $152,341 for the penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia; [illegible] for McNeil Island, Washington, and $88,724 for the woman's prison at Alderson, West Virginia.

In the estimate of $6,469,847 for the commerce department, the sum of $6,-740,000 was set aside for the 1930 census, the appropriation of $12,000,000 for the current year having been held to be insufficient to meet expenses.

This request also carried an item of $185,000 to aid the department in carrying on its regulation of commercial aircraft and aviations schools.

The treasury estimate also asked $198,000 for the customs collector and $50,000 for the federal farm loan board.

The navy department estimate of $1,977,763 set aside $1,500,000 to provide for the work of equipping submarines with safety devices and for rescue and salvage equipment.

In the war department estimates $85,000 would be made available for the settlement of war claims under the act of march, which provided for disposition of claims of American Nationals against Germany, Austria and Hungary, and of Nationals of those countries against the United States.

Expense of construction of approaches to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National cemetery were provided in the same estimate to the extent of $416,686.

Of the $356,475 deficiency recommendation for the post office department, $325,000 would be used to meet expenses incurred in the special delivery service, carriers having been authorized increased fees by the last congress.

The growing problem of immigration regulation caused the labor department to ask for an appropriation of $634,250. The sum of $350,000 is for regulating immigration and [illegible] for the bureau of naturalization.

The three other estimates were $550,000 for the District of Columbia; $66,335 for the capital architect, and $34,000 for the United States botanical gardens.

COTTON FARMERS WARNED TO REDUCE THEIR ACREAGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—In a tense warning to cotton farmers to cut their acreage this spring if they expect the government to help market the 1930 crop, the federal farm board took its first decisive step today to force a minimum agricultural surplus.

C. C. Teague, a member of the board, said the warning applied to wheat as well as to cotton and to any other commodity in which producers made a deliberate attempt to expand their acreage in the face of over-production.

"Some cotton farmers," the board said, "think that because the federal farm board has been lending to co-operatives at an average of 16 cents a pound on middling seven-eighths inch staple of the 1929 crop, the board means to see to it that the price will be at least that much for the crop of 1930.

"This is not so. The federal farm board can not protect farmers when they deliberately over-plant. What the board will do to help in marketing next year's crop will depend upon what farmers do at planting time."

PUTNAM

A. A. DUBREUIL MADE CAPT. OF POLICE; LIARD OUSTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—Supernumerary Officer Alphonse A. Dubreuil, of Church street, by vote of the common council was named to succeed the late captain, William J. Jarvis, as head of the police department. The appointing of Capt. Dubreuil effected one of the most drastic changes in any municipal department, occurring in the past ten years, the most sensational upheaval being the ousting from the department of Sergeant H. Liard, who until early today was a leading contender for the appointment.

Sergeant Liard's application did not net him a single vote when the matter went to a ballot. The applications of Dubreuil, John J. McGarry, former Captain John H. Bulger and Harry Wallen were voted upon. Capt. Dubreuil received five votes, which confirmed his appointment.

Officer Alpherie Spooncey will be sergeant in place of Liard. When this matter was voted upon, Sergeant Spooncey was credited with five votes necessary for a choice and Officer Benoni Durand, the only other contestant, receiving four votes.

Officers Joseph G. Page and Benoni Durand were re-appointed for another term. Harry Wallen, unsuccessful candidate for the captaincy, in a second ballot in which five participated, was elected patrolman to fill the vacancy created by the promotion of Sergeant Spooncey. Other candidates for this office were: Robert Allard, Frederick McCollough and Edward Benoit. Fire police appointed were John D. Durand, James O'Brien, Frederick Bechard, Alberic Robitaille, Leo Dubois and Ernest L. Chandler. All officers appointed to serve during the ensuing two years appeared in the council chamber late tonight and assumed the obligations of their office, which were administered by Mayor Charles A. Richard.

The police department was the only bureau to be effected by the shakeup. Other officers, who were reappointed were Thomas P. Ryan, city clerk; Ernest C. Morse, corporation counsel; Eric H. Johnson, prosecuting attorney; George W. Perry, city engineer; Frederick Dumas, superintendent of streets; Ralph E. Thurston, chief of fire department; Alphonse Dumas and Philias Clouthier, deputy fire chiefs; Peter A. Gardner, health officer; board of health, Dr. G. T. LaMarche, Dr. F. A. Morrell, Dr. F. T. Baldwin, A. S. MacDonald, George W. Perry; superintendent of fire alarms, Charles T. Thayer; Albert Light, city janitor.

Sergeant Liard's failure of reappointment was received as a distinct shock by a large crowd, which gathered about the city hall tonight to await election returns. Sergeant Liard, the oldest officer in point of service and one of the most popular police officials in Eastern Connecticut, was until an early hour today a leading contender for the appointment to the captaincy. No explanation was made by Mayor Richard or Police Commissioner Dean for Sergeant Liard's discharge nor is any explanation forthcoming.

GIVES NOTICE OF APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—In superior court in this city today, Mrs. Daisy P. Bosworth of Pomfret, through her attorney David M. Riley of New Haven filed a notice of her intention of appealing Judge E. M. Yeomans' decision, handed down last week in which her application for divorce was denied, to the supreme court of errors. The intention of appeal was filed with assistant clerk of courts Miss Marjorie Bradford. Burton D. Bosworth, who was defendant in the action, was again named in that capacity. Mrs. Bosworth's attorneys will endeavor to prove to the higher court that errors were committed in the decision.

Hopes for an improvement in mail delivery service on the Norwich and Worcester branch, with the announcement of an overland delivery were shattered this morning when the mail truck on its initial run between New London and Worcester arrived at the local post office at 9:30, almost two and a half hours overdue. The subsequent result was that all important mail matter for business houses was delayed as were newspapers and packages which should have been prepared for delivery by mailmen on their morning route coverage. Assistant Postmaster Edmund Gagne said this afternoon that a better schedule is looked for when drivers become thoroughly familiar with their daily route. The overland service supplants the service of the boat train which made its last run Saturday evening.

OBITUARY

Vernon S. Warren

Vernon S. Warren, 90, a native of this city and for many years a resident here died Sunday at the home of his son, John F. Warren in Hardwick, Mass. Mr. Warren suffered a slight shock last summer, the effects of which coupled with his advanced years brought on his death yesterday. Mr. Warren was born in the Putnam Heights section in 1840, the son of Squire George Warren. He obtained his education in the district schools of the town and later attended Dudley Academy. Devoting his life to dairying and agriculture, Mr. Warren attained success in his chosen line of work. For over thirty-seven years he was employed in Hardwick, Mass., as general manager of the dairies of the John K. Whiting company. Following his retirement from business in 1912, Mr. Warren returned to the place of his birth and purchased the Luther Warren place on Putnam Heights where he lived until the death of Mrs. Warren in 1912, who before her marriage was Sarah Place of Putnam Heights. Since then Mr. Warren resided with his son in Hardwick, Mass.

He was fraternally associated with the Masonic and grange orders and held membership in a national dairy and farm management society. Surviving him are two sons, John F. of Hardwick and Horace E. Warren of Putnam Heights, and a number of grandchildren. Selectman William P. Warren of this city is also a relative of Mr. Warren.

Officers of the Danielson state police barracks were guarding strategic points on the trunk line highways in this section which constituted their part in the state-wide systematic search for Roland G. Lalone "ice box" bandit and two pals who made their way out of the state prison at Wethersfield Saturday morning. All cars of a suspicious nature were investigated by the officers on duty.

Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett of Main street had as her guest at luncheon today Judge A. F. Bonee, well known juvenile court magistrate of Hartford.

Hyde Smith of Worcester, formerly of this city was in Putnam today on business.

William E. Shann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shann of Highland street returned to New Brunswick, N. J., today where he is a student at Rutgers Preparatory school.

Monday, according to many of the older residents of the city went on record as being the mildest day for January 6th witnessed in many years. The thermometer in many places registered 56 degrees at noon. The absence of snow combined with the high temperature rendered a real springlike atmosphere.

JEWETT CITY

OLD LYCEUM RECORD BOOK UNUSED SINCE FEB. 18, 1876

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 6—A few years after the close of the Civil war, the late Henry T. Crosby was secretary of the one-time famous Jewett City Lyceum. Mr. Crosby was then the secretary and treasurer of the Jewett City Savings bank. Following the last meeting of that organization held Friday evening, Feb. 18, 1876, Mr. Crosby laid up its book of exceedingly interesting records, among other local books and papers of which he was the custodian.

F. E. Robinson, the present secretary and treasurer, has discovered this book, in which is faithfully recorded the doings of that important body, and has placed it in the keeping of the Slater library.

The first meeting, held in the vestry of the Baptist Meeting house, Tuesday evening, Dec. 16, 1856, is recorded by M. B. Cole, its clerk. At the time of the Lyceum's last meeting 56 members were recorded. All have passed on with the single exception of Joel Audubon Webb, of Plainfield and John E. Phillips of Jewett City. Mr. Phillips, born in 1850, was 26 years of age when the Lyceum voted to adjourn, sine die, Feb. 18, 1876. Daniel L. Phillips, in his history of Griswold, has written of the Griswold Lyceums, and says there were two The Hopeville Lyceum, 1841-1900, and the Jewett City Lyceum, 1856-1876.

The preamble of the constitution of the institution which flourished in the then village of Jewett City, as found in its records, sets forth the object of both: "Whereas it is necessary in order to fit ourselves for the varied duties of life, to cultivate a correct mode of speaking, and to qualify ourselves by practice to express our opinions in public in a correct manner; and whereas the extension of our information upon all subjects calculated to improve the mind is highly commendable; and as experience has abundantly proved that these ends can in no other way be so speedily accomplished as in debate, therefore the undersigned have organized a club and adopted a constitution."

As a part of the business of final adjournment a unanimous vote was passed that J. A. Webb be appointed to write the obituary of the Jewett City Lyceum.

This record is signed, adjourned, sine die, A. T. Crosby, secretary.

The last question for debate was; "Resolved." That expensive living in the country has a greater tendency to prevent marriage, and occasion divorces, then the use of alcoholic stimulants.

October 17, 1865, John R. Tracy was appointed president and a rousing debate took place, the momentous question being "Ought the United States to Spare the Life of Jeff Davis?"

The next meeting discussed the question "Has Any General in the Late War Shown Greater executive Ability Than Benjamin F. Butler?"

The late E. C. Keigwin and James O. Sweet were opposed on what, according to the records, must have waxed warm. Ought Slaves, Who Seek Protection Within the Lines of the Federal Troops be Returned to Their Masters?

The late John R. Tracy won a negative decision in a heated discussion, Dec. 10, 1861, in which the final argument was Hezekiah L. Reade, Are The Rich More Beneficial to Mankind Than the Poor?

E. C. Keigwin opposed N. T. Adams at the close of the war on the important issue, Can the Exercise of "War Power" Extend Beyond the Declaration of Peace?

OVERLAND MOTOR TRUCK MAIL SERVICE A REAL FLOP

The first day of the overland motor truck mail service, for the important morning mail, proved a decided flop, the mail arriving over three hours late.

The driver of the truck stated that the train was delayed by a derailed car at New London. On his vehicle was the mail for Gales Ferry.

Norwich and Jewett City, due at the office at 6 a. m., the arrival was 9 a. m. The operator said other delays were at Gales Ferry, when he ran by the stop, and at Norwich, where he made sure that he was carrying nothing by, Postmaster W. T. Crumb reported the delay in accordance with his instructions from the department. When the new method of dispatch is straightened out, it will be an improvement over the "Boat train" service. It is understood that the arrangement with the New England Transportation company for the handling of the mails is temporary, and that within a short time bids will be received from individuals, desirous of handling the mail matter out of New London.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Jane E. Franklin

The funeral of Mrs. Jane E. Franklin was held Monday afternoon at the home of her nephew, H. W. Olin and her niece, Miss Grace Olin. Rev. E. E. Scates conducted the services reading the Scripture, and speaking of the worthy life Mrs. Franklin had lived and of the devoted care she had received in this home. He read an original poem, He Careth, composed by Miss Olin. Burial was in Jewett City cemetery; the bearers were Willis Hill, of Norwich, William Talcott, Willimantic, Fred Lewis, Plainfield and Henry Wallace of Lisbon. There were beautiful floral remembrances. Relatives and friends were present from New London, Montville, Norwich, Willimantic, Naugatuck, Central Village, Plainfield, Pachaug and Lebanon. Undertaker E. E. Gilbert was in charge of the arrangements.

The Fourth Quarterly conference is to be held at the Methodist church Thursday evening instead of Wednesday. The district superintendent Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich will preside.

The Junior Epworth league is to meet Wednesday afternoon at 3.30.

SAN DIEGO ATTRACTIONS DESCRIBED BY TOURIST

Writing from No. 2308 Fifth avenue, San Diego, Cal., Dec. 22, the Ross tourists have this to say:

This city is called "The birthplace of California"; population about 180,000. The city slopes up from the harbor and the streets are laid out at right angles.

I think the contour of the city is like a shoemaker's last, with the heel extending to the mesas and ending abruptly at the cliffs above Mission Valley. The streets going north rise gradually about a 4 per cent grade, but the streets running east and west are very steep, especially toward the ankle of the shoemaker's last. At the north of the city, in order to get down to Mission Valley, the street turns and twists, along the edge of the cliffs until it reaches the floor of the valley and the San Diego river. This river has no water in it at present although from the bridge can be seen the marks of water in the sand.

The streets are well named and a person can find his way very readily.

Broadway is the principal street and is on level ground. This street runs east and west. The streets that are parallel with Broadway are A. B. C., etc., until the incline begins toward the north and then begin the names of trees and flowers—Ash, Beech, Cedar, Date, etc., etc. We live on the corner of Juniper street and Fifth avenue, high above the harbor and we have an extensive view, with mountains to the southeast in Mexico, to the southwest we see Point Loma on which is an old Spanish lighthouse.

Over the harbor and the Island of Coronado we can see the Pacific ocean. The harbor is land-locked and about 25 miles long.

The city extends along the coast to the north about 25 miles. This is about the distance from Jewett City to Putnam. From here to La Jolla (pronounced hoyah) the streets are very wide, in some places more than 100 feet, well paved from curb to curb. La Jolla is 14 miles from Broadway and is within the city limits.

Although we have been here more than two weeks, we have not met a native. Below Broadway, near the harbor, is China Town, rather a poor-looking part of San Diego, with pawn shops and Chinese theatres. In a Chinese barber shop I saw a Chinese woman shaving a white man (I wish you would suggest to our friend, the Hon. Lionel Boucher, that he employ a female barber). There is a goodly number of Filipinos here; they seem to be employed in garages and as drivers of trucks and I understand they are very good mechanics—they have complexions very nearly like the Chinese, but not the slanting eyes. The dwellings are nearly all flat-roofed—the walls are about a foot thick and at first sight look like adobe; but they are built of wood, lathed and stuccoed, and there are very few windows. The walls of some of these homes are very blank with only one window toward the street and the house 20 or 30 feet long.

There are one-story houses to let in courts. These courts have fine names like Balboa, or Cortez, etc. The space between the houses is about twice the width of the alley between Finn's block and the block to the east. These houses (flat roof and one story) have the front door toward the court (alley). Some of these courts run from one street to the next, like Third to Fourth street. As you look into these courts, they seem very attractive with the narrow walk in the center, a strip of grass on each side and vines and flowers growing over nearly every inch of the sides of the houses.

Some of these courts are whitewashed but most of them are of a dark yellow, almost an orange.

Hotels and apartment houses are everywhere—some of these hotels have hundreds of rooms. Of course, the large hotels are near the center of the city.

More in the future.

POETRY

Firewood

A fire's a fire—of course, that's so;
You can start one blazin' and make it go
From any old wood that bears to grow,
If you've got a fireplace good and deep
Where the blaze can sputter and snap and leap,
With a hearth where a dog or a cat
can sleep.

But it's fact (and for it I ain't to blame)
That the heat and color and feel of the flame
From oak or elm don't seem the same
As that from hick'ry; you take a limb
Straight and even and not too slim,
Or piece o' the trunk, with moss on the rim,
Yet sound inside, though mebby it's got Some old-healed wound, or a knob or knot,
But mustn't have 'ary a bit of rot;
And you wore it down in the new-sprung blaze,
Straight or slanted—however it lays—
Nev' mind if it even sticks out a-ways;
For out of the end that the hottest heat Don't strike, there'll bubble a juice as sweet
As the sweetest sorghum you ever eat;
And all that part that the blazes hold
Will bloom like a whoopin' big marigold
When Autumn comes with a nipe of cold.

And then with a lazy and purry soun',
The flame'll snuggle as soft as down,
And lick out its tongue and wrap it
aroun';
And there'll be a scent that you never could Say what it's like, for it's some like wood
And some like sausages, fryin' good;
And it makes you think of a far-back day
When folks were livin' that's gone away,
Till your eyes get blurry—with smoke,
you say.

—Harriet W Symonds, in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Simple Confession

I do not want so very much—
A million bucks will do—
And as for automobiles, I
Could get along with two.
A country house, a house in town,
Are all I would require;
These, with an ocean-going yacht,
Are all I should desire.

A well-stocked library of books,
Would satisfy my need;
Some fine editions with, of course,
Detective tales to read.
And so with dividends from bonds
And money wisely lent,
With just my simple wants supplied
I should be quite content.

—Somerville Journal.

VALUE OF NEW BUILDING WORK FOR DECEMBER AHEAD OF SAME MONTH IN 1928

During the first week in January there was but one building permit granted at the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. This one permit was for a three-car garage to be erected at 167 Cliff street by Dr. William Suplicki. The garage is to be 20x28 feet and will have a concrete foundation and floor. It is estimated that the cost will be approximately $400.

During December there were 14 permits granted, exactly the same number as for December, 1928. The valuation of the new construction work was more than double that of the previous year. In the permits for December there was included a large standard combination building, four gasoline storage tanks and an $8,000 apartment house. The permits were as follows:

New frame house	1
New frame garages	4
New frame filling station	1
New metal brooder	2
New standard combination bldg.	1
New storage tanks	2
Alterations to frame buildings	3

Estimated cost—$33,350.

During the last quarter of 1929 there were 97 permits granted for an estimated cost of approximately $90,000, making an average valuation of about $900 for each permit, which is considerably above the normal average. The report of Fire Marshal Taft for the quarter follows:

New frame houses	11
New frame garages	23
New frame and stucco garage	1
New steel and stucco garage	1
New cement vault	1
New filling station	1
New frame greenhouse	1

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were four sales of real estate, three less than during the same week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $19,000 and $39,000.

There were no sales of real estate recorded in New London during the past week as compared to eight sales for the first week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $43,160 and $88,482.

NEW LONDON.

A decided increase in the number of new two family houses and a comparative little change in the number of new one family houses is found in a comparison of the annual building report of Building Inspector William Gunn, Jr., for 1929 with the report of 1928.

The reports show that there were only seven new two family houses built in 1929 as compared with 28 for the year 1928, representing a difference in value of $172,000 inasmuch as the seven new houses built the past year are valued at $67,000 while the 28 built last year are listed in value at $239,000.

In regard to the one family houses there were 97 built in 1929, according to the report, as compared with 162 in 1928. The value of the 97 last year is estimated at $718,500 as compared with the $782,400 value set on those built in 1928. This makes a decrease in value of $63,900 between the houses built in 1929 and those built in 1928.

The decided decrease in the number of two family houses built resulted in the lowest number within the records of the city. There was also a decrease in the number of three family and four family houses, only one four family and no three family houses built in 1929 as compared with six three family and three four family houses built in 1928.

A house being built for Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers in Chapel street has been framed and sheathed. The new house is of colonial design and has a concrete foundation. There is an attached garage. The plans specify all modern improvements and conveniences, including steam heat, brass piping, open fireplaces, hardwood floors and built-in features.

Work on alterations and the remodeling of the Knights of Columbus home in Huntington street has progressed favorably during the past week. The old veranda which extended across the front of the home has been removed and a new entrance built. The work will also include interior alterations.

An addition is being built to the house of Frank Amelli at 36 New street. From private plans the enlargement will be of frame construction, 6 by 11 feet. Work is being done by the day under the supervision of the owner.

NIANTIC.

Bay View Masonic Temple association has voted to purchase the old school building on Pennsylvania avenue and to remodel it for lodge room purposes. The proposed alterations will provide a large lodge room and ante-rooms, also a large banquet hall. Work will be started at once.

DEVELOP MODERN KITCHEN ALONG PRACTICAL LINES

A new day has dawned in home management, and with it has come a proper appreciation of the importance of the kitchen. It is now recognized for what it is—the workshop of an industry employing more workers than any other, which knows no slack season, almost no holidays, and which is engaged in one of the most intricate and scientific activities, that of preparing food for all ages and conditions of human beings.

The kitchen formerly was used as laundry, store room, sewing room and a place to drop things. While it is a place to eat at least one meal a day, the other activities once carried on in it are gradually being absorbed by agents outside the home or are being especially arranged for in another part of the house. But even with its one-time services thus diminished it remains perhaps the most used room in the house. Six times a day in many homes and four times in practically all, it is for an hour or more the scene of complicated and important activity. Before and after each meal the house manager, or the well paid servant whose time is quite worth saving, must be working in the kitchen.

Realizing the importance of the kitchen as a workshop, many women have gone about the task of making theirs an efficient plant.

In a consideration of what makes for an efficient plant a number of factors are involved, furnishings perhaps first of all, are to be considered. Like the furnishings in every other part of the home, the kitchen equipment should be considered first from a standpoint of utility. It should be such as the household requires that is the capacity of the various articles such as stove, kitchen cabinet and table, should adequately take care of the needs of the family. The equipment should be substantial. Nothing is so annoying or takes so much time as furnishings which do not hold up under constant usage. A great deal of time may be saved by purchasing furniture which will remain in repair.

Ease in keeping in order is another important item regarding appliances for the kitchen. No modern home keeper has time to spend on equipment which requires special attention and unusual labor to keep it clean and orderly. The glazed surfaces now used in furnishing most kitchen appliances are a true blessing to the busy woman. The enamels and other hard finishes make the cleaning of the table, shelf and cabinet surfaces only the simple matter of quickly washing them.

Arrangement of the kitchen furniture is of utmost importance. No matter what the equipment may consist of, be it the pieces purchased 10 or 20 years ago, or the latest creations, they must be arranged in the kitchen to allow for the greatest convenience and highest efficiency in use. A good suggestion is that of drawing a plan of the kitchen furniture, bearing in mind the location of doors, the routing of serving and the location of pieces which cannot be moved. The refrigerator, food cupboard, cabinet, stove, sink and serving table should be arranged in step-saving sequence. Arrangement along the walls makes for compact working area. Sometimes the placing of a small table or the addition of a shelf will prove a great saver of time and effort. The proper height of all surfaces, sink, stove, shelves and tables, is a matter not only of convenience but often of health.

CHIMNEYS GIVEN AN INDIVIDUALITY BY BUILDERS

American architects are coming in these later years to give more and more consideration to the treatment of the chimney, a feature of the house which has been greatly neglected. Early American architects contented themselves with building massive chimneys in the end walls of the old Colonial brick houses, sometimes having them accommodate as many as three flues to care for grates in fireplaces on as many floors. They were impressive for their size more than their beauty.

Precedent thus set held for a couple of centuries. It has been chiefly within the last half century that attention to chimney treatment has developed. American architects, roaming through the European countries, absorbing architectural inspiration from the creations of the old masters, caught the spirit which moved them, long ago, to weave into the brickwork that singular beauty and charm that even yet distinguishes the ancient chimneys of England, France and Italy.

Probably of these none is more appealing than those of England. In the earlier days the English mason and architect vied with their competitors in the excellence of their work and design. They made of the chimney a sort of trademark, not so much of their own ability as of the importance of the house. Nowhere are chimneys of such a variety of design and treatment, and of such admitted excellence, more frequent than in the country estates of England.

And Americans who today are building similar homes throughout the countryside surrounding our larger cities are emulating their British cousins of the long ago. Architects are encouraging it. And more and more the common brick is being used, both for economy and the more realistic effects obtainable from its application.

Skintled brickwork stands unquestionably as the most radical development in masonry construction in the last 500 years. Next to it was the face brick, produced by various treatments of its surface, giving it an attractiveness which no other brick had possessed. Then comes the recognition of the clinker brick, that long unnoticed Cinderella of the refuse pile which is now the favored pet of the architects.

No other masonry departures have affected brick use so decisively as have these three. Up to the time some ingenious brick maker cleverly tinkered the face brick to make it a thing of new and unusual appeal the common brick had had the exterior brick wall field all to itself. But the American love of change, of something new, speedily shifted popular favor to the new material.

Now skintled brickwork, which is simply an irregular laying of the colorful common bricks to produce a mass textural wall effect of singular allure and charm, is winning back the errant American favor to the common brick. Aided greatly, it must be admitted, by the clinker brick whose popularity, developed almost overnight, has been one of the notable triumphs of late year building material history.

The clinker brick is that brick which, in the kilns, form the arches and sides of the passages through which pass the flames and excessive heat that convert the raw mud rectangles into the finished brick. This excessive heat fuses the clay. It runs in irregular, lava-like furrows, or assumes a lacquer-like smoothness like the old Chinese porcelains, taking on at the same time all sort of odd shapes. These bricks, cleverly intermingled in the skintled brick wall add to the textural beauty a compelling appeal.

VIBRATION OF PIPES CAN BE CORRECTED

Many home owners dread the coming of winter because of the vibration from boilers and steam pipes. A steady vibration has been known to drive some of them nearly to distraction. As a matter of fact such vibration is quite unnecessary and easily eliminated. It means that the distracted one never has taken the pains to determine the exact cause and correct it. Not much trouble and little or no expense is entailed in eliminating vibration. It is rarely that the boiler itself causes the monotonous pounding. The main trouble comes from pipes which have not been sufficiently anchored to the under side of floor timbers. Iron loops, securely nailed to floor beams and drawn tight against the asbestos covering of the pipes will do it, but to make sure it would be well to use even more than are actually necessary. Quite frequently hot water heaters attached to heating plants cause vibration but escape detection because few believe them guilty. A piece of wood wedged between two pipes will eliminate that in many instances. Occasionally the trouble develops at the point where pipes from up through floors. Strips of asbestos insulation packed around them will cure that evil, usually for all time.

WATCH TEMPERATURE OF THE PLAY ROOM

Many mothers who think they take the best possible care of their children frequently subject the youngsters to the danger of taking cold through ignorance of room temperatures at the level where the little folks live. Thermometers usually are hung at the breathing line for adults, approximately five feet above the floor. But when the thermometer there registers 70, the temperature near the floor is probably only 65. A couple of feet above the adult breathing line it may be 74 or 75. The fact that warm air rises accounts, of course, for the variations at different levels in the same room. Consequently when the thermometer at the adult breathing line registers the right temperature for the grown-ups, the temperature near the floor where the little folks are playing may actually be too low for their comfort. This condition may be checked by placing a thermometer near the floor in the play room and regulating the house-hold heat until it registers 70 there, a safe play temperature for the children.

WINTER CARE FOR AWNINGS

For the benefit of those who may have forgotten them, it is high time that awnings were taken down and stored in a clean, dry place for the winter. Let them become saturated and then allowed to freeze, and the problem becomes extremely difficult. It would be best to take them down now—although it is probable that a majority of home owners have done so already. Wrapping them securely in newspapers held in position with string is a safe way for preparing awnings for winter, although care should be taken to wrap the paper loosely around the awning cloth, and to have it held loosely with string. In most basements it is possible to construct simple brackets directly under the floor timbers for the safe storage of awnings.

NEW HOUSE COMPLETED FOR J. H. PRUNIER

The above is a picture of the new two-family house on Prunier court off Bliss place which has been recently completed for Joseph H. Prunier of Julian street. The house is one of very attractive design and is exceptionally well appointed, having five rooms and bath in each apartment. The house is finished in brick clapboards and stained shingles.

There is a garage in the basement and the entrance to the house is just to the right of the garage doors, being of colonial design with a tapestry brick casement. All the rooms are finished in oak trim and hard-finish plaster walls and the floors are of oak. In each living room there is a large tapestry brick fireplace. The bathrooms are of white tile with tile floor and built-in tubs and other fixtures. The kitchens are large and light with a number of built-in features.

All the lighting fixtures are of antique silver and bronze and are very attractive. The house itself is situated at the edge of the woods with plenty of shade and in the rear of the house is a very nice spring which never runs dry.

Mr. Prunier has built the house for an investment, the same as he has a number of others in that section of the city.

DRY AIR FOUND TO CAUSE EYE TROUBLE

If specialists continue to pile up serious charges against the dry air of heated rooms, the chances are that ultimately everybody will be obliged to adopt some system of humidifying in self protection. Recently two specialists at a New York medical conference not only declared, but demonstrated, that incipient cataract is found with marked frequency in persons exposed to unusually dry heat or extremely bright light.

Of course, the average room heated by steam, hot water or hot air is not subjected to "unusually dry heat," but such heat produces dry air, nevertheless, because the process of heating causes the natural moisture in the air to evaporate and when this happens there is a strain upon the entire human system particularly upon the eyes. Humidity gages have told some startling stories when used to test the air in numerous offices, factories and homes. They show that in a surprising large percentage of offices the humidity is under 30 degrees, or less than the humidity in Death Valley, where air is too dry to permit humans to live there for any material length of time. Virtually the same condition has been found both in factories and in homes. The same humidity gages, used in rooms equipped with humidifiers show that regardless of the degree of temperature the humidity is kept well above the safety mark. Checkups also show that humidified rooms result in less fatigue and eye strain.

USE DESIGNS FOR BATHROOM WALLS

Now that plumbing supply houses are producing bathroom fixtures in all the colors of the spectrum there are opportunities galore for the home owner to achieve many interesting and attractive decorative effects. One of these is the possibility for using figured waterproof paper on bathroom walls to serve as complements for the colored fixtures. One plan presents a paneled wall effect, the panels marked with dark and light green striping of liberal width, with a flower pattern worked in between.

This wall arrangement, used in conjunction with light green porcelain fittings, rose-colored bath curtains and draperies, with an imitation oriental rug on the floor, serves to transform the bathroom completely.

Other and equally effective arrangements are possible if care is used in selecting colors and patterns. Even small bathrooms of odd shapes can be transformed in this manner. It goes to show that flat colors not only are not essential but actually suffer by comparison with arrangements in which colors and patterns are employed.

WROUGHT IRON AND POTTERY ATTRACTIVE

The growing popularity of delicate wrought iron flower and plant holders for interior decoration has emphasized how effectively some of these may be used when grouped with pottery. One holder, not more than 18 inches high whose iron work is scarcely a quarter of an inch in thickness holds two small flower pots in which inch plant is grown. Beside it stands a beautiful vase whose curving lines and unadorned surface account chiefly for its beauty, and a low, round jardeniere scarcely three inches high. The effect of this grouping is striking. Any one of the three without the others might prove attractive, but the combination of the three forms an unusually effective ensemble.

As wrought iron work, even in quite intricate designs, is not particularly expensive, and as earthenware vases, urns and flower holders also are down within moderate price range, it is possible to have the requisites for any member of similar combinations and makes for a variety of arrongement which always renders one's home attractive to occasional visitors. Frequent change of table covers, dollies, or whatever else is used in that connection, also tend to improve such groupings, while a trailing vine undergoes such frequent changes in the process of growing that such a grouping never tends to become monotonous.

A SUGGESTION FOR WINTER TINKERING

If the winter season bores you, why not send for a seed cataloge? Or else send for one of these attractive booklets which building supply dealers and associations supply without cost showing all manner of things one can fashion for garden or lawn? After all, winter is the season when one should prepare for spring and summer. It isn't so far away at that, and a little poring over catalogs and booklets right now will do much to cure one's dislike for winter cold.

As a matter of fact, it would be quite possible for a handy man around the house to be building a few trellises and lattice work in the basement these winter evenings. Rest assured that plenty of men are doing it, and they will be several jumps ahead of the average man when spring rolls around. Such ornaments are not hard to make and if one knows the least thing about carpenter tools, even if these consist merely of saw and hammer, the things one can fashion after patterns of one's own devising are surprisingly numerous.

SPEARHEAD WINDOW FIXTURES

The wrought iron arts have introduced a feature which should appeal to lovers of the artistic; that is, the numerous designs for drapery fixtures. The spearhead type is the most popular and probably the design which will remain longest in popular favor. Because they are of wrought iron does not mean, necessarily, that they must be severe in tone, because many of them are finished in colors and color combinations, while others are gold leafed or enameled to produce some striking effects. Some designers also have contrived drapery holders of conforming pattern and in some instances window fixtures of similar designs, thereby providing means for

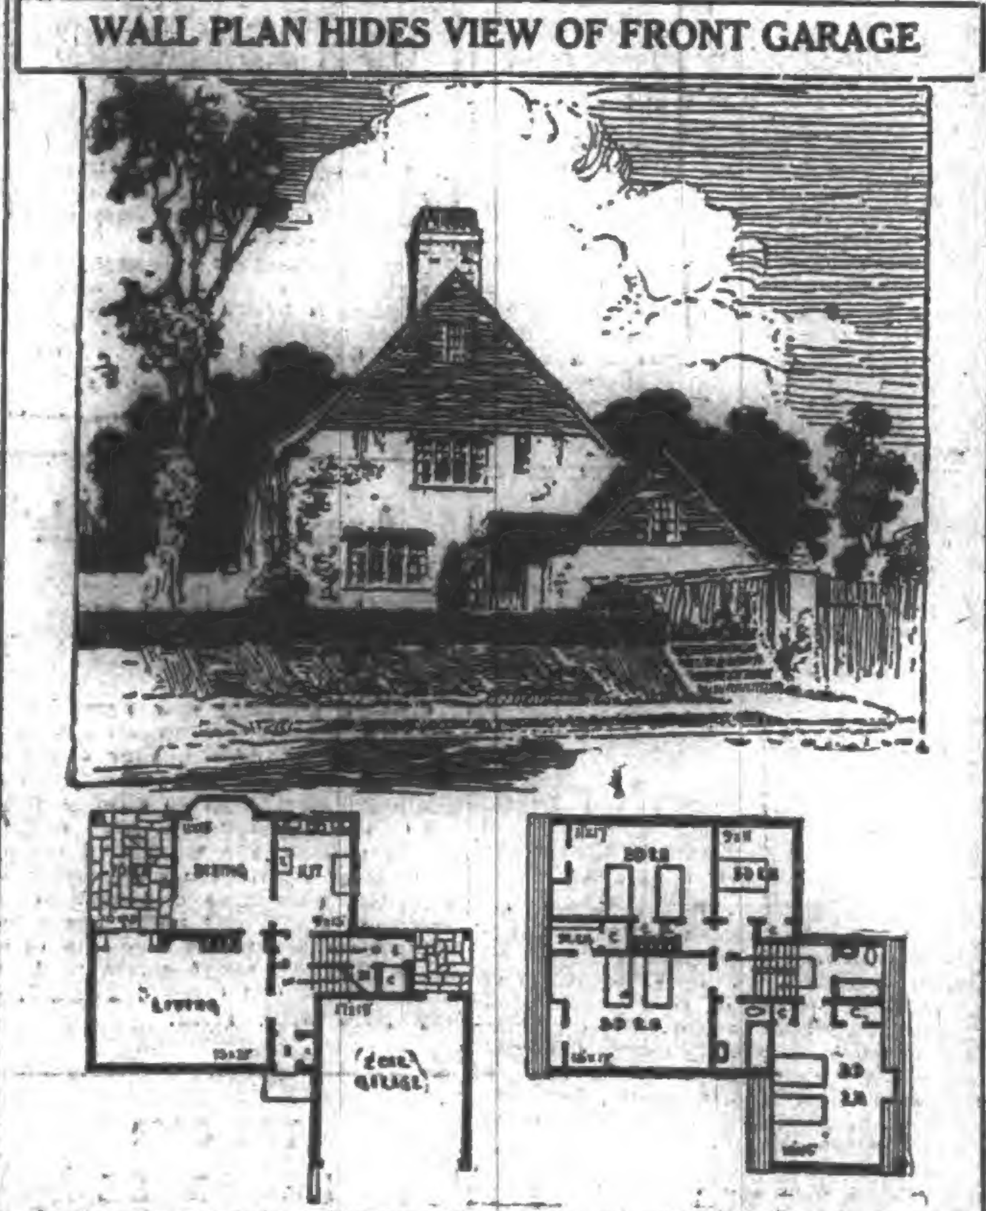
WALL PLAN HIDES VIEW OF FRONT GARAGE



A two-car garage is included in the plan for this French Norman type home of seven rooms and the decorative wall at the front of the house eliminates from the front view what is frequently a jarring note in connected garages, namely, the large doors.

The garage is placed on the ground level four feet below the first floor of the house itself, which provides for adequate light in the cellar without objectionable area-ways around the cellar windows. The basement floor is only a half flight from the grade. The bed room over the garage is on a level mid-way between the first and second floors of the home proper, and is provided with a separate bath room. All bed rooms have cross-ventilation and the master bed room is equipped with a dressing closet.

Large windows in the dinning room look out over the garden and the access to the porch is also from this room.

Stucco is recommended for the lower part of the exterior with natural-colored gray-weathered siding on the upper portions, with shingle tile roof.

Estimates on construction cost in large metropolitan areas range from $15,000 to $18,000.

Back in 1866 Stock Fire Insurance companies established the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The National Board membership now consists of 239 Stock Fire Insurance companies. Through its various departments and by virtue of its maintaining the largest privately owned testing laboratories devoted to the conservation of life and property, it performs real, worth-while public service.

These individual companies from all parts of the world, while competitors in business, have nevertheless joined forces in this work. Responsible agents represent one or more of these companies in every community.

THE TREASURY'S CONDITION.

Figures which have been given out by the treasury department for the calendar year 1929 back up the claims which have been made by Secretary Mellon from time to time. They show that even though there have been reductions in the federal taxes the revenue has continued to increase. The removal of the taxes has brought money back into business and the result has been more funds on which taxes have been paid. Those huge sums which were kept away from taxation by being invested in tax-exempt securities are now otherwise invested and the taxpayers as well as the country are getting the benefit of it. Further than that, the latter half of the calendar year, which is the first half of the government's fiscal year, makes such a good showing that it fully supports the estimate of Secretary Mellon that there will be a surplus of $225,000,000 by the first of next July even though the special tax cut for this year has been voted.

A matter which cannot fail to attract attention and get appreciation is the statement which shows that the national debt has been reduced from a total of nearly $26,600,000,000 to $16,-305,000,000. This cut, averaging a billion a year, has been unusual in the reduction of a war debt. It not only means that excellent progress is being made in debt removal but that there is a tremendous saving being effected in the interest on the debt by such a course. Opposition aplenty has been raised against the Mellon policy but it has stood the test of time and but for it we would have a much larger debt, a bigger annual interest account and the benefits of the tax reductions would have been uncertain.

The financial leadership which Mr. Mellon has given under three administrations has been masterly. He has demonstrated his thorough grasp of the situation and not only that but it has worked out as he predicted, to the gratification of all concerned and to the benefit of the financial position of the government. Thus, the unwillingness to part with his services as secretary of the treasury, where he has established such a remarkable record, can be fully understood.

THE WASHINGTON FIRES

For a considerable time attention has been directed to the hazardous condition in many of the government buildings at Washington because of the manner in which inflammable material is stored, and to the serious danger which faces important documents in case a fire develops in any one of the various storage places.

There was a lesson to be gained from the fire in the executive offices a few days ago and with that being followed by a fire in the artists' room in the capitol building there cannot fail to be a greater appreciation of the fire menace in government structures.

It was determined that the first of the fires was caused by defective wiring. The investigation will disclose in time what was responsible for the second fire. It would seem possible that it developed as the result of the use to which the artists' room was being put. But, regardless of the cause, whether it was the result of spontaneous combustion or carelessness, it has been demonstrated what can easily happen to valuable documents once a fire gets started.

It is probable that nothing of any great value was lost by the fire in the capitol but that is partially due to the fact that such may not have been within reach of the flames. But once papers which are of little or no value become ignited they make just as disastrous a fire as do the valuable ones, and the two fires in government buildings have been a powerful argument in behalf of the fireproof structures which have so long been sought.

It isn't to be expected that the capitol is going to be torn down to make way for a fireproof structure. It isn't necessary for the executive offices to be abandoned because there was a fire in them. The importance, however, of providing a fireproof storage place for valuable documents, some of which could not be replaced for love or money, and either discarding much of the needless papers which are stored or else providing a safe place for them also, has been given such emphasis by the two recent fires as to direct the needed attention from which action ought to follow. There is need for fireproofing to protect documents and to protect buildings.

PARKING

With the growth in the number of automobiles the question of parking has been a bothersome one in cities, and the larger the city the larger the problem. In some instances street widening has been undertaken but no sooner is it completed than the extra highway space is occupied by standing cars. The situation is as bad as ever and the outlay has produced no relief. Every community finds it necessary to adopt its own remedy for its own peculiar troubles. Conditions vary and the regulations have to be varied accordingly. Restrictions as to time for parking, prohibition of parking in certain areas and one-way streets have helped to relieve the streets to a certain extent, but they have not solved the problem in such a manner as to take care of the increasing number of machines. Congestion continues in the street because so much of that which is intended for the movement of traffic is occupied by parked machines.

Conditions got so bad in the business section of Chicago that it was decided all parking should be prohibited. It was strenuously objected to at first, but it was put into effect and now it wouldn't think of going back to the old method. It was only recently that the police commissioner of New York made a trip to the Windy city to make a study of its traffic relief measures, and from the statements which he has made since his return it would appear that he was impressed by the results and is convinced that New York must sooner or later face the music and do something of a similar character.

Even the merchants, who have been much opposed to the idea of abolishing parking privileges, are convinced that something must be done to stop the interruption of traffic. In Philadelphia there was tried out at one time the idea of having auto owners use the carsheds of the electric line for parking purposes, the parking fee including transportation into the center and out again on the electric lines. Large motor marts are helping to take the machines off the highways in other places. The congested highway due to traffic is bad enough but the situation is made much worse by the ever-increasing practice of parking.

CONQUERING MONOXIDE

That information which comes from Johns Hopkins university to the effect that Dr. J. C. W. Frazer has perfected a means of preventing carbon monoxide escaping as such in closed garages where automobile engines are in operation will be learned with much satisfaction. If this proves practical and some device for employing it in the treating of the exhaust fumes can be invented it should mean most valuable protection to human life, and particularly to those who either haven't understood the danger from such a gas or have carried the idea that they could escape its effects.

Carbon monoxide has been the cause of many deaths. Thoughtlessly, auto owners have undertaken to do some work about their motors while the car was in the garage. This has been, for the most part, in cold weather when there was a desire to keep as warm as possible, and of course while the motor was running. It requires but a small amount of the carbon monoxide gas to pollute the air in a garage and before the person may be aware of its effects he has succumbed.

Up to now the protection against the deadly gas has been to keep the doors open and let in plenty of fresh air. Under those circumstances there was no danger, but for the sake of comfort precaution in too many instances was thrown to the wind, the door was left shut and many needless deaths have been the result.

The discovery of the Baltimore professor means that the exhaust will be dealt with chemically in such a manner that the formation of deadly gas will be prevented. Carbon dioxide instead of carbon monoxide will be formed. The prevention of the dangerous gas will be most welcome and its modification of automobile fumes even in the streets will not be opposed.

PROOF REPEATED

Not so many days ago attention was called throughout the country to the danger involved in having Christmas trees in the house unless the greatest care was exercised in decorating and lighting them. To some this advice may have seemed needless. To others it was timely and appreciated.

This year much stress was placed upon care where electric wiring and lighting was involved, the point being to see that it was properly done and that the fixtures were standard in character. However much this may have seemed like being more fussy than the situation required, it is shown by the destruction of the 40-room country home at White Plains, N. Y., to have been just what was needed.

There, in a home of luxury, the Christmas tree had been elaborately decorated, and it may have been felt that attention had been given to the safety requirements, but such, according to the report, was not so for it is believed that two exposed electric wires on the tree touched, causing a flash and the ignition of the tree, which had become dry, and there was kindled a blaze which could not be checked until the beautiful home had been wrecked, a hospital next door threatened and a loss of $200,000 caused.

Sometimes it is the small things that can prevent the big losses. The experience in that home didn't come until a number of days after Christmas but there were conditions in the exposed wires which were ripe for disastrous results just as soon as the wires were brought together. That time came, just as it was liable to occur at any minute, and there was added one more impressive lesson to the many which preceded it in which Christmas trees have been the cause of destructive fires.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are inventors who have wonderful dreams but, as might be expected, they do not all materialize.

The man on the corner says: How high would a fellow have to go so that he could use a parachute and drop down on Mars?

Chicago paying $18,000,000 a year in interest on its indebtedness ought to have its attention called to the pay-as-you-go policy.

Will Tammany be the chief beneficiary of the $15,000 which Mayor Walker turns over from the city treasury to charity?

American cotton bales are said to be untidy. Well, it will have to be admitted that they would quickly muss up a fellow's new blue serge.

Although from Kentucky, New England has an added interest in the naming of Senator Sackett as ambassador to Germany because he is a native of Rhode Island.

LIKE SUNSHINE.

Peggy Merrill thought she had never seen anything more beautiful than the twenty-six long-stemmed Claude Pernet roses.

She leaned over their yellow loveliness and took a long breath of their sweetness. It was hard to leave them. Why did one have to work on one's birthday anyway?

But why leave them? Why not take them to school, and let the children have at least a whiff of her joy? Poor little dears, their paths were not scattered with flowers, and besides this was to be her last birthday in the schoolroom. She ought to celebrate.

"Say, ain't they grand?"

"Gee, they're swell."

"My grandpa had some like 'em at his funeral."

"I seen some like 'em at a wedding wunst. The bride, she wore 'em in her hand. My ma said they ought 'a' been white. But I liked 'em yellow. Say, Miss Merrill, can't I put 'em in the vase for you?"

"No, I want to put 'em in. I saw 'em first. I was here when teacher opened the box."

"Now, children, please be quiet and take your seats." Peggy tried to look severe. "I had no idea that these roses would cause a riot, but never mind." She smiled as she lifted the beauties from their long green box. "They really are exciting." she looked at all the eager little faces until she came to one whose large brown eyes were gazing even more rapturously than those of any other child at the roses in her hands.

"Claude, because your name is Claude, and because the roses are named Claude, too, you may fill this blue jar with water and help me arrange the posies."

Out at the elbows, with holes in the knees of his stockings, and toes protruding from his shoes, Claude Dubois arose with dignity, and with a grand air marched to Miss Merrill's desk. The caressing touch with which he handled every blossom made Peggy feel that no one would have valued the privilege more than he.

"Say, teacher," exclaimed a little girl as soon as the children had taken their seats after the noon hour, "I counted them roses and two of 'em's gone. They was twenty-six this morning and now they's only twenty-four. I know, 'cause I can count good." Another hand was raised for permission to speak.

"I know who swiped them," testified Tom Conroy. "Sure it was none other than Claude Dubois himself. I saw the stems sticking out from under his coat. He sneaked in here, and—".

"That will do, Tom. How about it, Claude; did you take the roses?"

"Yes'm, Miss Merrill." Claude pushed the dark ringlets from his brow and looked at her bravely.

"You may stay after school and 'll talk to you then." Peggy spoke gravely. How could her favorite little Claude have proved so unworthy? Were all children alike? The best of them no better than the worst of them, perhaps. She sighed.

"Now, Claude, why did you take the roses?"

"I wanted them because they were like sunshine. I wanted them to take to my mother. When my father was in the hospital my mother took him flowers. Now he's dead and my mother is in the hospital, and there's no one to take her even one petite little flower."

"Oh, Claude," Peggy looked about to be sure that they were quite alone. "Oh my dear, you should have told me." She gathered him into her arms and kissed the wide brow under the curls. "Of course you should have asked me, but you may ask for the rest of them now and we'll go together and take all the roses to your mother."

"But, Miss Merrill, somebody gave them to you."

"Yes, somebody did." Peggy's eyes shone, "but somebody will understand." —Exchange

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — Not so many years ago, the Chicago Northwestern railroad had a huge native son of Milwaukee pulling an engine throttle on its lines out in Wisconsin, John C. Schafer by name.

He was a heavy shouldered, powerfully built chap, with a tousle of light hair and a foghorn voice that rivaled the volume and carrying power of the steam-boat chime of his engine whistle.

And one way another, this particular hoghead had managed to get a good deal out of life outside of railroading. He hopped into the Thirteenth engineer regiment, a railway outfit, for instance, and got a taste of war in the Verdun, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne rows "over there."

Also, he developed an ambition which led him into the state legislature and finally to the Sixty-eighth congress.

He's Loquacious

He's still here, serving his fourth term. And since Tom Blanton of Texas dropped out big Schafer shares honors with LaGuardia of New York for loquacity. Remarks by both sprinkle all house proceedings.

Schafer has a consuming curiosity about every little bill any member tries to squeeze by. He is always "reserving the right to object," and then asking pointed questions.

When he first came to Washington, he set out to improve himself by taking a night law course and kept at it a year or two.

Also, between times, he digs away at the books to trace down literary or historical allusions in fellow members' speeches that went over his head. By the time he gets through he knows all about that particular reference.

For he's a bulldog by nature, a big, burly lad full of sticktoitiveness. Which Rep. Ham Fish of New York discovered on the day congress laid off for Christmas.

A day or so before, Fish sought the right to explain that "a certain newspaper" had stated that after a two-minute session with President Hoover, Fish had issued three separate statements for publication.

"The fact is I spent with the president the entire 15 minutes which is allowed to members of congress," Fish said.

Schafer had reserved the right to object to Fish's being allowed to speak, but had not done so. A moment later he asked five minutes himself to talk "not on the prohibition question."

The Comeback

"I object," shouted Fish, and Schafer was cut off conversationally at the source.

Did that end it? Not at all. Seizing his time on the last day of the session, Schafer got the floor and proceeded to pay his respects to Fish.

He suggested that "a national legislator who is so impressed with his own importance" ought to notify all newspaper reporters in Washington to accompany him "with stop watches" when he went white house calling, then record the matter in the Congressional Record "in bold letters so that it will not escape the readers."

And the house chuckled and applauded over Schafer's delayed-fuse comeback.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Norwich Shows Up Badly in Comparison

Mr. Editor: Knowing that it would be of interest to me, a fellow citizen brought me a copy of the Boston Sunday Globe, Dec. 22, 1929. It contained an article on the municipal plants of Holyoke, Redding and Hudson, Mass.

The rates in Holyoke are four cents per K. W. H., not three cents to 40, 50 or 60 cents as in Norwich.

Hudson found it difficult to get satisfactory rates from the big power companies and so installed oil burning Diesel engines. They have made two cuts in rates and are now selling at:

7c per K. W. H. for 20 K. W. H. or less.

3c per K. W. H. for next 180 K. W. H.

2c per K. W. H. for all over 200.

Seventy-five cents minimum charge.

Compare Hudson and Norwich.

	Hudson, Mass.	Norwich, Conn.
5 kw	$ .75	$1.00 to $2 or $3*
10 kw	.75	$1.15 to 2.35 plus*
15 kw	1.06	1.30 to 2.65 plus*
20 kw	1.40	1.45 to 2.65 plus*
200 kw	6.80	6.85 to 8.05 plus*
250 kw	7.80	8.35 to 9.35 plus*

*—according to number of rooms.

As compared to Hudson, Norwich rates are not as low to either small or large users of energy.

Happiness, What Is It?

Mr. Editor: Another Christmas has passed and gone, and it has left a pleasant memory. Time rolls on and it brought to us that day when all men sing, 'Peace on earth, good will toward men." Has that thought vanished with the day? Let us hope by our actions during the past and during the coming year we may feel we have done something each to make that song ring true because words without deeds are without value, and investment in kindness will always pay big interest in the happiness you give to others. Oftimes we run across some one who is sorely afflicted and yet they live on the sunny side of the street.

On one of my many trips into Norwich I called upon a dear old man who is so badly crippled that he has to hobble to a chair by the aid of two canes, and here he sits looking out through the window, day after day. I ventured to extend my sympathy to him on his helpless condition. "Why," he said, "I am not so bad off for I could be worse, and there are many who cannot get out of bed and they are worse off than I am."

Think that one over. Here was a man who was on the sunny side of the street, and he continued, "I feel happy that I am as well as I am."

That is happiness. Some men there are who have had an uphill fight all their lives, and under conditions where many men would give up in despair. Perhaps many of you who read my many letters in the papers have at one time or another seen one of the most amazing motion picture actors that is seen on the screen. Perhaps there is not another actor his equal. Both of his parents were deaf and dumb and in addition to that his mother was a hopeless invalid. Her expressive hands were forever motionless from rheumatism. This boy, her boy, only at school in the fourth grade, cared constantly and patiently for his mother. She lay quietly day by day, her voice mute, her hands which were her only means of conveying her thoughts or her wishes were still. This boy had to make his mother understand, and he, as a result, had to understand her through the motions of her face and he, in return, had to express his meaning in a like way. He learned the art of pantomime, and he acquired the art of expressing himself through his facial grimaces. He became one of the world's greatest actors. This was an example of the reward of devotion, a reward not sought but a reward that was merited and inevitable. He found his happiness in his devotion to his mother, and his reward came later, the man of a hundred faces. Have you not seen him in the Hunchback of Notre Dame, Lon Chaney? And of Lon Chaney it can be said to every toiler: He alone is great who, by a life heroic, conquers fate.

In the work I have had to do I have found as a rule the happiest ones are the ones who are the most sorely afflicted. In one of the hospitals here in Passaic, there is a man, who at one time was a picture of health, strong, rugged, and a structural steel worker. He was swept off a building by the swing of a heavy girder, and for 18 years he has had to lay in one position. He is known as the "sunshine man", always happy, never downhearted, always smiling.

I came at one time in contact with another man who had been bed-ridden for 30 years from a cause for which he was not to blame. I used to sit down evenings and play checkers with him, and how he would laugh when he would beat me. He was full of happiness.

I wonder if any of you readers recall Marshal P. Wilder, the great humorist, who during his public career was billed as the prince of entertainers and the entertainer of princes. I am sure my dear old pal, Johnny Cleary, will recall him for Wilder was a very deformed little fellow and yet he was just bubbling over with sunshine and happiness. How he would laugh when he would tell a story. It was infectious and you would have to laugh with him. I will tell you one of his stories, as he alone could tell it.

He said: "Traveling in a Pullman sleeper at one time I was interested in a little girl who was with her mother. I took the little one on my lap and told her a lot of little stories until I noticed she had fallen asleep and then the mother took her and laid her down, in the berth, asleep. Soon the darkness of night settled down upon us and nothing was heard except the rattle and creaking of the train or the deep breathing of the ones who were deep in slumber. The night wore on and when the first beams of the morning sun came through the window I pushed my curtain aside to see if my little friend of the day before was awake and I saw a tiny little foot sticking out through the curtains. I could not resist the temptation and I started that old jingle: 'This little piggy went to market, this little piggy stayed home.' I had about got to the third little toe when the curtains were parted and the mother said: 'Sir, I would thank you to leave my foot alone!'" and then at the climax of the story how he would laugh. Happiness and sunshine.

John Vance Cherry said:

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast,
That found the common daylight sweet
And left to heaven the rest.

And in conclusion, if you have any happiness or sunshine in your make-up, pass it on.

CLOTHING AND COLDS

By Marion Craig Potter, M. D.
Rochester, N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A chilled body is the cause of many colds.

Pasteur proved that a chicken with a normal temperature did not catch a certain infection, but if chilled in cold water, the temperature becoming subnormal it contracted the disease and died.

In the prevention of colds clothing is important, as eighty-five percent of the body heat escapes through the skin.

Clothing in itself is neither warm nor cool: its warmth depends on the ability of the fabric to conserve the natural heat of the body.

In summer the use of vegetable fibres, linen, cotton and artificial silk, which are closely woven, are cooler, as they allow the perspiration which constantly lies like an invisible wet blanket on the skin to evaporate but do not absorb it. Water is a better conductor of heat than air, and the perspiration in evaporating carries off the heat of the body.

In winter leather fur, and wool or siukwhicharekuitted aE T AOIN.kfET silk which are knitted instead of woven, such as jersey and tricolette, help to retain the body heat. The air spaces in knitted goods encase the body, as it were, in a layer of dry air, which, being a poor conductor of heat, helps to maintain the temperature of the blood, as asbestos around steam pipes helps a heating system. Knitted goods, whatever the material, having porosity, absorb the perspiration (of which there is from one to two pints daily) allowing it to vaporize slowly through the meshes, thus preventing the chilling effect of rapid evaporation. Two knitted garments or knitted cotton ones, because of their porosity and the insulating air space between them, may be warmer than one heavy garment.

It is as important to ventilate the skin as the lungs and to keep the pores open with frequent bathing. Water, sunshine and fresh air are great cleansers. History tells us that during a Florentine celebration a child was varnished with gold. It soon sickened and died in its gilded cage. Clogged pores are dangerous.

Men's clothing is more irrational than women's. In some uniforms a man is almost hermetically sealed.

The net-work of blood-vessels in the feet may be compared to an auto radiator. If the feet are wet, the rapid evaporation chills the whole circulatory system. So keep the feet dry. Elderly people and children are especially susceptible to cold. Bed-socks and artificial heat are better than cold feet. Bare knees chill and do not harden youngsters.

Avoid colds by keeping warm and dry.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

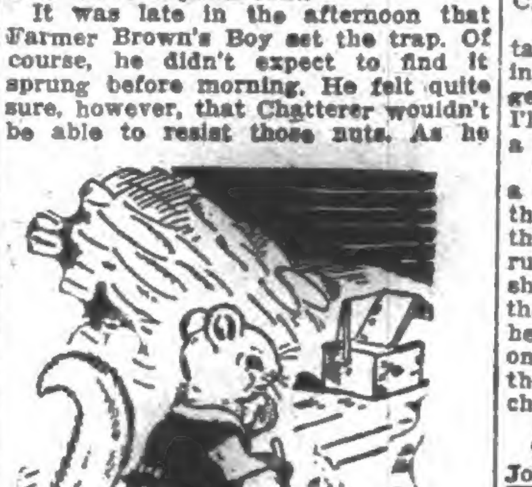
The Trap Is Sprung

Be sure you never laugh too soon,
Or shortly you may change your tune.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Now that Farmer Brown's Boy knew that Chatterer the Red Squirrel was visiting the corncrib, he felt sure that he would be able to catch him. So he had set a box trap baited with nuts.

"I don't want to hurt the little rascal," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I certainly wouldn't kill him for a great deal. That's why I am setting a box trap. It will hold him a prisoner and not hurt him at all. I still don't see how the rascal gets in there. Catching him won't explain that."

It was late in the afternoon that Farmer Brown's Boy set the trap. Of course, he didn't expect to find it sprung before morning. He felt quite sure, however, that Chatterer wouldn't be able to resist those nuts. As he closed the corncrib and went back to the house for supper, he was sure that in the morning when he opened that corncrib he would find that box trap sprung and Chatterer in it.



He chuckled when he saw it

Now, Chatterer the Red Squirrel is one of the smartest of all the little people in the Green Forest. Yes, sir, he is so. That small head of his is full of the sharpest wits. He knew that if Farmer Brown's Boy had seen him there in the corncrib, Farmer Brown's Boy would certainly try to do something about it.

"He'll probably set a trap for me," thought Chatterer. "I saw those traps he set for mice and kept out of those. He'll probably set a different kind of trap for me. I shall have to watch out for anything strange here."

So it was that Chatterer the next morning discovered almost at once the box trap that Farmer Brown's Boy had set for him. He chuckled when he saw it. He had seen traps like that before. He knew all about traps of that kind. He peeped in at the open door to see what might be inside.

"Nuts!" exclaimed Chatterer. "My, how good they smell! Farmer Brown's Boy has even opened some of them for me. I certainly do like nuts. But he can't tempt me with nuts. I've got several storehouses full of them. When I want nuts I can get them. I came over here after corn. When I want corn I don't want nuts. I wonder what that thing is sticking out from the back of this trap. It can't do any harm to touch it. Nothing can happen so long as I am outside the trap."

So Chatterer reached out and touched the little stick, and when he did that the door of the trap dropped with a thump. It startled Chatterer so that he ran. He ran and disappeared in the great pile of corn. But a moment later he was peeping out again. There stood the trap with the door closed. He knew then that he had closed that trap by touching that little stick at the back. Chatterer chuckled.

"Now I know what to do with that kind of a trap," thought he. "I wonder what Farmer Brown's Boy will say when he finds that door closed and nothing inside."

Chatterer was hidden where he knew he couldn't be seen, but where he could watch Farmer Brown's Boy when he came in the corncrib. He saw the good-natured grin that spread over the freckled face of Farmer Brown's Boy as the latter saw that the trap was sprung. He chuckled down inside, did Chatterer.

"Well," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to the squirrel he supposed was inside the trap, "it didn't take long to get you, did it? I didn't think it would. I'll go get a cage now and we'll have a look at you."

So Farmer Brown's Boy brought in a cage and then very carefully opened the trap at the door of the cage, so that whoever was in the trap would run into the cage. No one ran in. You should have seen the funny look on the face of Farmer Brown's Boy when he discovered that that trap had no one in it. Chatterer saw that look and then chuckled. But it was a silent chuckle.

ADVOCATES PARENTS PAYING COST OF CHILD REFORM

Where parents are responsible for delinquency in their children which necessitates commitment of the offspring to reformatory institutions, the parents rather than the state should foot the bill, in the opinion of State Agent Raymond F. Gates, expressed in his biennial report submitted to Governor Trumbull. He suggests further legislation to bring this about, and holds that closer scrutiny of such cases by the courts would result in a greater respect for parental responsibilities."

In a very small number of the commitments to the School for Boys at Meriden or Long Lane Farm at Middletown, Mr. Gates said in discussing the report, the courts have ordered parents to contribute. More support orders should be issued, Mr. Gates believes, particularly where there is reason to believe the parents will act for the release of their progeny as soon as the children have been trained sufficiently in a trade at a state institution to be of financial value to their parents. This practice, with the parents having a child committed and then released when his training has progressed enough to qualify him for a remunerative job has been followed in a number of instances, Mr. Gates said.

Recommends Infirmary

The report, the tenth to be submitted since the department of state agencies and institutions was established in 1919, and the first biennial report in accordance with a 1927 law, also recommends:

Establishment of a state infirmary.

"Fair consideration" for proposals that illness allowance be discontinued and that aid be decreased in proportion to the amount of insurance carried.

That extending aid to women whose husbands are in penal institutions and women whose husbands are incapacitated for work be considered before any provision is made for state aid for alien widows.

Discussing criticisms of the present law which favors a "full support" statute, Mr. Gates in his report defends the act now in force, adding, "we further maintain that welfare organizations, private or public, are remiss in their duty and privilege in hesitating to supplement widows' aid in the certain comparatively few cases where supplementation is necessary."

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home," Mr. Gates quotes in his report in explanation of the objects of his department. "The dividends returned to the state for this investment," he says regarding widows' aid, "are homes saved, families reestablished, and children kept from the necessity of institutional jurisdiction. The prevention of juvenile delinquency alone through widows' aid pays a return to society that cannot be estimated in funds other than the funds of self-respect, continued schooling, cleanliness of home and life, and the upbuilding of a staunch and patriotic citizenry."

"Pratically all the authorities experienced in child welfare agree that the home affords the proper care, love and guidance for the child," the report says, "and even that the foster home is far better than an institution; therefore, this state through widows' aid is carrying out the ideal in providing the ways and means for the normal progressive development of the child. We can but refer to the record of the past 10 years in substantiating this fact, and impress the public at large there is an actively functioning human side of government."

Pauperism Causes

Consideration is urged for the problems which have been brought to light in the administration of the poor laws. Illness and mental afflictions are the two primary conditions causing the great increase in dependency observed during the past decade, Mr. Gates says, but changed social conditions and the vast extension of welfare work since the World war have also been dominant factors. Another element in increased pauperism, Mr. Gates finds, is the location of the state between the great ports of New York and Boston and one of the big problems of the department has been the prevention of Connecticut being used as a dumping ground for undesirables. He also notes the problem caused by the "individual who, upon arriving at middle age, finds that through adjustment and changes he has to reestablish himself in his vocation and is thereby confronted with a serious handicap."

During the last biennium, the department received 4,003 applications involving 5,407 persons, for aid under the poor laws, with the result that 10,123 investigations were made. Eighty-seven municipalities were paid $265,362.30 for relief extended by them to state paupers. During the two years, as the result of investigations, 315 cases have been transferred to other jurisdictions, 102 repatriations have been effected and aid given the federal authorities in 30 other cases.

3,235 Benefited

For the biennium covered by the report, the department had 468 applications for widows' aid, of which 339 were granted as the result of 5,676 visits and investigations. At the end of the period widows' aid was being alloted to 821 homes, benefiting 3,235 individuals. During the two year period 983 persons have been aided with an average per capita allowance of $120.29 a year.

New Haven, with 129 persons receiving widows' aid, led the other towns of the state in this respect, and was followed by Waterbury with 73, Hartford with 72, Bridgeport with 56, New Britain with 44, Norwich with 37, and Meriden with 24, during the 1927-29 period.

Classification of those who received aid under the poor laws according to their nativity shows the largest group, 2,378, to have bene native born. Other nationalities with numerically large representation were: Italian, 1,058; Polish, 414; Canadian, 292; Russian, 251; Austrian, 186; Irish, 143; Hungarian, 81; English, 75.

MOTOR TRUCK MAIL SERVICE GETS OFF TO SLOW START ON FIRST DAY

The new motor truck mail service in place of the morning boat train on the Norwich—Worcester division of the New Haven road got off to a delayed start Monday morning, its first day, that raised protest all along the line, when the first trip was anywheres from an hour to three hours late.

To begin with, the service was in trouble before it had a chance to start, for one car in a railroad train at New London ran off the track which made the mail motor trucks an hour late in leaving New London. The motor truck which brings the mail for Gales Ferry, Norwich and Jewett City had a green driver who didn't know where the Gales Ferry stop should be made. He got along as far as the Poquetanuck drawbridge, when he found he had gone past Gales Ferry, and he had to turn back to leave the Gales Ferry mail. This added two hours to the delay by the time he reached Norwich and continued on to Jewett City. The mail from New London that was expected here at 5:25 a. m. did not arrive till just after 8 o'clock.

There is another motor truck that runs express from New London to Plainfield, coming up on the west side of the river, and carrying the mail for Plainfield and points to the north. This was an hour behind time due to the initial delay at New London. Naturally this delay is not expected to be a regular occurrence.

Through representations to the authorities that this Plainfield truck could serve to take newspaper mail out of this city for points north, Postmaster C. K. Bailey has succeeded in having an order issued to have this truck stop at the Norwich post office to pick up newspaper mail which is for the rural sections along its route.

According to the schedule of mail service that is now given Norwich along the north and south line between Worcester and New London, the first mail from the north into the city in the morning arrives at 11:20 by an overland bus service which has been in operation for some time, leaving from Worcester with first class mail only. This bus goes on to New London and then returns to Worcester, passing through Norwich on the return trip about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, bringing mail on this trip and taking mail from here for points north. Service for post offices along the line of travel is provided by what is called a "working pouch," which is an open pouch into which the post offices at intermediate points put mail that is directed to some point short of the ultimate end of the route. This mail is taken from the "working pouch" at its proper destination along the line.

The second mail from the north arrives by the motor truck that takes the place of the night boat train, reaching here at 8:40 p. m. This also carries a "working pouch" by which mail is handled between the intermediate points. The motor truck takes out the last mail at night to New London.

The first mail from the south arrives, as already stated, by the motor truck at 5:25, substituting for the morning boat train. The second mail from the south arrives at 2 in the afternoon by the overland bus service.

Mail thus leaves Norwich, southbound, at 11:20 a. m. and 8:40 p. m. Northbound it leaves at 5:25 a. m. and 2 p. m. In addition to this there is the service by the Central Vermont railroad.

BOY SOPRANO'S ROGRAMME MUSIC ASSOCIATION FEATURE

The Norwich Music association had a programme that gave rare pleasure to its members and a large number of interested friends at its January meeting Monday night in Slater hall annex when it presented Master Clawson Beswick Van Siclen of Philadelphia, boy soprano, and his instructor and manager, Ernest Felix Potter, who was organist and choir director at Christ church in this city a number of years ago. Master Van Siclen had been heard in Christ church on a visit to this city with Mr. Potter last summer and the interest in hearing his wonderful voice again brought out the largest attendance of the season to the meeting of the music association.

The boy soprano had an ambitious programme but he handled it easily, delighting his enthusiastic audience with the bell-like clarity of his voice, its perfect trill, flexibility and range, when he soared to F above high C in the Arditi waltz song. He generously gave a number of encores to his appreciative audience.

Mr. Potter, who played the accompaniments for his pupil, added much to the pleasure of the evening by his finely rendered piano solos, besides responding to a number of encores.

NOT SO MUCH TO FEAR FROM COUSIN MARRIAGES

"Cousin marriages are no longer thought of as something in themselves to be feared and avoided. We students of human genetics take one step farther and want to know first what kind of cousins they are. If they are the right kind, the children will have twice as good a chance of inheriting that rightness; it is when they are the wrong kind, carrying within themselves, hidden or visible, the seed of some evil heritage, and the problem of doubling that wrongness comes in, that the danger signal must go up."

This, according to Dr. Pauline H. Dederer, professor of zoology at Connecticut college, is only one of the scientific conclusions that are pointed out to the young women of that institution who are very much occupied with the task of fitting themselves for the normal life of the normal woman.

It is the course in genetics, limited to upper classmen, where the question of heredity is brought up for consideration, with special emphasis on human genetics, that the students have laid before them facts which may well influence their whole future life. For though the love-lorn may not always be subject to the cold influence of reason, it is difficult to see how any intellectual trained young woman should not bring to the consideration of her marriage such important facts as the proved one of the inheritance of characteristics. Especially when she has studied not only the general results on the genetical research of important scientists, but when she also knows at first hand something of these minute bodies known as chromosomes which reside in the reproductive cells of plants and animals, and are the determiners, according to modern scientific theory, of the characters which appear in the adult.

Knowledge About Heredity

"To doubt heredity, the passing on of qualities and characteristics, inherent, not acquired, from parent to child," says Miss Dederer, "is like doubting the existence of germs. It is important for us to have this fact in hand, for definite knowledge about heredity is bound to influence much of our social procedure, our personal selection of mates, for instance—and the more the better here—as well as the treatment of all that train of social evils such as criminality, insanity, and feeble-mindedness. What we are going to do about all this depends upon what we know about it. We want to send out our girls with as large an awareness as we can give them of the facts which the scientists have placed in our hands, with the full implication of what those facts may mean as they are applied in the individual life of any man or woman who expects either to fulfill the functions of parents or to have a part in the solution of social problems.

To Improve Stock

"We point out to our students that the problem before everyone who, from the dawn of human life to the present day, has planted and reared, has been to improve the stock with which he started. Our progress is steadily away from the old hit-or-miss method to the more modern scientific one. I do not mean, of course, that we hold the full secret of life in our hands, but we are pushing our knowledge back step by step. Since 1910, Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan and his students at Columbia university have shown by experiments that new characteristics are preceded by changes in the chromosomes residing in the reproductive cells. These changes we call mutations. Dr. Herman J. Muller, a former co-worker of Dr. Morgan, now of the University of Texas, has gone further and by means of the X-ray has produced these mutations which in turn produced new characteristics. Dr. Muller also succeeded by the use of the X-ray in speeding up the rate of mutation 150 times that which nature ordinarily uses.

Human Genetics

"But it is when we come to that part of the course which concerns itself with human genetics that our young women are especially interested. We study the inheritance of certain physical characters in man, taking pedigree charts, showing the inheritance of such traits as eye and skin color, cataract, color blindness and hemophilia or tendency to bleeding, a conspicuous characteristic of one of the royal families of Europe. The reason why certain characteristics skip generations is understood, and the equal importance of the hereditary contribution from each parent, also, for example, why more men than women are color blind, why there are apt to be only brown-eyed children in families where one parent is brown-eyed and the other blue-eyed.

Inheritance of Mental Traits

"We study also what is known as the inheritance of mental traits and qualities. This is the branch of genetics of which least is known. But we get light on this vexed question of heredity and environment from the psychologists also, such distinguished women as Dr. Leta Hollingworth and Dr. Catherine M. Cox in their study of gifted children and the childhood of geniuses having made a real contribution.

"So our girls go out from the course having acquired a critical faculty on questions pertaining to heredity, based on a knowledge of the salient facts, an interest in human genetics, and a realization of its importance in relation to psychological and social problems. These will be of value to them no matter in what sphere they find themselves."

LAUNDRY CREDITORS SEEK POSSESSION OF PROPERTY

Harry Davidson of New Haven and Samuel Cohen of Hartford, creditors of the bankrupt estate of the Sunshine Steam Laundry, of this city, put in a bill of reclaimer Monday for all the property contained in a conditional bill of sale, and Attorney Henry L. McGuire, referee in bankruptcy, has denied them authority of possession, ruling that property is now a part of and belongs to the bankrupt estate.

Recently Referee McGuire denied an application of Davidson for the appointment of a temporary receiver to continue the business.

PUNY CHILDREN NEED COD LIVER OIL VITAMINS

Your doctor prescribes Cod Liver Oil for your frail, backward, listless boy or girl because it contains Vitamins A and D.

Without these health-building Vitamins, the bad tasting oil that children hate to take would be useless.

And now, Mother, when you are absolutely sure of getting these magical Vitamins in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, we know that you won't toture them with obnoxious liquid Cod Liver Oil any more.

For the able chemists in McCoy's Laboratory are extracting these precious Vitamins from pure, Norwegian, Vitamin-tested Cod Liver Oil and putting them in sugar-coated tablets that children love to take.

Two of these tablets are equal to one teaspoonful of pure Cod Liver Oil and can be taken winter and summer, and any progressive pharmacist will tell you that for every ailment, sickness, rundown or underweight condition for which Cod Liver Oil is prescribed that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets are equally as good.

And that means for grown-ups as well as children—Take your Vitamins straight—60 tablets, 60c at any drug store in America.

Why Fat Men Stay Fat

"The trouble with me and I guess this applies to 99% of the men who are putting on weight I didn't have the energy or "pep" to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds until I got that "Kruschen feeling."

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Lee & Osgood Co. or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world. It's the Little Daily Dose that does it.

PAIN GETS BETTER BACK FEELS FINE after Musterole—soothing, safe—is applied once every hour for 5 hours. You should even feel better after first application.

SHIRES MUST CLEAR HIMSELF OR BE BARRED FROM BASEBALL FOREVER

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Unless Charles Arthur "The Great" Shires clears his name of charges that he engaged in one "fixed" professional boxing match and had attempted another, he may find himself barred forever from organized baseball.

The White Sox management, which has remained silent throughout the great one's invasion of the cauliflower ranks, today it clear it would not talk about a 1930 contract with the punch slinging first baseman until he had gained a clean bill from the Michigan and Illinois state athletic commissions, which are investigating charges against him.

"Shires must clean up those charges before the White Sox will be ready to discuss a contract with him," said Secretary Harry Grabiner of the South Side club. "Too, he has to settle up his suspension which resulted from his last fist fight with former Manager Russell Blackburne last season. I have no date with Shires and have not seen him. When the time comes, we will be ready to handle the situation."

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, has refused to discuss the Shires' case beyond the intimation that he would have something to say if the charges against Shires were upheld by either the Michigan or Illinois state athletic commissions. However, it is known that he is none too well pleased over the affair.

Meanwhile, Shires was ready to tell his side of the story before the commissions. He is slated to appear before the Illinois commission tomorrow in an attempt to prove that his first professional match with Dangerous Dan Daly, of Cleveland was on the square. Daly said to took a "dive" for Shires because he said he feared he would be "taken for a ride" if he failed to yield to a demand for a "dive" which he said was made by Shires' representative.

General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois commission, has served Shires with a summons to appear before him tomorrow afternoon. Promoter Jim Mullen of Chicago, who conducted the Shires-Daly match, said he would insist that Daly made the charges before the commission in person.

Shires already is under the ban of the Michigan commission on a charge that a fake fight was attempted at Detroit between him and Battling Criss. The Michigan commission, however, has granted him a re-hearing at Lansing, Thursday.

SMOKE SHOP NOSES OUT ELKS TEAM BY ONE PIN

At the Elks alleys last night one of the closest and most spectacular matches ever rolled on these alleys resulted in a one-pin victory for the Smoke Shop over the Elks five, the score being 2,278 to 2,277. Donegan of the Smoke Shop carried off the honors, taking high single with 170 and high total with 466. He was closely followed by Budnick, who had a high string of 169 and a high total of 463.

The Elks took the first string, 744 to 740, but the Smoke Shop took the next string, 780 to 775, giving them a one-pin lead which they retained when the third string was a tie at 758. The scores:

GIANTS AND WHITE SOX NOT TO MAKE S. A. TOUR

HAVANA, Jan. 6—(AP)—The New York Giants and Chicago White Sox have no plans for a tour of South America at the close of the 1930 baseball season. John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, recently credited with statements that such an expedition was planned, today denied that he had announced such plans.

The Giants' leader called the report that he would direct a tour of the Latin-Americas "ridiculous."

GAMMA CLUB LOSES FIRST LEAGUE GAME IN TWO YEARS

The Gamma club's spotless two-year league record was besmirched last night by the Trinity Methodist team which defeated the Gammas 21 to 12 in a rough and tumble game in the Church league. This was the first defeat suffered by the Gammas since they entered the league. The champions were decidedly off form while the Trinity team was playing hard and brilliant basketball.

In the other game of the league, the Brothers of Joseph won handily over the Central Baptist team 28 to 16. Sherry featured the play for the Brothers. The summaries:

MISS TOWNSEND TO PLAY IN SQUASH TOURNEY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6—(AP)—Miss Anne B. Townsend of Philadelphia, captain of the all-American field hockey team for seven consecutive seasons and second in the middle states tennis rankings, and Mrs. George W. Wightman of Brookline, Mass., former national tennis champion, will compete in the women's second annual national squash racquets championships which will begin at the Merion Cricket club, here, February 3.

Miss Townsend is a newcomer to squash, having only taken up the game this season. Mrs. Wightman was runner-up to Mrs. William F. Howe, Jr., of Boston for the individual championship at Boston last season. Boston also won the honors in the team matches.

Mrs. C. C. Madeira, of Merion, who is in charge of the 1930 tourney says to date she has heard nothing from Mrs. Howe. Miss Eleonora R. Sears, widely known sportswoman of Boston, wrote Mrs. Madeira she "hoped to play," but was not certain.

Teams from Boston, New York, Greenwich, Conn., Ardsley-on-Hudson, Philadelphia and possibly Cedarhurst, L. I., are expected to compete for city honors.

FIELDS SCORES IMPRESSIVE VICTORY OVER ALGERIAN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6—(AP)—Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, scored an impressive victory over Alf Ros, French Algerian, in a slashing 10-round bout featuring the card at the Arena tonight. The title was not at stake. Fields scaling 147 3-4 and Ros, 152 1-4.

The fight was fast and furious throughout. Fields seemed to have little regard for Ros' reputation as a hard puncher and was ready to trade punches at every stage of the battle. Both were swinging for a knockout at the bell.

Harry Kid Brown, Philadelphia veteran, gained a ten round decision over Gaston Lecadre, of France, in the semi-windup. Brown weighed 137, Lecadre 133.

Danny Kramer, Philadelphia, 128, knocked out Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, O., 126, in the fourth round of their 10-rounder.

O'Dowd substituted for Pete Zivic, Pittsburgh.

UNIQUE BOWLING SCORES MADE ON THE ELKS ALLEYS

The other night four members of the Elks club were participating in a little friendly rivalry on the bowling alleys of the club with the result that four unique scores were made. Jim Purdon bowled 174 for a high string on the regulation pins, only to be closely followed by Dan Polsky who hit them for 169. Joe Budnick, who was in the foursome, bowled 99 without a strike or spare and his brother Saul had nine consecutive spares and wound up with a ten box for a score of 166.

SCOTT SEEMS MOST LIKELY TO BE SHARKEY'S OPPONENT AT MIAMI

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The figure that won't be downed, Lanky Phil Scott, of England, bobbed back into the picture today as the likeliest of all candidates to fight Jack Sharkey in Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.

The official picture, after hours of discussion and argument, represented Frank Bruen, the general manager at Madison Square Garden, and Jimmy Johnston, dapper, pint sized manager of the London fire ladie, at an impasse with Johnston uninterested in the proceedings and Bruen only luke warm to the idea anyway.

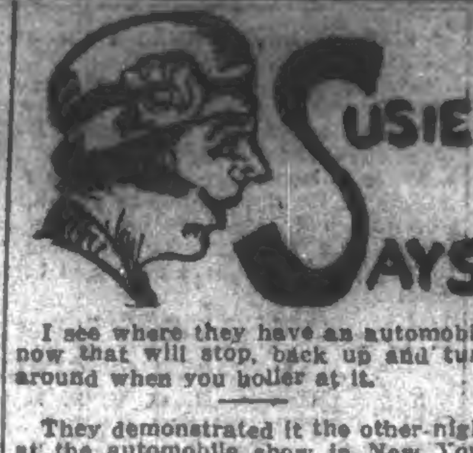
The actual situation, however, is entirely different. Bruen today offered the match to Scott for a flat 20 per cent. of the gate receipts whereupon Jimmy replied with a demand for a guarantee of $75,000 and the privilege of 25 per cent. of the proceeds. Scott's manager finally agreed to take a flat offer of 26 per cent.

Such summary dismissal of a controversy so full of publicity possibilities is hardly in keeping with the very best principles of ballyhoo, however, Johnston maintained the attitude that he would rather not bother with Sharkey in Miami, preferring to wait until next summer when the memory of the Englishman's hollow foul victory over Otto Von Porat will have been dimmed by time. The garden professes for the time being that it wants no part of Scott.

The conviction is growing, however, in the minds of both Bruen and his master, William F. Carey, that Sharkey cannot be turned from his determination to fight only Scott or Max Schmeling in the second annual duel of the tropics.

Without Sharkey the garden has decided that there would be no adequate reason for a Miami fight. Since Schmeling is not only in disgrace with the New York state athletic commission but is 4000 miles away in Germany, the list has narrowed down to Scott alone. A general agreement on that score probably will be announced officially this week. Scott, now visiting in England, is waiting a summons from Johnston.

The garden has one more idea in mind. It plans to build the supporting card from the remainder of the first heavyweight flight with negotiations under way to display Young Stribling, Tuffy Griffiths, Victorio Campolo, Paulino Uzcudun, and perhaps even Tommy Loughran, Otto Von Porat and Primo Carnera, along with Scott and Sharkey, if the shock does not seem likely to be too severe for one evening's entertainment.



I see where they have an automobile now that will stop, back up and turn around when you holler at it.

They demonstrated it the other night at the automobile show in New York and with no one in the car the auto did everything that it was told.

What a wonderful machine that would make for a lot of our Norwich drivers, not that they need one, at least not many of them. Most drivers, especially the women drivers, can talk faster than they can shift gears.

Now suppose that the sergeant of police, who was learning to drive when his car started to back down Elm street, had had one of these new fangled cars. He would have been all right for when he hollered, "Whoa, get up," the darned thing would have done just that.

Just imagine what a boon it would be to the women who have never learned to back within two feet of a curb. All they'd have to do would be to say "Back into the curb, old dear" and it would be done.

And wouldn't it be great for Traffic Officer Mike Carroll over on the Broadway corner. He could stay in that little booth all day long and just yell "Stop" and "Go" or "Back up to that curb" or "Come here" and he wouldn't have to blow his whistle or chase after drivers who had violated the rules. Pretty soft.

Just think what a great thing a car like that would be for the tired businessman. He could park his car anywhere on the block and after business hours all he'd have to do would be to stick his head out of the window and yell "Come here, car" and the old bus would amble up to the curb for him just like Old Dobbin did.

But they got to get these cars so that they know their own names 'cause just imagine what would happen if somebody went to call their car and every car on the street started to come. Boy, even Barney Keenan couldn't straighten out such a tangle.

But think of the thrill you'd get driving along the road at about sixty per and have some half-shot joker holler "Stop" at your car. The car would stop but it's an even bet that the occupants would keep on their way. Of course you could holler at his car, if it was that kind of a car.

I suppose after these cars become popular the owners instead of bragging about how fast they can go will be telling how far they can call their cars. Mr. John will go to the office some day and he'll breeze in and start telling about how knowing his car is.

He says to Mamie, the stenographer, "Say, Mame, that car of mine sure is a knowing car." Why this morning I came away and forgot to call it until I was halfway down here and then I just turned and called to it and believe me although I was half a mile away that car was right at my heels before I'd gone another block."

"The only think I noticed was that the fenders was a little jammed so I goes back to the garage and finds that I'd forgotten to unlock the garage doors. And do you know, that car had just bumped and bumped against those doors until it broke them right off the hinges, it was so anxious to get to me."

And Mame says, "Oh, that ain't nothing, my feller talks in his sleep and the other night he was dreaming about his car and he got to calling it and the first thing he knew it was knocking at his bedroom door."

BELL EASILY HAS BETTER OF HUAT

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Archie Bell, veteran Brooklyn bantamweight, easily outpointed Eugene Huat of France, in a ten round bout at the St. Nicholas arena tonight. Huat, making his bantamweight debut after a successful career as a flyweight, was outboxed all the way. Huat weighed 116 1-4; Bell 118.

At Champaign, Ill.: Illinois 13; Ohio weight, stoped Sammy Tisch of New York, in the third round of their ten round encounter, Gregorio took the first two rounds by a wide margin and then floored Tisch for a count of nine early in the third round. The referee then halted the battle. Gregorio weighed 121 3-4; Tisch 119 1-2.

F INJURIES DON'T INTERFERE ENS EXPECTS PIRATES TO FINISH HIGH

By ELLIS RAWNSLEY.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP)—What Pittsburgh's Pirates will do in the coming National league race will depend, it seems, on how successful Jewel Ens will be in preventing his men from playing mummy with the club physician's bandages.

Injuries alone, according to the Pirate management, kept the club from finishing on the up-swing of its seesaw with the Cubs last year. The plague started during spring training, nibbled at the squad all season, and then took up the job in earnest just in time to stop Ens, or so he thinks, from grabbing first place after taking over the team from Donie Bush near the end of the season.

There have been no unusual measures taken to dodge injuries, however. The super structure of the squad has been altered a little, but the foundation remains pretty much as last year, Traynor at third, Grantham at second, the Waners and Comorosky in the field Bartel at shortstop, and Grimes, Kremer and Petty, the Keystones' first pitching staff.

What sub-structure faults appeared last season the Pirate management hopes it has plugged by swapping Earl Sheely and some cash for Gus Suhr, lively first baseman of the San Francisco seals, and buying Al Bool from the Baltimore Internationals to dispute the receiving end of the battery with Ralph Hemsley, now rated the Pirate first string catcher. The veteran Hargreaves, according to the rumblings from Forbes field, is to go to any major leaguer wanting him, for a consideration.

Two recruits, John O'Connell and Hal Finney, described as "promising" fill the club's receiving line.

The pitching staff, however, is at once Ens' pride and greatest concern. With Grimes' thumb and Kremer's leg behaving, Jess Petty's southpaw working, and Larry French able to play on the fields rather than listen in from a hospital cot, Ens thinks the Pirates should have no trouble in getting on top of the heap. With Brame, Spencer and Swetonic as a seasoned relief squad, he's sure of it. Even at that, the Pirates have carefully gathered some minor league talent in Leon Chagnon and "Lil" Stoner, former Detroit rookies, both right handers, Andy Bednar, an untried righthander, and Ralph Erickson and Martie Lang, Omaha recruit, to bolster the southpaw staff.

Like Hemsley, Bartel may have to battle for his position at short. Charles Engle, former Memphis Southern association brilliant, once tried out by the Athletics, has been snared and his heavy hitting and smart base running already are being counted as Pirate assets. Stuart Clarke, Ben Sankey, and Floyd Young to fill the infield roster.

Of the nine outfielders, the Waners are "sure things," while Comorosky approaches that classification through plans to hold Ira Flagstead for emergency duties. Fred Brickell, a left handed batter, seems doomed to relief roles, too, though perhaps not to such a degree as the inevitable rookies, James Mosolof, Mel Ingram, Larmon Cox and John Stoneham, the last two likely to join the back-to-the-farm movement for more seasoning.

MCQUADE STARTS SUIT TO BE REINSTATED

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Declaring that the real dispute among the stockholders of the National Exhibition company, owners of the New York Giants baseball team, centers about his attempt to purchase the club, Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, today started suit to force Charles A. Stoneham, president, and John J. McGraw, manager, to reinstate him as treasurer of the company.

Isaac N. Jacobson, Magistrate McQuade's attorney, made public copies of the complaint after he said he had placed them in the hands of process servers to serve on Stoneham and McGraw.

The complaint sets forth that the magistrate is seeking to purchase the Giants but that Stoneham is attempting to "gouge" him for $600,000 more than the latter's stock is worth. Jacobson refused to disclose whether the magistrate is backed by William F. Kenny, wealthy contractor, whose purchase desire has previously been reported.

Kenny, who a few months ago bought an interest in the club, has started suit with other minority stockholders against Stoneham for a $500,000 accounting of sums the president is alleged to have borrowed from the National Exhibition company.

The plaintiffs, it is understood, admit that Stoneham paid back whatever he borrowed but they insist that interest on the loans should have been paid at the legal rate of 6 per cent instead of the bank rate of four per cent.

Magistrate McQuade has stressed the desire to go into all details of the alleged transactions and through his own suit and an investigation "we hope to run John J. McGraw and Charles A. Stoneham out of organized baseball," his attorney declared.

The magistrate, in his suit for reinstatement, asks for $10,000 a year from May 2, 1928 for salary he would have received as treasurer. He claimed that Stoneham forced him out as treasurer because he compelled the president to put up security and pay interest on the loans.

LEBANON

The Woman's Missionary society met at the home of Mrs. S. W. Throop Thursday. Plans and projects for the year were discussed and it is hoped that interest in missions both at home and abroad will be quickened and renewed. In the list of officers for the year, the report should have read, vice president, Mrs. Geo. MacDonald, instead of Mrs. S. W. Throop.

Sunday morning, at the First Congregational church, the organist was Mrs. F. N. Taylor in place of Mrs. F. A. Burgess who was attending a family re-union in Boston. Misses Helen Taylor and Julia Standish sang a duet. The subject of the sermon was "Fighting Failures." A good motto which the pastor gave for the New Year is "Keep on Keeping on."

The Forty-first annual reunion of the church was held Wednesday evening, January 1st. After an excellent supper, looked after by the table committee, the large gathering adjourned to the main room. After the devotional service the reports of the clerk and treasurer and the auxiliary societies were read and adopted. The reports were cheering and showed advance all along the line. After a brief address by the pastor the election of officers resulted as follows: Trustee for three years, F. A. Burgess; deacon, three years, F. N. Taylor; standing committee, two years, E. F. Nourse; music committee, three years, Mrs. Neva Hallen; auditors, Clarence Geer and Leslie F. Clarke; flower committee, Mrs. G. H. Hewitt, Mrs. E. F. Nourse; ushers and collectors, Lester Terrington, Harold Madley, Florence Pults, Shirley Cummings; table committee, Mrs. Luna Pitcher, Mrs. Nellie Pults, Mrs. Katherine Sweet, Mrs. Isah D. Nourse and Mrs. Edith Hewitt; committee of arrangements for next reunion, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Burgess; delegates to New London county conference, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie F. Clarke.

Rev. W. Ley attended a meeting of the ministers of New London county and vicinity at Trinity Episcopal church, Norwich, Friday.

There was no Endeavor meeting Sunday evening the 29th as there was a pageant at the Baptist church to which this church was invited in spite of the very stormy weather there was an attendance of nineteen from this society. There was no meeting Sunday evening, the 5th as the Franklin friends repeated the pageant which they gave Christmas Sunday morning and invited the neighboring churches to attend.

SULLIVAN, Mo.—(AP)—Rocky Ozar land may not be profitable for corn

It was an experiment for Riggi

With moderation
THE GRIM SPECTRE of that future shadow may be avoided

LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Fashion revels in the soft, enchanting curves of the modern figure. Don't sacrifice that graceful contour by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When tempted to treat yourself too well, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the modern, alluringly-rounded figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Never were contrasts more sharply drawn than in Joan Crawford's latest starring picture, "Untamed," starting at the Broadway tomorrow in which the lovely and exotic Joan plays the most vivid and unusual role of her varied career. She has been brought up in the jungles of Central America by her father, an oil prospector who stumbles onto some valuable prospects, and almost at the moment of clinching his wealth in selling out to a big combine, is murdered by a renegade white who has gone native. The girl has lived the free life of the jungles, untrammelled by "code" or other restrictions, taking what she wished out of life, giving nothing. Still dazed by her daddy's death and by her sudden wealth, she is taken to New York by her father's partner, to take her proper place in the world. On the boat she selects a young American, with whom she falls violently in love and determines to marry him. The complications following her plans lead to many exciting and dramatic situations, with comedy running riot abreast with the drama, applying jungle tactics to modern society which the fiery little tigress does not even attempt to understand, she runs into one difficulty after another, scratching and clawing her way out until ultimately she finds her happiness—but she is still as "Untamed" as ever and creates havoc in the exclusive circles of the Long Island elite.

JOAN CRAWFORD in "UNTAMED"

Robert Montgomery, remembered as one of the chums in "So This Is College," Ernest Torrence, Holmes Herbert, John Miljan, Tom O'Brien, Don Terry of "Me, Gangster" fame, Gwen Lee, Gertrude Astor and Grace Cunard are in the supporting cast with Miss Crawford. In addition to the latest Fox movietone news, the program includes a featured comedy, "Dangerous Females," with Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, surely two of the most "dangerous females" on the screen, with Burns and Allen, serving a spicy dish of "Lamb Chops," Irene Franklin, famous musical comedy and vaude star, and Allen's Playlets, a distinctive vitaphone novelty.

The time is growing short for the award of Hanover-Curland's gift, a Grebe radio, which will be presented to some patron of the Broadway by that popular radio firm on Thursday evening at the regular performance. With today's performances, the engagement of the thrilling drama, "Dynamite" is brought to a close.

Palace Theatre

Once again the Palace comes through with a great bargain program. This time it is another superlative double feature first-run talking bill, a bill which cannot be duplicated for entertainment value. Beginning tomorrow the Palace will show for three days, two new pictures, "The Sap," and "The Careless Age." Each is a show in itself and each has played to big houses in other cities all by itself, but the management of the Palace, in its desire to keep faith with the public, and in accordance with promises made when Warner Brothers took over the popular local playhouse, is insisting on giving these bargain bills every so often to its patrons.

LORETTA YOUNG

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young, that popular pair, appear together in "The Careless Age," a Vitaphone singing, talking and dancing feature which was adopted from the stage success, "Diversion." The story is as romantic as the music which accompanies it. It deals with the infatuation of a young boy for a sophisticated actress (Carmel Myers) until Loretta Young, lovely young English girl appears on the scene, and with triumph, makes the capture herself.

In "The Sap," which stars Edward Everett Horton, we find Bill Small, who is known as the "sap" of a small town in South Dakota. Every so often he is about to produce a great invention. In fact he is forever just on the verge of doing something great in the Edison line. But none of his ideas is practical and pretty nearly everyone laughs at him. Only his wife Betty keeps complete faith in his genius. How Billy by lots of luck and a little sense finally makes good, provides more comedy that we ever thought could be included even in a full-length feature. Alan Hale, Patsy Ruth Miller and Russell Simpson are aso included in the cast.

Today, for the last time, the Palace presents that superlatively acted Shakespearean comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew" with Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford starred in the title roles. It shouldn't be missed!

Breed Theatre

"Frozen Justice," Lenore Ulric's first talking picture, which Allan Dwan directed, opens at the Breed Theatre for three days beginning tomorrow. This Fox Movietone picture tells the story of a half caste northern princess who turns songstress in a Yukon dancehall. Miss Ulric is said to have created a character even more turbulent than either "Kiki" or "Lulu Belle."

The cast includes such distinguished players as Robert Frazer, Louis Wolheim, E. Brendel, George MacFarland, Charles Judels, Alice Lake, Gertrude Astor, Adele Windsor, Laska Winter, Ullrich Haupt and Tom Patricola.

MYSTIC

The yacht Aranel II which was launched recently from the Almac ship yard in the village, left Saturday for Florida, where her new owner, Ralph H. Rhodes of Star Island, Miami Beach, Fla., will take charge.

At the Sunday morning service at the Union Baptist church, Rev. L. J. Shepler preached on "New Men and New Year's." At 7:30 in the evening, there was a six-reel moving picture entitled "Deliverance," adapted by Robert E. Borradenci from the book of Prof. Fisher, "Prohibition at Its Worst and Still at Its Worst." The picture, a very interesting and authentic lesson on the prohibition question in America, is sent out by the Anti-Saloon league and the Connecticut Temperance society.

When Mystic Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F. met Friday evening in Odd Fellows hall, a supper was served to the 160 members and visitors present. The men of the lodge acted as waiters. It was also the date of the annual installation. The installing officers were District Deputy President Mrs. Elsie Gregory and suite, of Groton. The floor work was made more impressive by the drills of the guard team. The local lodge, represented by Mrs. Margaret Eldredge, presented Mrs. Gregory a set of crystal sherbet glasses in appreciation of her services. The past noble grand, Mrs. Lillian Lamb, was presented past grand jewels. The officers installed were: Noble grand, Mrs. Mary Gremley; vice grand, Mrs. Alberta Hammond; recording secretary, Mrs. Catherine Gilbert; financial secretary, Mrs. Hattie Grimes; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Eccleston; trustee for three years, Mrs. Lillian Price; warden, Mrs. Lillian Barden; conductor, Mrs. Dorothy Smith; chaplain, Mrs. Alice Lamb; inside guardian, Mrs. Inez Spicks; outside guardian, A. Stanton King; right supporter noble grand, Mrs. Anna Burroughs; left supporter noble grand, Mrs. Grace Murphy; right supporter vice grand, Miss Madeline Welmer; left supporter vice grand, Miss Betty Munro; past noble grand, Mrs. Lillian Lamb; musician, Miss Agnes P. Austin.

The Sunday school of Old Mystic Baptist church made a fine start for the new year, when they had 64 in attendance and a collection of $4.50. Reports of the secretary, treasurer and librarian were heard and accepted. The secretary's report showed that Miss Esther L. Caswell was the only member perfect in attendance for 1929. Mrs. H. O. Williams, Mrs. Maurice B. Caswell, Miss Agnes Austin and Miss Dorothy Beckwith, missed but one Sunday. This (Tuesday) evening, the January meeting of Plus Ultra Bible class is to be held with Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Williams. Members have been asked to bring old ties, as long as they are not worn much, to be given to Miss Marguerite Eldredge, to be used in her work as a missionary. Miss Eldredge returned last October to her home in New Haven, after three year's work in Haut Congo Belge, Africa. She is on a year's leave. Miss Eldredge is grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Frink and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Q. Eldredge of Old Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Turney of Old Mystic have moved to Greenmanville avenue, Mystic.

William Hopwood of Hope Valley, visited his parents in the village, recently.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church held the annual meeting last week, in the vestry. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Lucy Burdick; vice president, Mrs. Catherine Allyn; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Fannie Board; directress, Mrs. Emma Johnson. Following the business session, a covered dish supper was enjoyed.

This (Tuesday) evening the officers of Williams Woman's Relief corps are to be installed, at the meeting to be held in G. A. R. hall. The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War and the Grand Army members have been invited to be present.

The Parent-Teacher association of West Mystic school is to hold a whist and the committee in charge will be: Mrs. Minnie Miner, Mrs. Albert Ricker, Mrs. Walter Swan and Mrs. Henry Bitsie.

Miss Olive Smith, who has been ill at her home on Bank street for some time, is reported as somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice B. Caswell and daughter, Miss Esther Caswell visited Mrs. Caswell's father, William F. Babcock of North Stonington, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Moses Wilcox of Quiambaug, was in Westerly Sunday.

Mrs. Edna Coleman has returned to Lewisburg, Pa., after visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Wheeler and family.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church is to meet this (Tuesday) evening.

STOCK QUOTATIONS WERE IRREGULAR, WHILE TRADING HELD AT A LOW EBB

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The stock market continued to drift about today in the inconsequential eddies of professional trading. A few shares, notably the coppers, responded to favorable trade news, but price trends generally were narrow and indefinite. Trading still held at a low ebb, the day's turnover exceeding 2,000,000 shares by a scant margin.

A moderate rally during the morning was checked by bearish pressure, but trading turned extremely dull and operators for the decline withdrew before the close. Late in the day the general list rallied in sympathy with the copper shares, and closing quotations were steady to firm.

Further evidence of the January ease in money rates appeared in a sag in the call loan rate to 4 1-2 per cent, equalling the 1929 minimum, after renewals at 5. Foreign exchange rates continued to decline, making an early resumption of the outflow of gold improbable, although international bankers still predict a rise in the rates for leading European currencies as the month progresses, in keeping with the normal January tendency.

The outstanding item of the day's business news was a report from copper trade circles that some 50,000,000 pounds of the red metal had been taken for first quarter delivery within the past few days at the 18-cent price level. This quieted the uneasiness of recent weeks over the ability of producers to maintain to the 18-cent level, and the copper shares moved forward in the most emphatic manner in some time.

Woolworth's report of December sales, showing a decline of almost 3 per cent from December, 1928, was rather disappointing, but the facts that there was one less Saturday in the 1929 month, and that the weather was less favorable, make the comparison less displeasing than it appears at first glance. Such good tidings as came to hand included the inauguration of dividends on Hershey Chocolate common at the annual rate of $5.

In the coppers, Anaconda, Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, Granby, Howe Sound, Magma, Inspiration, and U. S. Smelting mounted about 2 to 4 points. Hershey Chocolate sold up more than 5 points on the dividend announcement, and closed up 3 1-2 net. Johns Manville mounted about 6 points in response to a favorable earnings estimate. Michigan Steel and Celotex were strong specialties, mounting about 7 points. American Machine & Foundry, Mathieson Alkali, Coty, International Combustion issues, National Biscuit, and Underwood Elliott also made substantial headway. The floating supply of Underwood Elliott is said to have become scarce since the dividend rate was raised to $5 a share, and accumulation is understood to be under way by interests close to the management. Fox Film A rallied 3 1-2 points in a large turnover, but closed up only 1-4 net. U. S. Steel fluctuated in a range of a couple of points and closed steady at 169 1-4.

Allied Chemical lost 6 points, Auburn Auto nearly 5, and American Tobacco, Beatrice Creamery, J. I. Case, General American Tank, Eastman Kodak, Gillette, Lima Locomotive, Pullman and Woolworth lost about 2 to 4 points. It was notable that several of the railway equipments and specialties strong last week encountered realizing. Information that there was no near prospect of a merger of Pullman and General American Tank depressed those shares. Motors eased a little, after the mild bull demonstration with the automobile show opening last week. Utilities and rails were dull. In the rails, such issues as Southern Pacific and Frisco did not appear on the tape at all.

Commodities moved in narrow ranges. Wheat was a little firmer in response to a decrease in the visible supply and renewed export demand. Cotton sagged moderately.

In the sagging foreign exchanges, sterling cables were quoted at $4.87 3-8, off 3-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Correct belief that the United States wheat visible supply total would show a liberal reduction did a good deal to lift wheat values today. The curtailment of 2,580,000 bushels, however, was somewhat less than many traders had looked for, and price gains failed to hold well. News about Russian wheat export sales received less notice today than of late, fresh developments indicating that Russia will ship small quantities only.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-8c to 1-2c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1-8 at 1-4c off to 1-8c up, oats unchanged to 1-8c down; and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Helping to lift the wheat market was the fact that North American wheat export business today was estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels, with Portugal, Belgium and Holland named as purchasers and with numerous additional bids noted at close to a working basis. Besides, last week's shipments over seas from the United States and Canada showed 2,000,000 bushels enlargement as compared with the previous week. On the other hand, the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed a surprise increase of 1,342,000 bushels for the week, notwithstanding that world shipments were comparatively meagre, hardly 10,000,000 bushels.

Predictions of a cold wave threatening possible damage to the United States winter wheat crop received considerable notice today among friends of higher prices. In this connection one of the foremost crop experts here said mild temperatures of late had melted the snow covering, and had left the top soil in a soggy condition. With sap circulating in the plants, he asserted, damage can develop should a severe drop in temperature come suddenly instead of gradually. Meanwhile the official forecast pointed to mercury as low as ten degrees under zero tonight as far north as northern Iowa.

Corn and oats prices were easy as compared with wheat. Talk was heard that cold weather would tend to enlarge the movement of the corn crop to terminal markets.

Provisions were inclined to sag owing to downturns in the value of hogs.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Treasury receipts for January 3 were $5,571,416.64; expenditures $5,819,158.88; balance $168,346,325.00.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed barely steady, 3 to 11 points lower; spot quiet; middling 17.05.

The daily report of the New York Federal Reserve bank showed no imports nor net change in the stock of earmarked gold.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Prices on the New York curb market showed an upward tendency today, but the market continued to lack leadership, and the rallies did not get very far. Trading was rather dull, due in part, to the growing exodus of floor traders, who have been providing most of the activity, for winter vacations in the south and elsewhere.

American Superpower, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, and Niagara & Hudson Power, four of the leading public utilities, closed with only fractional gains. Some fresh buying came into this group, however, on the publication of the United States supreme court decision in the Baltimore Street railway case, upholding the proposed increase in fare to 10 cents, and defining "a fair return" on public utility investments. Allied Power rallied 3 1-2 points. Public Service of Northern Illinois, which has not sold for several weeks, broke 165 points on one sale of 25 shares.

Increased activity was noted in the motor group. Stutz, which sold as low as $1 a share on the recent announcement that an application had been made for a receivership, rallied to 2 5-8 and closed at 2 3-8 for a net gain of more than 1 point on reports that the receivership had been averted. Ford and Durant improved fractionally, but further heaviness cropped out in Ford of Canada A, which lost 1 3-4 points net.

A rally of more than 8 points in Newmont Mining received its impetus from the revival of activity and strength in the copper stocks on the "big board," which, in turn, was based on heavy sales of the red metal to domestic consumers. Speculative activity in the oils centered largely in Indian Territorial, which advanced 4 1-2 points in response to reports of new discoveries on its Oklahoma properties, and to a revival of activity and strength in Louisiana Land & Exploration.

Investment trust and trading corporation shares were mixed. Blue Ridge convertible and Lehman scoring moderate gains, while Goldman Sachs and Ungerleider Financial lost ground. Deere & Co. broke 25 points on a few sales and American Cigar lost 5 more points of its recent recovery.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(P)—The trend of interest rates was downward today, but bond prices, after an encouraging start, ran into a dull market and many forenoon gains disappeared in the later hours. As a whole, however, the list was firm, and the easier tone of money was reflected in a narrow advance by the United States governments.

Call funds were in plentiful supply at the renewal rate of 5 per cent, and the charge fell to 4 1-2 shortly after noon, with money available outside at 4 per cent. Time accommodations commanded 4 3-4, a shade below the recent figures.

One of the day's feature was the movement of the French government bonds. Both the 7 1-2s and the 7s exceeded their 1929 highs on good buying support, but the rally did not hold and the later obligations finished a point below the Saturday close. German loans, both government and corporate, were moderately strong throughout the session. The foreign group in general proved to be in considerable favor.

Speculative and semi-speculative domestic corporation bonds particularly industrials and specialties, enjoyed an upward turn. A few foreign sugars, which suffered in the recent year-end tax selling, were in this group, which also included Indiana Limestone 6s, Hoe & Company 6 1-2s, Florida East Coast 5s, National Radiator 6 1-2s, and Pathe 7s. The gains ran from 1 to 3 points.

Railroad mortgages led the early uptown, but were mixed at the close. With net changes small and gains and losses well balanced. Utilities behaved similarly.

Convertibles ruled steady during most of the day and then softened. American Telephone 4 1-2s declined 1-4, Alleghany 5s of 1944, 1-2, and American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s, 1. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s gained a point.

NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER REPORTS CONFERENCE WITH C. G. OFFICIALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—The city council held a session of two hours this evening. Councilor Miner asked that the budget be kept down so that there should be no increase in taxes this year. He saw no reason for an increase in overhead costs and under the existing conditions he wanted the city's expenses kept down where they were last year.

City Manager Holt reported on the work done in Bates woods, to provide employment for idle men. He said the number of men employed was 35 to 40, mostly clearing away brush and working on Coleman street, which is to be extended. That is close to Bates wood. He stated that there is no more destitution than usual this winter.

The committee on administration had no recommendation to make as to a successor to Councilor Murray but will have a meeting next Wednesday evening to decide.

Ernest Walton, of the trustees of the Ocean avenue chapel, represented them for the extension of Stanners street. A portion of their land would be sold. The city has an option on it that expires tomorrow and the price is $1,500. Property owners, whose land would be affected, think the price too high and refuse to pay for it. The taking of the land by condemnation proceedings was suggested, but not acted upon.

W. Z. White reported an audit of Tax Collector Alexander's account, claiming that all the money the city was entitled to had been paid it.

Only seven applications for building permits were received tonight, the average heretofore being about 20.

The city voted to buy 600 cubic yards of soft coal and cinders for 99 cents a cubic yard. The bids ranged up to $1.50 and 2,000 yards of bank gravel at $1.07. The bids on the latter ran as high as $2 a yard.

The bonds of several city officers were approved.

The director of finance notified the council that water bills amounting to $2,367.53 of the two hospitals and the parochial school were due. The city's bookkeeping system requires that these accounts be taken care of either by omission or payment.

City Manager Holt reported on a conference with the coast guard officials. He said that the blueprints of the land and the buildings had been prepared, but there was some question now as to crossings at grade and overhead. The government wants to be exempted from any liability should accidents occur. He said everything would be smoothed out in a few weeks.

There has been a question of where the street line is on Ocean avenue. The city has made a survey following the Myers survey and it is claimed that property owners are encroaching on the city's land. Mr. Holt said that the state had not yet established a line there. The list of taxpayers is to be published because of an increase in the assessed valuation.

Jessie Rippin and Annie Shea gave notice of claims for damages. The former was hit by the limb of a tree falling and the latter by falling on a sidewalk.

In reply to requests for a statement of the state of the suit of the city against the Pequot Beach Co., the claim being an encroachment upon the street, City Manager Holt reported that the decision was against the city and an appeal was taken to the supreme court. That appeal will be argued next April.

Annabelle Douglas, through her son, Walter L. Douglas, withdrew her offer to the city, of land, corner of Truman and Blackhall streets.

Officers and men of the Coast Guard sent greetings to the city of New London and the city manager was ordered to acknowledge this.

Richard Rubin, who conducts a soft drink manufactory on Hamilton street, obtained permission to erect an addition to his property there. Now he finds that he has been ordered to stop work as he is encroaching on city land to the extent of 19 inches. Through counsel tonight, an appeal was made for his relief by the council. The matter was referred to the city manager and director of law for report.

Mayor Twomey called attention to the condition of Montauk avenue and said that it was such that the public utilities commission are to be asked to come in and view the tracks of the Connecticut Co. which have sunk and made the highway very uneven.

Mayor Twomey reported that the Connecticut Power Co. is establishing a policy of extending its service pipes only to the curbing instead of to the property line and asked that the city manager take this matter up with the power company.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered suspension of the drivers' licenses of Peter Dyke, U. S. Coast Guard, and Michael DePaulo, 78 Shaw street. DePaulo was the driver of an automobile that ran down and injured Traffic Officer William Riordan several weeks ago. The officer sustained injuries from which he has only recently recovered. The officer resumed duty last week.

CORNELL HOUSEBOAT STONED BUT OWNER NOT ABOARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6.—Believing that Boatswain's Mate Alexander C. Cornell, who resides aboard his houseboat in Shaw's cove with his wife, was on board the boat the "Wild Goose"men, presumably of the youthful type, attacked the boat with a fusillade of stones at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Instead of Cornell, the member of the crew of the patrol boat 290, United States Coast Guard, that directed the machine gun fire on the "Black Duck," rum-runner off Narragansett bay a week ago last Sunday morning, killing three of the crew and maiming the other member, being on the houseboat, there was no one there but Mrs. Cornell. Her husband has remained at the coast guard reservation since the killings. The houseboat is moored at the rear of No. 100 Howard street and a score or more stones were showered on the boat. Mrs. Cornell did not make a report of the affair until this afternoon when she acquainted the officials at the coast guard station of the unpleasant experience. Tonight the houseboat was towed to the state pier so as to prevent Mrs. Cornell being molested further.

The students of the public schools resumed their studies today. Students of Connecticut College for Women started arriving in New London this afternoon and tonight so as to be on hand when studies are resumed at the college tomorrow.

An Essex sedan was stolen in Westerly tonight and the state police and New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for it. The auto carries Rhode Island registration 31645.

Yates, submarine base and Anna W. Zajance, 29 Summer street, a factory worker.

WESTERLY

TOWN COUNCIL HEARS DEPARTMENT REPORTS

President Horace E. Burdick presided at the January session of Westerly town council Monday morning, all councilmen being present with the exception of Councilman Isaac G. Smith who is ill.

Edwin Barber, Jr., sealer of weights and measures, came before the council with the request that his department expend $48 for the purchase of 1, 2, 3, and 4 gallon measures of a shape similar to a 5 gallon measure purchased two years ago. Their use was necessitated by the measuring of gasoline pumps. The council not only voted for Mr. Barber to make these purchases but also informed him that it would do what it could to see that a suitable location, free from disturbance, would be given the town of Westerly large measuring balances, used for testing weights up to fifty pounds.

Current bills to the amount of 1-12 of the budget figures were voted paid, where the balances have been wiped out, the remainder to be carried over to next month. Police bills were voted paid.

On the request of the American Red Cross for re-imbursement for the burials of deceased soldiers, the council had already named a committee, Maj. John F. Datson, and the matter was referred for his approval. During this discussion it developed that there was a burial ground off John street, where at least one Civil war soldier was buried and which is now being desecrated, some of the stones already having been removed. Town Clerk Col. Everett E. Whipple and Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown was named a committee by the council to investigate such occurrences and have such practices discontinued.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown reported eight arrests as follows: Bastardy, 1; breaking and entering, 2; larceny, 4; reveling, 1. Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health, reported three cases of diphtheria, and two cases of septic sore throat. Building Inspector Thomas Wills reported 23 applications received. Seven are for frame buildings, 15 for brick and stone and one for additions or alterations. The report showed that 19 permits were granted, six for frame buildings, 13 for brick and stone. Thirty inspections were made. Miss Mary Randall, director of Mothers' Aid, reported that for 1929 six families were aided by the department, five widows and 22 children being assisted. The total amount expended was $5,127.10 and taxi hire and supplies totaled $27.79. John Russell Oppy, with the approval of Chief of Police Brown was voted a special constable, without pay. Thomas Wills, under the Rhode Island state law was re-appointed building inspector. Sheffield Green, following a request from R. I. Agricultural Commissioner Harry Lewis, was appointed a forest fire warden. Everett Barns was re-appointed a tree warden. Introduced by Councilman Archie Meikle, a member of the police committee, a discussion resulted regarding the issuance of licenses to junk dealers, it being found that much stolen material had found its way to them. It developed that a Providence junk dealer had made the purchase of material turned down by a local man. The license of but a New London out of town dealer was found in the files.

Following the continuances of the hearing on the application of S. H. Davis for John H. Austin, on the extension of a business area 1700 feet southwesterly along the Noose Neck Hill road from the Meeting House bridge over the Pawcatuck river, Oct. 15, Nov. 19 and Dec. 10th a recommendation from the zoning board was received that it be not granted. The council continued action for a personal view.

This (Tuesday) forenoon representatives of the state board of public roads will be in Westerly to confer with members of the town council and interested citizens relative to a better marking of Westerly through highways, indicating those to New York, Newport, etc.

About 2 p. m. Monday at the junction of Broad and Main streets, a Buick sedan driven by Amos Gallup of Lower Pawcatuck and a Chrysler roadster owned and driven by Charles A. Sherman of Westerly collided. The Sherman auto was going westerly along Broad street being followed by the Gallup car. The operator of the Chrysler waited for a car to pass which was moving easterly after crossing the Pawcatuck river bridge. When the car was started to turn down Main street the Buick crashed into the left side, splitting the running board and denting the mudguards. Patrolman George L. Madison investigated. As neither car was proceeding rapidly and both drivers had insurance, no court summons was issued. A dented bumper was the only damage to the Buick.

A two and a-half ton underground electric transformer was unloaded from a low gear in Dixon square Monday afternoon by men in the employ of the Narragansett Electric Light Co. of Providence and lowered through a manhole to be connected up with electric underground lines in the South County Public Service Co. conduits. CAPT. ROLLIN RATHBUN'S RECORDS WITH ROD AND SPEAR

Rollin Rathbun in his boat Come Again is seen every day on the flats a stone's throw from the town dock, jabbing away at the eels. Capt. Rathbun is rated one of the luckiest fishermen, also holds the smelts record for the season of 1929, when Rathbun caught 12,000, the largest one weighing 12 lbs, and which was 17 inches long. It was so large that a family of two enjoyed a Sunday dinner off it. A picture was taken of it and was sent to his Uncle Jake Patton in Scotland. His uncle lives in a small fishing town where only six boats tie up at the long point dock. Uncle Patton never saw a smelt in his life so not long ago the picture was sent to him, 4,000 miles away. A letter came telling about the fish and the whole town almost had heart failure to see a Connecticut smelt. It was put in the local papers as a great story; it was on every tongue at the street corners. The number in that town is 30 people, with 15 cats, 17 dogs and 100 rabbits.

When over clamming recently, Lucky Rathbun got a large pail full of Palmer Cove clams. The largest round clam that ever came out of a mud hole, he got it and at first he thought it was a log. He was all winded from digging as it took over 45 minutes before the huge clam was out of its hole. The monster clam was put on a scale that never told a lie. It was at Leo McGrath's market on Main street. It read to the few fishermen sitting around the stove telling whale stories where it took three weeks to make a trip and an old salt said on the old square-rigger golden rod a crew of ten looked like the Smith brothers cough drop twins, without a shave and got 6 whales, making the record in Edgartown, Mass., wipe their glasses off, the huge clam weighed, shell and all 3 1-8 lbs, enough meat to make 7 Lunch-house clam chowders. The shell was given to Leo Harris to paint a picture of the North dock with all the boats drying out their sails on the inside of the shell.

But to go back to eeling. Day after day Rathbun, who is only 29, will jab away whistling to himself and his fishing mates say "Happy Capt. Rathbun! He got 75 eels in one day! He shipped one flour barrel of eels to Fulton market in four days bringing a good price and the largest eel Capt. Jabed Rollin got weighed 8 pounds." When he cleaned it his knife hit something and he found a string of white pearl beads in good shape. They had not been lost long. The skin was given to Orando Clark, to make a belt. Capt. Rathbun is going to keep the string of pearls until the owner claims them. It was reported that a young lady from Vermont was out rowing to Mystic Island, bent over the boat to see a blue shell crab, swimming under water, and the beads fell from her neck. "If this fair maiden from the hills of Vermont wants that string of pearls she will have to call at my office," the smiling captain said. "They are sure worth a few dollars and that eel did not know what he had got from the bottom of Noank harbor. He might have thought it was a string of early June peas!"

Capt. Rathbun has the honor of catching the largest blackfish from Long Island sound. He had some job to haul in the fighting fish. It was not until his watch read 1 hour and six minutes, for the fish put a deep cut in his right hand from the line that held the monster. The cut required two stitches. That fish weighed 18 lbs and was 7 inches wide. It brought our rod-and-line fisherman, Black Jack Rathbun a $2 dollar bill. Maxson Langworthy claims that if Capt. Rollin put a 5 and 10 cent sock on his hook he would sure catch fish. Another stunt he has done at the town dock is that he can take a clam or oyster between his violin cases and open them with one hand.

He is the only one in Noank who can take a rifle, stand 25 feet away and shoot an apple off Howard Brown's head. He did that also; then Howard will hold a cigar in his mouth and Steady-aim Rathbun will shoot the end off the cigar. Howard Brown says William Tell with a bow and arrow took an apple off a man's head. Capt. Rathbun also holds the underwater swimming record by staying under the longest. He stays under the salt water for 11 minutes, without coming up for air, but his face was red as an apple. At first they thought he was sunburned.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE ON KIDNAPPING CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 6— After being held at the county jail in Brooklyn since a few days before Christmas on a kidnapping charge, James Cobb of Yantic was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to the charge. Several hours after taking Miss Lasch into his car here Cobb was arrested by Hartford police. Miss Lasch was in the car when he was apprehended.

DESCRIBES TRAINING FOR MENTALLY DEFECTIVE CHILDREN

The care and training of mentally defective children at the Mansfield Training school for feeble minded was the subject of an interesting and enlightening talk at the weekly meeting of the Contact club, Monday noon, at the Wauregan hotel. The talk was given by Dr. Henry B. Ballou, assistant superintendent of the hospital. In his talk Dr. Ballou said that at the present time there are accommodations for 920 children, but a recent appropriation has been made for two new dormitories and when these are completed the school will provide for nearly 1,200. Efforts are made to classify these patients and study them so as to determine just what ability they possess in order that they may be trained to make the best use of such attainments as they may have with view to sending as many as may be possible back into the community, either to their own homes or places of employment.

The school is supervising more than 100 children away from the institution. At Christmas time 178 children were at their homes or away from the school.

Dr. Ballou said that feeble minded children are classified in three groups —idiots, imbeciles and morons. Idiots have a mental age up to three years; imbeciles have a mental age of from 3 to 7 years and morons a mental age of from 7 to 12 years. There are relatively few in the communities of low grade idiots and imbeciles as compared with the number of morons. Each of these classes were dwelt upon separately by the speaker.

The speaker told of the regular school department maintained at the institution up to the fourth grade. There are eight teachers there, he said. Besides grade work which is given to all of school age, there are domestic science classes in which the girls are taught to cook, wait on tables and do all kinds of general housework. For the boys there is manual training, where they are taught use of tools and do various kinds of work with hands. There is also a sewing room for girls where they are taught all kinds of plain sewing. When they become sufficiently efficient at this, they are transferred to the regular sewing room for older girls.

Dr. Ballou was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk. Alexander Pasnik was the song leader and Frederick Geer presided at the piano. Willard P. Haugh, chairman of the programme committee, introduced the speaker.

BREAK AT SELLAS SPA AND TWO GAS STATIONS

Thieves broke into Sellas Spa between closing time Sunday night and Monday morning and got away with about $5 in change left in the store. The break was the second at the spa in little over a month. The thieves gained entrance to the store by breaking a pane of glass in a rear window. The cash register was removed from its accustomed place to the rear of the store before it was rifled. The police are conducting an investigation.

There were two other breaks in the city over the week end. Both were at gasoline stations, but nothing was taken from either station. Sometime Saturday night the Socony gas station at Burnham square was broken into and the same night the gasoline station next to Pulaski hall on North Main street was also broken into. Glass in windows was broken in each case. The thieves were probably frightened away before they had a chance to gather up any loot. The breaks were reported to the police.

Trolley Scraped Automobile

A touring car driven by Sterrill M. Chase of 29 Ward street, had its left forward mudguard crumpled up on Franklin street about 4:30 Monday afternoon when it was scraped by a trolley car bound for Franklin square. The automobile was headed up Franklin street at the time of the accident, which was a short distance above the Bath street corner. Mr. Chase claimed that his automobile was standing still when the car hit it but the trolley operator claimed the automobile was in motion.

Moody; senior vice president, Rachel Bogue; junior vice president, Ella E. Smith; chaplain, Annie B. Turner; secretary, (appointed) Jennie C. Randall; treasurer, (appointed) Pauline H. Budzeck; patriotic instruction, Beatrice Wilson; historian, Minnie Johnson; conductor, Annie L. Wilson; guard, Sarah Ramage; assistant guard, Muriel S. Greene; musician, (appointed) Myra A. Waters.

At a previous meeting the family Christmas party was held with R. S. Griswold camp, No. 6, U. S. W. V., and their families as guests.

Supper consisting of baked beans, salads, rolls, pickles, cake, coffee and ice cream was served at 7 o'clock by the executive committee, Hattie Woodmansee, chairman.

Griswold camp; America; pledge to flag, Laura Elvy Bogue, (age 3); Christmas poem, Earl Wilson; Christmas, Dorothy Rathbun; musical selections, George H. Rathbun, an old time fiddler; My Teddy, Howard Randall; poem, Eileen Rathbun; rhyme, Laura Bogue; musical selections, Mr. Rathbun.

Crowded Meeting at Y. M. C. A.

All available seats including bleachers seating a hundred were occupied and a number stood through the service at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. After the scripture reading and prayer, the large audience joined in singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The first part of the remarkably impressive moving picture, "White Sister" was shown and its lesson was distinctly uplifting. During the service Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "Whenever we think of the word "white" we are apt to think of purity in the life of the heroine of the in our national flag signify purity, and when we read the title of this picture, "White Sister" we naturally think of purity in the life of the heroin of the picture story. Nothing is more important than that we shall be pure. Pure in motive, pure in act, pure in word, and you cannot be pure in your life unless your thoughts are pure. We read in the beatitudes, the significant sentence, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God," and Paul writing to Timothy wrote these two significant words, "Keep thyself pure," and a more recent writer wrote these words, "My strength is as the strength of ten, because my heart is pure." May God help us all to be pure and true and noble in life."

CONTINUED SERIES IN PENTECOSTAL ANNIVERSARY

The second meeting, Monday evening at the Norwich Town Congregational church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor, had for its speaker, Rev. Harry P. Brothwell, pastor of the Third Baptist church, Norwich. The meeting opened informally with the hymn, Come Thou Almighty King, Miss Bernice Underwood playing the piano accompaniment. This was followed by another hymn, The Shadows of the Evening Hours. Rev. Bailey, who presided, after a few remarks of welcome, offered prayer, then the hymn, Let Your Lower Lights be Burning, was sung. After the hymn Gallilee was sung prayer was offered by Rev. David A. Pitt, D.D., of the Central Baptist church, and Rev. Percy Kilmister of the First Baptist church, Rev. Joseph Cooper of Trinity Methodist church, Rev. Charles E. Reeves, concluding with the Lord's Prayer in unison and the hymn, O Thou, Who Hearest, and one stanza of Nearer My God to Thee. This was followed by Rev. Mr. Brothwell's message of the evening on "The Abiding Presence of the Spirit of Christ." The impressive and helpful address was taken from John 14:16. Rev. Mr. Brothwell said in part:

"All human life needs to be spiritualized. When the life is spiritualized it is of exceptional value both to God and to man. Jesus declared that such a spiritualizing would take place and He described that force not as an abstract influence but as a personality. Jesus declared Him and promised to send Him. The first evidence of His arrival given to the world happened at Pentecost, when in one meeting 3,000 lives were spiritualized. The evidence that such a happening took place is undeniable. The world has been shaken to its moral foundations as a result. This spirit of truth, this spirit of Christ, this divine personality abides. There is a way open for each one to discover Him and receive His spiritualizing power. That way is the way of prayer. Prayer is our method for making contact with this great spiritualizing power. Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you. That power is waiting for us, it abides. Every prayer meeting should be a power station because the spirit of God is waiting to flood our souls. A prayer-filled life is a spirit-filled life. A spirit-filled life is the true life. The spirit abides waiting to give us this life. Let us make contact."

There was a large representation of members from the other churches uniting in these services during this Week of Prayer, all of the pastors of the several churches attending the gathering numbering 150 or more. At the conclusion of the helpful talk by Rev. Mr. Brothwell, all heads were bowed in silent prayer. "Filled With the Spirit" is to be the topic for the meeting this (Tuesday) evening at the Third Baptist church, Greeneville. Rev. Mr. Bailey is to be the speaker. After prayer by Edwin Hill of Norwich Y. M. C. A., and the hymn, Holy Ghost With Light Divine, Rev. Frederick C. Baker pronounced the benediction.

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CONDEMNATORY REMARKS IN HOUSE ON DRY LAW KILLINGS

Representative Laguardia Severely Censured the Shooting of Three Men by Coast Guardsmen Off the New England Coast—Called Killing of the Rum Runners "Bloody Murder"—Coast Guardsmen Were Defended by Representative Beedy—Senator Blease, in the Senate, Declared Washington to Be "Reeking With Vice and Corruption."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)— The congressional dispute over prohibition, which was presaged by quarrels among the drys during the holidays over the enforcement situation, materialized today in a scathing house debate.

Reference by Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, a wet, to the shooting of three men by coast guardsmen off the New England coast as a "bloody murder" brought a vigorous reply from Representative Beedy, republican, Maine, a dry. Beedy insisted LaGuardia had not given the facts and upheld the coast guard.

At the same time, Senator Blease, democrat, North Carolina, reopened the dry controversy in the senate with the charge that the nation's capital was "reeking with vice and corruption." He said the responsibility for enforcing the prohibition law rested upon President Hoover and the republican party in congress.

With these developments on Capitol Hill informal negotiations went forward between American and Canadian government officials to strengthen the border barriers by closing a large number of entry roads and increasing the ports from 100 to 400, with officials stationed at each.

The treasury received reports that Canadian exports of alcoholic beverages to the United States in November amounted to 296,456 gallons as compared with 520,902 gallons for the same month in 1928.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced a little later that authority had been granted Prohibition Administrator Pennington at Pittsburgh to issue permits to three distilleries for the manufacture of the first medicinal rye whiskey since 1921.

LaGuardia, in the first speech on prohibition since congress returned from the Christmas holidays, said the "law is not being enforced for the simple reason that it cannot be enforced."

Deploring what he called the condition of the coast guard, which ten years ago, he said, was one of the finest branches of the government service, the New Yorker asserted that "what prohibition has done to the coast guard, it will do to the department of justice within a very short time after that department is cursed with the duty of prohibition enforcement."

On the same day that the Black Duck was captured, he charged, members of the coast guard "got crazy drunk at New London, Conn." Thirty-nine members of the coast guard, he added, had been found purloining part of every seizure of liquor made by them. Some of the liquor seized from the Black Duck, he continued, "was in turn sold by members of the coast guard who consumed some themselves."

Beedy denied that officers in the by some of the coast guardsmen was from the Flor Del Mar, a British boat which was seized the same day as the Black Duck.

He said he understood that ordinary seamen who were nevertheless "red blooded American boys, stood for hours on that cold December night unloading this liquor," and that some of the "gobs, to relieve themselves from the cold and suffering, opened a bottle and drank something out of it." He added that two of the boys took some of the liquor with them and got into trouble on shore.

Beedy reports that officers in the coast guard had stolen liquor and said they have been slandered. He said the coast guard had broken up a string of ships which had formed a rum ring and now the vessels were scattered along ten thousand miles of coast.

Attacking the coast guard for what he called "rushing into print" to justify the recent killing of the three men on the Black Duck, LaGuardia said the record "was bare of facts showing that the Black Duck had refused to heave to or was in actual flight."

Representative Beedy said it would be easier for the coast guard to say "We did not see those ships." He contended that attempts were being made to break down the morale of the coast guard and added that "no doubt the rum runners think that before long these boys will be sick of being accused as murderers and will suspend their vigilance."

"What will you do?" Beedy asked his colleagues. "Admiral Billard, commandant of the coast guard, says 'I can send a telegram to those boys tomorrow telling them not to fire on a motor boat under any circumstances.' This is the crux of the enforcement problem. What would you have them do?"

This statement was applauded by members on both the democratic and republican sides of the house.

"I believe the prohibition officials and the coast guard of this country will be permitted to make an honest and conscientious attempt to enforce prohibition," Beedy [illegible]

Representative [illegible], republican, Wisconsin, a wet, [illegible]oduced a bill to amend the law under which the coast guard is authorized to fire on vessels which refuse to stop for inspection. The measure would provide that the coast guard fire on ships only in self defense.

He also introduced a bill to make it a felony for any prohibition agent to search any private dwelling without a search warrant.

After Beedy had completed his discussion before the house, Representative Gifford, republican, Massachusetts, in whose district two of the young men killed on the Black Duck resided, said he would like a statement from the coast guard saying "That they at least deplore, and deplore very much, that such a massacre could have taken place under such conditions, and at the same time say if they want to, that they fully intend to carry out the provisions of the law."

Beedy said rum runners should not be shot down recklessly, "but we have either got to enforce this law or we might as well throw up our hands."

"The only way to do this," he said, "is to make those people understand that we mean business, and in a law passed since I have been a member of this house, a method was provided for enforcing the provisions of the prohibition law."

The Maine representative then cited the law under which the coast guard is empowered to "use all necessary force to compel compliance" to laws pertaining to prevention of smuggling."

"If a rum boat defies the command of a coast guard officer to stop and permit a search and starts to escape," Beedy continued, "then it is time for the officer in charge of that boat to command that they fire on that boat and attempt to disable her, without if possible, injury anybody. But if she attempts to escape or maneuver herself into such a position—knowing this is a United States government boat—that she is within range of their guns, then, the members of this house, sworn to uphold the constitution and to defend it against its enemies, must make these boys know that if they do their duty a majority of the members of congress and the people of the United States are behind them to a man."

COUPLE ADRIFT RESCUED BY COAST GUARDSMEN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 7—(AP)—Adrift for 30 hours in their open launch, Mr. and Mrs. John Lovett of Tampa, were rescued from Tampa bay late today by coast guardsmen who were notified of the couple's predicament by operators of the Goodyear blimp Vigilant which sighted the craft while circling the bay.

The couple said they set out from Tampa yesterday morning for a camping trip at the mouth of Little Manatee river. About noon, their motor stopped and shortly afterward the boat sprang a leak.

While his wife watched for a passing boat, Lovett bailed for several hours before finally succeeding in stopping the leak with rags. They drifted helplessly all last night and today without being noticed by bay craft.

Circling high in the air on a pleasure flight over the bay, Pilot Charles E. Brannigan of the blimp sighted the drifting launch and nosed the airship down to within a few feet of the water.

Lovett shouted his predicament to Brannigan and immediately the pilot soared off to the coast guard station. A patrol boat was dispatched to the scene and towed the drifting launch ashore.

Lovett said he and his wife had not suffered from their experience except for fatigue from bailing.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 7—(AP)—General Jans Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, addressing a public meeting in Woolsey hall, Yale university, tonight said that the world's present task was that of building a constructive peace.

General Smuts described the league of nations as only the first step toward the building of a constructive peace. The peace pact and the approaching disarmament conference, he said, were further steps toward this end.

Touching on the failure of the United States to join the league of nations, General Smuts said that his visit to this country has thus far revealed to him that

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The place of Mrs. Herbert Hoover beside the president at the dinner at which the vice president customarily entertains once yearly was given tonight to Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, ranking cabinet lady present in the capital, because the president's wife was kept at the white house by a severe cold.

Mrs. Hurley was the only cabinet lady present, as no members of the cabinet are invited to this annual function. Later in the evening President Hoover followed a custom broken by Calvin Coolidge, by attending a reception given by the congressional club for about 500 guests.

Mrs. Stimson, the ranking lady of the cabinet, was absent from the city.

SENATE COALITION SHOWS IN TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The coalition of democrats and western republicans reformed their lines in the senate today, the first anniversary of the initiation of the tariff controversy, and defeated an attempt to increase from 55 to 60 per cent the duty on woven silk fabrics. This left the rates as in the existing law and in the house bill.

At the suggestion of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, the senate rejected the only other remaining committee amendment to the silk schedule which would have classified silk hose made in part of rayon under higher rates in the rayon schedule. With that, it moved on to the latter duty section and adopted slight increases in rates on rayon filaments and yarns.

Smoot said he hoped to dispose of the rayon schedule tomorrow.

Tilson Is Sanguine About Th[illegible]ariff Bill

Confide[illegible]at It Will Embod[illegible] Best Features of th[illegible]nate and House Bills.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Republican Floor Leader Tilson was besieged today by persons wanting his views as to the outcome of the proposed democratic insurgent coalition on the tariff as urged and predicted by Democratic Floor Leader Garner of Texas. Tilson smiled broadly and remarked that Garner's suggestion reminded him of the old rhyme, "Will you walk into my parlor? said the spider to the fly. It's the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy." Tilson added that he felt quite optimistic that the republicans of the house would not accept the alluring invitation extended by Mr. Garner and that republicans had no cause for anxiety.

"I feel certain," added Colonel Tilson, "that the senate will pass the tariff bill and when it reaches the house it will be sent to conference, and that it will come out of conference in a form that the country and the president will approve. I believe the bill coming from conference will be a better bill than either the house or the senate bill, and that the conferees will combine in producing a bill that embodies the best features of the senate and house bills." Tilson has made a pretty thorough investigation of the house sentiments since his return from the recess.

DOESN'T FEAR MERGER OF BRITISH RADIO AND WIRE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Testifying before the senate interstate commerce committee today, Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, derided statements that merger of British Wire and Radio systems into a monopoly was a menace to the future development of American enterprises in the same field.

"The British merger," Carlton said, "is one of the most fantastic bogies ever built up."

He was referring to previous testimony of Owen D. Young, president of the Radio Corporation of America. Young had expressed a fear that unless congress approved consolidations of radio and cable companies, now prohibited, American interests could not compete for the international business and that the British monopoly could "dictate" terms to the radio corporation.

FRANK FROEST DEAD, FORMER SCOTLAND YARD DETECTIVE

LONDON, Jan. 7. — (AP) — Frank Froest, former Scotland Yard detective who was said to have made use of radio in a transatlantic case, died today at the age of 73, after an operation. One-time superintendent of the criminal investigation department, he was known as "the man with the iron hand."

Some of his most sensational work was in connection with the capture of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen who was executed for the murder of his wife in 1910. Froest learned that the physician was on the steamship Montrose bound for Canada with his secretary, Ethel Le Neve, who was dressed as a boy. Froest brought into use the newly developed radio and the pair were detained in Canada until an inspector from England arrived.

Froest resembled more the farmer than the detective of fiction or melodrama. In the years of his retirement he was an ardent follower of country pursuits.

Serious Breach In Rep. Ranks In Senate

Over Attempt to Place LaFollette on the Powerful Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The split in the senate republican ranks widened into a menacing chasm today as the question of recognition in the party's organization of the bolting western independents came to an issue on the appointment of Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, to the powerful finance committee.

That is the committee which controls revenue and tariff legislation, over which the western independents and the party regulars clash regularly. After an attempt to sidetrack LaFollette was made today, the independents met and served notice of battle.

The republican quarrel was complicated by differences among the party regulars themselves, and by warnings from the democratic side that if the issue of LaFollette's appointment were fought out on the floor, there would be some democratic support for him.

A continuation of the democratic-western republican independent coalition which has existed in the senate on the farm relief and tariff issues during the Hoover administration carries some far-reaching possibilities.

Worried republican leaders were busy tonight in conferences seeking a solution of the problem which threatens one of the widest breaks in the party since four republican senators were read out of the organization for supporting the candidacy of Robert LaFollette, Sr., for the presidency in 1924.

The veteran Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, notified his colleagues that he was unalterably opposed to placing any member of the western independent group on the committee, although he had nothing personally against any of them.

Senator Smoot said he had not threatened to resign, "but I would feel like I ought" if LaFollette or any of the independents were put on his committee. He argued that "this committee is charged with raising the government's expenses and it must be in sympathy with the administration."

Senator Borah, of Idaho, speaking for the independents, said, "We regard this fight as symbolical of the fight on the tariff bill." He said the group would insist upon LaFollette's appointment.

Chairman McNary of the committee on committees, which is charged with fixing the republican organization's slate, was standing firmly by his ruling that the age-old senate custom of seniority should be the guide in filling the committee vacancies. Senator LaFollette is one of the ranking candidates in seniority for the two finance committee vacancies.

At the meeting of the committee on committees today, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, moved that Senator Goff, of West Virginia, the ranking candidate, and Senator Thomas, of Idaho, who has not even applied for the finance committee, be placed on it.

This resulted in a tie vote and later Senator Thomas announced he would not consider the committee vacancy under the circumstances.

Those voting for Senator Reed's motion included Senators Moses, New Hampshire; Bingham, Connecticut, and Deneen, Illinois. Those opposing the motion were Senators McNary, Oregon; Capper, Kansas; Oddie, Nevada, and Nye, North Dakota.

HALT IN GENERAL COURT MARTIAL OF GUARDSMEN

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The general court martial of coast guardsmen implicated in stealing and drinking liquor from a captured rum running boat struck a snag today.

Delay in preparing charges as prescribed by government regulations prevented the court from hearing any of the 29 cases still before it, and it turned its attention to a consideration of a guardsman who deserted, but not in connection with the Flor-Del-Mar affair.

Hope, however, was expressed that the charges would be ready tomorrow.

Thirty-nine men were involved as a result of the hurried unloading of the Flor-Del-Mar's cargo of whiskey, and ten have already pleaded guilty to intoxication. They were aboard their ships today awaiting a review of their sentences, not made public, by officials in Washington.

ASSU[illegible]NCE OF PHYSICIANS [illegible]RS CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—William Howard Taft, formerly the president and now the chief justice of the United States, slept tonight on a hospital bed happy in the assurance of physicians that the ailment from which he is suffering would respond to treatment within a week.

Recurring bladder trouble necessitated his entrance into the hospital, for several years the condition has disturbed him. After his present stay at Garfield hospital, Mr Taft plans to go to Grove Park inn at Asheville, N. C., for several weeks of rest.

The chief justice was in a cheerful mood today, his decision to drop the exacting court work for a time having restored his customary chuckle.

ARE TO PROCEED TO CONDEMN McCOOK LAND

HARTFORD, Jan. 7—(AP)—After two months of apparently fruitless negotiations, the state tuberculosis commission today made public its correspondence with counsel of the heirs of the late Eliza S. McCook, re-opening the state's effort to acquire approximately five and one half acres of land adjoining the Seaside sanitarium in Niantic for a new building at the sanitorium. The previous efforts of the state to obtain this land through condemnation proceedings ended when the supreme court held a special condemnation law unconstitutional. It is the intention of the commission to proceed now to condemn under the general law as soon as the way is opened.

A BRILLIANT PRE-NUPTIAL RECEPTION AT QUIRINAL

Princess Marie Jose of Belgium This Morning Will Become the Bride of Prince Humbert of Italy—Yesterday the Princess Received About 2,000 Guests, Including Army and Navy Officers and Government Officials—This Will Be the Fourth Time That a Royal Marriage Has Taken Place in the Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal.

ROME, Jan. 7—(AP)—Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, was the center of a final brilliant reception tonight at the Quirinal palace before her marriage to Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, tomorrow morning. The ceremony will begin at 10 a. m. (4 a. m., eastern standard time).

The princess, who spent a crowded and colorful day, received about 2,000 guests, including high army and navy officers, government officials and the members of the so-called Roman "white aristocracy," those who have been signalized by their devotion to the kingdom of Italy.

The princess was dressed in pink and wore a beautiful pearl necklace, the gift of Crown Prince Humbert.

The Duchess of Vendome, Marie Jose's aunt, wore a gown of gold feuilles mortes lame with a fur-trimmed train. Former Queen Amelie, of Portugal, was in purple velvet with a diamond diadem on her hair.

Princess Christopher, of Greece, nee Francoise of France, wore a golden brown lame with a long train. The Marquise De Brichanteau wore a white satin gown with a short cape embroidered in diamente and a train of blue velvet lined with gold. Another striking costume was that of the Countess Chartier De Segouy, which was of gold lame and had a train lined with golden velvet.

Most of the gowns, including Princess Marie Jose's, were made in Italy.

At the wedding ceremony tomorrow all the ladies will wear lace veils, and long sleeves and high-necked dresses will be the rule. The ladies attached to the Belgian and Italian courts will wear mantles of savoy blue.

Crown Prince Humbert, unlike American bridegrooms, is not giving a bachelor dinner this evening. He gave such a dinner some time ago in Turin to his brother officers of the 92nd Infantry, all of whom toasted the bride with sparkling asti wine.

Princess Marie Jose spent a busy day on the eve of her wedding. In addition to the reception tonight, she had an audience with Pope Pius in the morning and reviewed a colorful procession of peasants in the afternoon.

The Pauline chapel of the Quirinal has been draped in deep red velvet for the wedding tomorrow morning. The velvet is fringed with gold.

Twenty-five priceless tapestries, including four Gobelins, have been hung in the chapel. The altar is surmounted with a baldaquin, and on the left side thrones have been placed for the Italian sovereigns and their royal guests. The thrones are covered with red velvet and the floors carpeted with red.

It will be the fourth time that a royal marriage has taken place in the chapel. In September, 1861, Pope Pius IX himself officiated at the wedding of Princess Maria Immacolata Clementina, eldest daughter of King Ferdinand of Naples, to the Archduke Carlo Salvatore, of Tuscany. A month later Cardinal Sforza blessed the union of Princess Maria Annunziata Isabella, sister of King Francis, of Naples, with the Archduke Karl Ludwig, brother of the Austrian emperor. The latter wedding was by proxy, the archduke being unable to come to Rome.

TWO PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN A HOTEL

PITTSBURGH, Kans., Jan. 7—(AP)—Two guests of the Wick hotel here were burned to death and five injured early today by fire which forced 74 scantily clad persons to flee from the hotel, and which seriously damaged the three-story hostelry.

Authorities were investigating reports that led to suspicion of incendiarism. Damage was estimated by fire department officials at about $75,000.

Flames blocked the front stairway and entrance of the hotel and guests leaped from windows and slid down ropes to safety. Few had time to dress and many braved blizzard conditions in night clothing. The building had no fire escapes, police said.

The dead are Clarence Parker, foreman in the Kansas City Southern railroad roundhouse in Kansas City, and Ralph Dennis, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Dennis of Pittsburg.

None of the injured was hurt seriously.

DEATH OF LUKE DILLON, IRISH PATRIOT, IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7—(AP)—Luke Dillon, 80, long a resident of Philadelphia but who spent much of his life in advancing the cause of a free Ireland died at his home here today, surrounded by members of his family. He had been ill for about six weeks.

Only last Sunday he received a visit from Eamon De Valera, former head of the Irish Republic.

Although he is said to have never set foot in Ireland, he was extremely active in this country in the Irish cause. He was born in Leeds, England of Irish parents and was brought to this country when a child.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Mary Dillon; four sons, Joseph, William, Luke and Anthony, and a daughter, Mary Dillon.

One of the leading incidents in the life of Dillon was the dynamiting of the Welland canal in Canada to prevent the shipment of supplies to the British army that was fighting the boers in South Africa. For this he and two companions were arrested in Canada and sent to prison for life. Dillon served fourteen years and in 1914 was released from prison and returned to his home in Philadelphia.

ASKS OWNERS TO AID IN COUNTRY-WIDE BEE CENSUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP) — An appeal to all owners of bees to assist the census-taker in taking a country-wide bee census is being made by J. T. Hambleton, in charge of the bee-culture division, of the department of agriculture.

City bees as well as country bees, and bees living in the country, but their owners in the city, are to be counted this 1930 decennial census. City-owned bees will be listed as "livestock not on farms and ranges," by consent of the bureau of the census.

This addition to the census schedule was hailed by Hambleton as "an important victory" for the bee-keeping industry in a field where everybody is trying to get questions asked. He declared that never before in history has agriculture had such an opportunity to take stock of itself, and that if reliable figures are not furnished in 1930 the industry will have to wait another ten years without knowing how many bees are busy, and how much money is produced.

SEEKING AUTO CARRYING SUSPICIOUS LOOKING MEN

HARTFORD, Jan. 7— (AP) —State and local police tonight were searching for a sedan bearing New Hampshire registration plates number 4[illegible]595, in which it was believed the three convicts who escaped from the state prison at Wethersfield Saturday morning, may be riding. An unnamed woman told the state police she saw this car driving west on Asylum street here, about 6:15 tonight, and carrying four "suspicious looking men." The state police broadcast this information to police departments in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

With indications that the trio who escaped Saturday morning, Roland Lalone, a lifer; Leo Landry and Watson Moulthrope, had been in Massachusetts, Monday, there was comparatively little activity here today, although officials followed closely the reports from the neighboring state. State police tonight had no confirmation of a rumor that Landry had been captured.

CONDEMNATORY REMARKS IN HOUSE ON DRY LAW KILLINGS

Representative Laguardia Severely Censured the Shooting of Three Men by Coast Guardsmen Off the New England Coast—Called Killing of the Rum Runners "Bloody Murder"—Coast Guardsmen Were Defended by Representative Beedy—Senator Blease, in the Senate, Declared Washington to Be "Reeking With Vice and Corruption."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)— The congressional dispute over prohibition, which was presaged by quarrels among the drys during the holidays over the enforcement situation, materialized today in a scathing house debate.

Reference by Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, a wet, to the shooting of three men by coast guardsmen off the New England coast as a "bloody murder" brought a vigorous reply from Representative Beedy, republican, Maine, a dry. Beedy insisted LaGuardia had not given the facts and upheld the coast guard.

At the same time, Senator Blease, democrat, North Carolina, reopened the dry controversy in the senate with the charge that the nation's capital was "reeking with vice and corruption." He said the responsibility for enforcing the prohibition law rested upon President Hoover and the republican party in congress.

With these developments on Capitol Hill informal negotiations went forward between American and Canadian government officials to strengthen the border barriers by closing a large number of entry roads and increasing the ports from 100 to 400, with officials stationed at each.

The treasury received reports that Canadian exports of alcoholic beverages to the United States in November amounted to 396,466 gallons as compared with 510,902 gallons for the same month in 1928.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced a little later that authority had been granted Prohibition Administrator Pennington at Pittsburgh to issue permits to three distilleries for the manufacture of the first medicinal rye whiskey since 1921.

LaGuardia, in the first speech on prohibition since congress returned from the Christmas holidays, said the "law is not being enforced for the simple reason that it cannot be enforced."

Deploring what he called the condition of the coast guard, which ten years ago, he said, was one of the finest branches of the government service, the New Yorker asserted that "what prohibition has done to the coast guard, it will do to the department of justice within a very short time after that department is cursed with the duty of prohibition enforcement."

On the same day that the Black Duck was captured, he charged, members of the coast guard "got crazy drunk at New London, Conn." Thirty-nine members of the coast guard, he added, had been found purloining part of every seizure of liquor made by them. Some of the liquor seized from the Black Duck, he continued, "was in turn sold by members of the coast guard who consumed some themselves."

Beedy denied that officers in the by some of the coast guardsmen was from the Flor Del Mar, a British boat which was seized the same day as the Black Duck.

He said he understood that ordinary seamen who were nevertheless "red blooded American boys, stood for hours on that cold December night unloading this liquor," and that some of the "gobs, to relieve themselves from the cold and suffering, opened a bottle and drank something out of it." He added that two of the boys took some of the liquor with them and got into trouble on shore.

Beedy reports that officers in the coast guard had stolen liquor and said they have been slandered. He said the coast guard had broken up a string of ships which had formed a rum ring and now the vessels were scattered along ten thousand miles of coast.

Attacking the coast guard for what he called "rushing into print" to justify the recent killing of the three men on the Black Duck, LaGuardia said the record "was bare of facts showing that the Black Duck had refused to heave to or was in actual flight."

Representative Beedy said it would be easier for the coast guard to say "We did not see those ships." He contended that attempts were being made to break down the morale of the coast guard and added that "no doubt the rum runners think that before long these boys will be sick of being accused as murderers and will suspend their vigilance."

"What will you do?" Beedy asked his colleagues. "Admiral Billard, commandant of the coast guard, says 'I can send a telegram to those boys tomorrow telling them not to fire on a motor boat under any circumstances.' This is the crux of the enforcement problem. What would you have them do?"

This statement was applauded by members on both the democratic and republican sides of the house.

"I believe the prohibition officials and the coast guard of this country will be permitted to make an honest and conscientious attempt to enforce prohibition," Beedy said.

Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, a wet, introduced a bill to amend the law under which the coast guard is authorized to fire on vessels which refuse to stop for inspection. The measure would provide that the coast guard fire on ships only in self defense.

He also introduced a bill to make it a felony for any prohibition agent to search any private dwelling without a search warrant.

After Beedy had completed his discussion before the house, Representative Gifford, republican, Massachusetts, in whose district two of the young men killed on the Black Duck resided, said he would like a statement from the coast guard saying "That they at least deplore, and deplore very much, that such a massacre could have taken place under such conditions, and at the same time say if they want to, that they fully intend to carry out the provisions of the law."

Beedy said rum runners should not be shot down recklessly, "but we have either got to enforce this law or we might as well throw up our hands."

"The only way to do this," he said, "is to make those people understand that we mean business, and in a law passed since I have been a member of this house, a method was provided for enforcing the provisions of the prohibition law."

The Maine representative then cited the law under which the coast guard is empowered to "use all necessary force to compel compliance" to laws pertaining to prevention of smuggling.

"If a rum boat defies the command of a coast guard officer to stop and permit a search and starts to escape," Beedy continued, "then it is time for the officer in charge of that boat to command that they fire on that boat and attempt to disable her, without if possible, injury anybody. But if she attempts to escape or maneuver herself into such a position—knowing this is a United States government boat—that she is within range of their guns, then, the members of this house, sworn to uphold the constitution and to defend it against its enemies, must make these boys know that if they do their duty a majority of the members of congress and the people of the United States are behind them to a man."

COUPLE ADRIFT RESCUED BY COAST GUARDSMEN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Adrift for 30 hours in their open launch, Mr. and Mrs. John Lovett of Tampa, were rescued from Tampa bay late today by coast guardsmen who were notified of the couple's predicament by operators of the Goodyear blimp Vigilant which sighted the craft while circling the bay.

The couple said they set out from Tampa yesterday morning for a camping trip at the mouth of Little Manatee river. About noon, their motor stopped and shortly afterward the boat sprang a leak.

While his wife watched for a passing boat, Lovett bailed for several hours before finally succeeding in stopping the leak with rags. They drifted helplessly all last night and today without being noticed by bay craft.

Circling high in the air on a pleasure flight over the bay, Pilot Charles E. Brannigan of the blimp sighted the drifting launch and nosed the airship down to within a few feet of the water.

Lovett shouted his predicament to Brannigan and immediately the pilot soared off to the coast guard station. A patrol boat was dispatched to the scene and towed the drifting launch ashore.

Lovett said he and his wife had not suffered from their experience except for fatigue from bailing.

GEN. SMUTS TALKED ON CONSTRUCTIVE PEACE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 7.—(AP)—General Jans Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, addressing a public meeting in Woolsey hall, Yale university, tonight said that the world's present task was that of building a constructive peace.

The meeting by the Connecticut committee for the tenth anniversary of the league of nations, was also addressed by Henry Morgenthau, former United States ambassador to Turkey; Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton, well known writer and a member of the British parliament; and Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale university.

General Smuts described the league of nations as only the first step toward the building of a constructive peace. The peace pact and the approaching disarmament conference, he said, were further steps toward this end.

Touching on the failure of the United States to join the league of nations, General Smuts said that his visit to this country has thus far revealed to him that

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The place of Mrs. Herbert Hoover beside the president at the dinner at which the vice president customarily entertains once yearly was given tonight to Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, ranking cabinet lady present in the capital, because the president's wife was kept at the white house by a severe cold.

Mrs. Hurley was the only cabinet lady present, as no members of the cabinet are invited to this annual function. Later in the evening President Hoover followed a custom broken by Calvin Coolidge, by attending a reception given by the congressional club for about 500 guests.

Mrs. Stimson, the ranking lady of the cabinet, was absent from the city.

Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, welcomed the guests in their own suite in a hotel. Among them were senators and their wives. In flower-decked rooms, Mrs. Gann presided for the first time at a dinner for the president.

The jury also returned indictments against Sollie Combs, jailer, who was tied by the mob, and his son, Lewis Combs, naming them as accomplices.

They are Bent Howard, deputy marshal of Jackson; L. K. Rice, of Quicksand; Sam Watkins, of the same neighborhood; Earl Howard, of Breathitt county, and Lee Watkins, of Hazard.

SENATE COALITION SHOWS IN TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The coalition of democrats and western republicans reformed their lines in the senate today, the first anniversary of the initiation of the tariff controversy, and defeated an attempt to increase from 55 to 60 per cent the duty on woven silk fabrics. This left the rates as in the existing law and in the house bill.

At the suggestion of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, the senate rejected the only other remaining committee amendment to the silk schedule which would have classified silk hose made in part of rayon under higher rates in the rayon schedule. With that, it moved on to the latter duty section and adopted slight increases in rates on rayon filaments and yarns.

Smoot said he hoped to dispose of the rayon schedule tomorrow.

Tilson Is Sanguine About Th[illegible]ariff Bill

Confide[illegible]t It Will Embod[illegible] Best Features of th[illegible]nate and House Bills.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Republican Floor Leader Tilson was besieged today by persons wanting his views as to the outcome of the proposed democratic insurgent coalition on the tariff as urged and predicted by Democratic Floor Leader Garner of Texas. Tilson smiled broadly and remarked that Garner's suggestion reminded him of the old rhyme, "Will you walk into my parlor? said the spider to the fly. It's the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy." Tilson added that he felt quite optimistic that the republicans of the house would not accept the alluring invitation extended by Mr. Garner and that republicans had no cause for anxiety.

"I feel certain," added Colonel Tilson, "that the senate will pass the tariff bill and when it reaches the house it will be sent to conference, and that it will come out of conference in a form that the country and the president will approve. I believe the bill coming from conference will be a better bill than either the house or the senate bill, and that the conferees will combine in producing a bill that embodies the best features of the senate and house bills." Tilson has made a pretty thorough investigation of the house sentiments since his return from the recess.

DOESN'T FEAR MERGER OF BRITISH RADIO AND WIRE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Testifying before the senate interstate commerce committee today, Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, derided statements that merger of British Wire and Radio systems into a monopoly was a menace to the future development of American enterprises in the same field.

"The British merger," Carlton said, "is one of the most fantastic bogies ever built up."

He was referring to previous testimony of Owen D. Young, president of the Radio Corporation of America. Young had expressed a fear that unless congress approved consolidations of radio and cable companies, now prohibited, American interests could not compete for the international business and that the British monopoly could "dictate" terms to the radio corporation.

FRANK FROEST, DEAD, FORMER SCOTLAND YARD DETECTIVE

LONDON, Jan. 7. — (AP) — Frank Froest, former Scotland Yard detective who was said to have made use of radio in a transatlantic case, died today at the age of 71, after an operation. One-time superintendent of the criminal investigation department, he was known as "the man with the iron hand."

Some of his most sensational work was in connection with the capture of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen who was executed for the murder of his wife in 1910. Froest learned that the physician was on the steamship Montrose bound for Canada with his secretary, Ethel Le Neve, who was dressed as a boy. Froest brought into use the newly developed radio and the pair were detained in Canada until an inspector from England arrived.

Froest resembled more the farmer than the detective of fiction or melodrama. In the years of his retirement he was an ardent follower of country pursuits.

Serious Breach In Rep. Ranks In Senate

Over Attempt to Place LaFollette on the Powerful Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The split in the senate republican ranks widened into a menacing chasm today as the question of recognition in the party's organization of the bolting western independents came to an issue on the appointment of Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, to the powerful finance committee.

That is the committee which controls revenue and tariff legislation, over which the western independents and the party regulars clash regularly. After an attempt to sidetrack LaFollette was made today, the independents met and served notice of battle.

The republican quarrel was complicated by differences among the party regulars themselves, and by warnings from the democratic side that if the issue of LaFollette's appointment were fought out on the floor, there would be some democratic support for him.

A continuation of the democratic-western republican independent coalition which has existed in the senate on the farm relief and tariff issues during the Hoover administration carries some far-reaching possibilities.

Worried republican leaders were busy tonight in conferences seeking a solution of the problem which threatens one of the widest breaks in the party since four republican senators were read out of the organization for supporting the candidacy of Robert LaFollette, Sr., for the presidency in 1924.

The veteran Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, notified his colleagues that he was unalterably opposed to placing any member of the western independent group on the committee, although he had nothing personally against any of them.

Senator Smoot said he had not threatened to resign, "but I would feel like I ought" if LaFollette or any of the independents were put on his committee. He argued that "this committee is charged with raising the government's expenses and it must be in sympathy with the administration."

Senator Borah, of Idaho, speaking for the independents, said, "We regard this fight as symbolical of the fight on the tariff bill." He said the group would insist upon LaFollette's appointment.

Chairman McNary of the committee on committees, which is charged with fixing the republican organization's slate, was standing firmly by his ruling that the age-old senate custom of seniority should be the guide in filling the committee vacancies. Senator LaFollette is one of the ranking candidates in seniority for the two finance committee vacancies.

At the meeting of the committee on committees today, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, moved that Senator Goff, of West Virginia, the ranking candidate, and Senator Thomas, of Idaho, who has not even applied for the finance committee, be placed on it.

This resulted in a tie vote and later Senator Thomas announced he would not consider the committee vacancy under the circumstances.

Those voting for Senator Reed's motion included Senators Moses, New Hampshire; Bingham, Connecticut, and Deneen, Illinois. Those opposing the motion were Senators McNary, Oregon; Capper, Kansas; Oddie, Nevada, and Nye, North Dakota.

HALT IN GENERAL COURT MARTIAL OF GUARDSMEN

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The general court martial of coast guardsmen implicated in stealing and drinking liquor from a captured rum running boat struck a snag today.

Delay in preparing charges as prescribed by government regulations prevented the court from hearing any of the 29 cases still before it, and it turned its attention to a consideration of a guardsman who deserted, but not in connection with the Flor-Del-Mar affair.

Hope, however, was expressed that the charges would be ready tomorrow.

Thirty-nine men were involved as a result of the hurried unloading of the Flor-Del-Mar's cargo of whiskey, and ten have already pleaded guilty to intoxication. They were aboard their ships today awaiting a review of their sentences, not made public, by officials in Washington.

ASSURANCE OF PHYSICIANS CHEERS CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—William Howard Taft, formerly the president and now the chief justice of the United States, slept tonight on a hospital bed happy in the assurance of physicians that the ailment from which he is suffering would respond to treatment within a week.

Recurring bladder trouble necessitated his entrance into the hospital, for several years the condition has disturbed him. After his present stay at Garfield hospital, Mr Taft plans to go to Grove Park inn at Asheville, N. C., for several weeks of rest.

The chief justice was in a cheerful mood today, his decision to drop the exacting court work for a time having restored his customary chuckle.

McCook, re-opening the state's effort to acquire approximately five and one half acres of land adjoining the Seaside sanitarium in Niantic for a new building at the sanitorium. The previous efforts of the state to obtain this land through condemnation proceedings ended when the supreme court held a special condemnation law unconstitutional. It is the intention of the commission to proceed now to condemn under the general law as soon as the way is opened.

A BRILLIANT PRE-NUPTIAL RECEPTION AT QUIRINAL

Princess Marie Jose of Belgium This Morning Will Become the Bride of Prince Humbert of Italy—Yesterday the Princess Received About 2,000 Guests, Including Army and Navy Officers and Government Officials—This Will Be the Fourth Time That a Royal Marriage Has Taken Place in the Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal.

ROME, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, was the center of a final brilliant reception tonight at the Quirinal palace before her marriage to Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, tomorrow morning. The ceremony will begin at 10 a. m. (4 a. m., eastern standard time).

The princess, who spent a crowded and colorful day, received about 2,000 guests, including high army and navy officers, government officials and the members of the so-called Roman "white aristocracy," those who have been signalized by their devotion to the kingdom of Italy.

The princess was dressed in pink and wore a beautiful pearl necklace, the gift of Crown Prince Humbert.

The Duchess of Vendome, Marie Jose's aunt, wore a gown of gold feuillites mortes lame with a fur-trimmed train. Former Queen Amelie, of Portugal, was in purple velvet with a diamond diadem on her hair.

Princess Christopher, of Greece, nee Francoise of France, wore a golden brown lame with a long train. The Marquise De Brichanteau wore a white satin gown with a short cape embroidered in diamente and a train of blue velvet lined with gold. Another striking costume was that of the Countess Chartier De Segouy, which was of gold lame and had a train lined with golden velvet.

Most of the gowns, including Princess Marie Jose's, were made in Italy.

At the wedding ceremony tomorrow all the ladies will wear lace veils, and long sleeves and high-necked dresses will be the rule. The ladies attached to the Belgian and Italian courts will wear mantles of savoy blue.

Crown Prince Humbert, unlike American bridegrooms, is not giving a bachelor dinner this evening. He gave such a dinner some time ago in Turin to his brother officers of the 92nd Infantry, all of whom toasted the bride with sparkling asti wine.

Princess Marie Jose spent a busy day on the eve of her wedding. In addition to the reception tonight, she had an audience with Pope Pius in the morning and reviewed a colorful procession of peasants in the afternoon.

The Pauline chapel of the Quirinal has been draped in deep red velvet for the wedding tomorrow morning. The velvet is fringed with gold.

Twenty-five priceless tapestries, including four Gobelins, have been hung in the chapel. The altar is surmounted with a baldaquin, and on the left side thrones have been placed for the Italian sovereigns and their royal guests. The thrones are covered with red velvet and the floors carpeted with red.

It will be the fourth time that a royal marriage has taken place in the chapel. In September, 1861, Pope Pius IX himself officiated at the wedding of Princess Maria Immacolata Clementina, eldest daughter of King Ferdinand of Naples, to the Archduke Carlo Salvatore, of Tuscany. A month later Cardinal Sforza blessed the union of Princess Maria Annunziata Isabella, sister of King Francis, of Naples, with the Archduke Karl Ludwig, brother of the Austrian emperor. The latter wedding was by proxy, the archduke being unable to come to Rome.

TWO PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN A HOTEL

PITTSBURGH, Kans., Jan. 7.—(AP)— Two guests of the Wick hotel here were burned to death and five injured early today by fire which forced 74 scantily clad persons to flee from the hotel, and which seriously damaged the three-story hostelry.

Authorities were investigating reports that led to suspicion of incendiarism. Damage was estimated by fire department officials at about $75,000.

Flames blocked the front stairway and entrance of the hotel and guests leaped from windows and slid down ropes to safety. Few had time to dress and many braved blizzard conditions in night clothing. The building had no fire escapes, police said.

The dead are Clarence Parker, foreman in the Kansas City Southern railroad roundhouse in Kansas City, and Ralph Dennis, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Dennis of Pittsburg.

None of the injured was hurt seriously.

DEATH OF LUKE DILLON, IRISH PATRIOT, IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Luke Dillon, 80, long a resident of Philadelphia but who spent much of his life in advancing the cause of a free Ireland, died at his home here today, surrounded by members of his family. He had been ill for about six weeks.

ASKS OWNERS TO AID IN COUNTRY-WIDE BEE CENSUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP) — An appeal to all owners of bees to assist the census-taker in taking a country-wide bee census is being made by J. T. Hambleton, in charge of the bee-culture division, of the department of agriculture.

City bees as well as country bees, and bees living in the country, but their owners in the city, are to be counted this 1930 decennial census. City-owned bees will be listed as "livestock not on farms and ranges," by consent of the bureau of the census.

This addition to the census schedule was hailed by Hambleton as "an important victory" for the bee-keeping industry in a field where everybody is trying to get questions asked. He declared that never before in history has agriculture had such an opportunity to take stock of itself, and that if reliable figures are not furnished in 1930 the industry will have to wait another ten years without knowing how many bees are busy, and how much money is produced.

SEEKING AUTO CARRYING SUSPICIOUS LOOKING MEN

HARTFORD, Jan. 7.— (AP) —State and local police tonight were searching for a sedan bearing New Hampshire registration plates number [illegible]-595, in which it was believed the three convicts who escaped from the state prison at Wethersfield Saturday morning, may be riding. An unnamed woman told the state police she saw this car driving west on Asylum street here, about 6:15 tonight, and carrying four "suspicious looking men." The state police broadcast this information to police departments in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

With indications that the trio who escaped Saturday morning, Roland Lalone, a lifer, Leo Landry and Watson Moulthrope, had been in Massachusetts, Monday, there was comparatively little activity here today, although officials followed closely the reports from the neighboring state. State police tonight had no confirmation of a rumor that Landry had been captured.

In most places the frost is reported as entirely out of the ground and a number of farmers have started to plough, giving the ground a good run of exposure before the spring planting. Adults, Too, Prefer "No Dosing" For Colds

Millions Adopt External Remedy Made Famous as Treatment for Children's Colds

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. It was the custom then to give large doses of internal medicines for colds and almost every human ailment. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Equally Good for Adults

Mothers of young children especially have been quick to appreciate this modern external way of treating colds, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset the little one's stomachs. Year after year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds.

Acts 2 Ways at Once

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, the heat of the body releases medicated vapors which are breathed in direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Now "26" Million!

The ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the figures of the familiar Vick slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—these figures, too, have been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

MILD, yes... and yet THEY SATISFY

It is a curious fact that the best-tasting cigarette is the one in which no single taste quality is too evident. Over-mildness, for example—or over-richness—shows lack of "balance" just as plainly as harshness or bitterness.

On this basis, test Chesterfield. Aroma, smoothness, satisfying goodness, flavor, mildness, all present—but none emphasized at the expense of others. The one goal is taste—better taste, balanced taste—

DANIELSON

J. W. POWDRELL IS SPEAKER AT CHAMBER MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 7.—The largest attended meeting of the chamber of commerce in more than a year was held this evening at the Attawaugan hotel, nearly 100 being in attendance. President W. H. G. Herklots presided. Supper was served prior to taking up the business of the evening. President Herklots has a definite program of action for the chamber for 1930, and tonight's meeting, the first of the year, witnessed the outlining of various projects. A special feature of this evening's meeting was the address given by J. W. Powdrell, president of the Powdrell and Alexander, operators of six mills and employers of upwards of 1,600 persons in this town. Mr. Powdrell, who cancelled an important engagement to come here from Boston, was heartily welcomed. The occasion offered many of those present their first opportunity to meet Mr. Powdrell, who is greatly interested in Danielson and hopes to see it developed as rapidly as possible.

Among the projects which he is advocating and in which he has the support of the Danielson Building and Loan association and the chamber of commerce is the construction of more homes. His hope is that this work can be undertaken at the earliest possible moment.

Tonight's meeting should be of very considerable value in arousing enthusiasm and gaining material support for plans it is hoped may be worked out during 1930.

Last night John M. Bessette of the West Side took charge of a 14 year old boy who has become incorrigible and conducted him to Meriden for commitment to the State School for Boys. The boy had been stealing from his parents and friends, would not go to school and would not work. He was taken into custody by Sergeant G. L. Gardner of the state police and after being presented in a justice's court of the town of Brooklyn was ordered sent to Meriden.

A petition, which it is forecast will have several hundred signatures, is being prepared for presentation to executives of wire service companies and will contain a plea for a checkup of conditions in and about the borough with a view to clearing up noises that are picked up by radio receiving sets. The petition is to be made in the utmost friendliness, and the petitioners are hopeful that their request will obtain the co-operation desired.

Further informal discussion of the general revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly that is to be made this year, shows a growing sentiment to have the work done by citizens, possibly with the assistance of some expert adviser. Under such an arrangement Killingly would save several thousand dollars, and it is held that there is no reason to believe that the general result would not be as satisfactory as though the work were done by concerns that make such undertakings a profession. Among numbers of men here who have given the subject some attention and who are more or less familiar with experiences of other towns in having revaluations made by others than residents, the opinion is strong for having Killingly property revalued by local citizens. The matter will come up for a decision within a few months.

At the Church Family night at the Westfield Congregational church Thursday evening supper is to be served in the vestry at 6:30. At 7:15 there is to be a social period for grown-ups and games for the boys and girls. At the same hour the January meeting of the standing committee is to be held in the Jacobs Memorial library. The assembly period, in the vestry, will be at 7:45. At 8 p. m. the annual business meeting of the church is to be held.

This morning at Holy Trinity church in Pomfret funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Ducat, formerly a resident of this town, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. George J. Donahue. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Danielson. The bearers were three sons, Francis, Harry and William Ducat, and three sons-in-law, Alfred Bernier, Percy Brown and Adolph Buskey. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Increase by the state of the rental charge of the state armory by as much as $25 per night for its use for social functions or for basketball games has rather upset the arrangements of organizations that have been using it nights each week for some time past. The increase is so considerable as to mean, on some occasions, the difference between making some profit or making none at all.

Workmen of the Hartford concern that installed the special decorative street lighting system in Danielson's business section in early December were engaged today in taking down the equipment. The lights have not been in use since the first of the year.

A general exchange of pastors in many communities in eastern Connecticut has been arranged for the coming Sunday. Danielson churches in several instances will have visiting pastors in the pulpits and Danielson will send some pastors to other communities to conduct morning services.

Miss Nellie Head, Francis McDonald and Leo McDonald left this evening for Taunton, where, on Wednesday, they will attend the funeral of a relative, Miss Elizabeth McDonald.

January was in spring-like mood today, when the temperature ran up to 64 degrees during the early afternoon.

In the list of neighborhood prayer meetings announced for evenings this week in this column this morning the one listed to be held with E. H. Keach should have read to be held with E. L. Keech of 95 Broad street.

The weather has been so mild during the early days of January that some farmers have seized upon an unexpected opportunity to do some field work that ordinarily would not be performed until after mid-March.

The Development of the Ethical Idea in Religion was the subject taken up by the Young People's discussion class at a meeting in the parlor of the Westfield Congregational church this evening.

New York and Boston newspapers came dribbling in again today, some of the morning editions not reaching here until nearly 11 o'clock. It is expected that schedules will be promptly worked out to get them here on time.

Other officers who will serve with President A. M. Thompson of the Westfield Men's club during 1930 are W. Irving Davis and Walter Anderson, vice-presidents, George B. Guild, secretary, and A. Putnam Woodward, treasurer.

Delays continued to be experienced by local people in getting automobile registrations out of Hartford, especially where applications have been made by mail.

The church council of the Danielson Federation of Churches is to meet Friday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church for supper and conference. The program is to be furnished by the Baptist church.

The first of the series of Neighborhood prayer meetings scheduled for this evening by the Danielson Federation of Churches attracted numbers of persons. In this week of prayer a number of such meetings are to be held here.

The Fortnightly club met this afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Smith of Broad street.

Hector A. Levesque of Lowell is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Members of Orient lodge, K. of P., and the affiliated Pythian Sisters are arranging for a joint installation the present week end.

Some of the local members of the Putnam Country club have played their first golf of the 1930 season, and found the course in very good condition, the season considered.

MOOSUP

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE GIVEN LUCIUS CRANSKA

Saturday evening, 21 men of the Forum surprised Lucius Cranska at his home. They found Mr. Cranska splicing motion picture films to show on House Warming night, during church dedication week. Miss Evelyn Cranska admitted the men and asked Mr. Cranska to meet callers, who wanted to see him. It was Mr. Cranska's birthday and a real surprise. Miss Cranska and Miss Mary Hope immediately took charge of games, etc. Anthony Paranzino and R. W. E. DeWolfe were chosen captains of teams to lift and transport beans on tooth picks. Everett Codlin decided he needed practice at the game. Iga Baker very generously allowed his time to elapse in the rapid-fire word production contest, staring magnanimously at his opponent, but uttering never a word. Anthony Paranzino browbeat Mr. DeWolfe by sounding forth so loudly that the scorers could not hear the minister at all. A hearty laugh was enjoyed when Anthony Paranzino moved himself from the throne to the foot of the class, by unthinkingly calling out his own number in a game when each one was supposed to call rapidly the number of someone else, all numbers being advanced one, when any person failed to respond immediately with a number. It was surprising how much alike all noses and eyes appeared when seen through narrow slits in a sheet. Thomas Hope was official announcer and timer, also referee of all contests. Thomas Scaton was the messenger between the living and dining rooms, appealing to authority when the men's teams disagreed as to the penalty to be exacted from the losing teams. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistant. Ted Mortimer congratulated Mr. Cranska on his 16th birthday and presented him a picture of the new church.

W. H. Richmond and Harry Lavernier of U. S. S. King spent the weekend at their home here.

MAYOR RICHARD TAKES OATH OF HIS OFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 7.—Charles A. Richard, republican, took the oath of office for the second time, Monday evening, before an audience which filled the council chambers in the municipal building on Church street. Several others who were desirous of witnessing the exercises were unable to gain admittance to the mayor's sanctum and consequently were forced to stand on the staircase leading up to the council rooms. Mayor Richard was given the oath by Thomas P. Ryan, city clerk. Mayor Richard succeeds himself and is the 18th chief executive of the city since its incorporation in 1896. Before calling the new council to order Mayor Richard arose, stepped to the desk of Clerk Ryan, raised his right hand and solemnly swore to execute faithfully the duties of his office.

Returning to his desk, Mayor Richard sent a messenger to summon four new councilors to their seats. They were Eugene Berthiaume, ward 1, Joseph P. Dubois, ward 2, M. Edward Duffy, ward 4, all democrats, and David Breault, ward 3, republican. Mayor Richard administered to each one the oath of office.

By a vote of the old council all unfinished business was carried over to the new governing body to be disposed of at its first regular meeting Tuesday evening. The out-going board of aldermen completed their duties by approving bills of the current month, voting that they be paid, and adjourning. Two aldermen, Adolph Desjardin, democrat, ward 4, and Leo Delisle, republican, ward 3, who were not reelected in the fall elections, retired from office carrying with them the mayor's expression of appreciation for the valuable services contributed during the past two years. Alderman Charles A. Ryan, who failed to be reelected, was absent. Alderman Edmund Dubois, who died in office early in the winter season, was succeeded by his son, Joseph.

Resolutions on the death of Captain of Police William J. Jarvis drawn up by the committee on resolutions were read, approved and ordered published and a copy mailed to members of his family.

The first order of business of the new government was the approving of a motion made by Alderman John M. Dean that the council go into executive session for the purpose of appointing municipal officers to serve for the ensuing two years. All who had gathered outside the rail were asked to leave the chambers to await the announcement of the results of the balloting. An hour had elapsed when the new slate of officers had been chosen, the only change being the appointing of Patrolman Alpheric Sponcey to the sergeantcy of the police department formerly held by George H. Liard.

With matters of appointment discharged the council adjourned until Tuesday evening, when the regular monthly meeting of the body will be held.

NEW CONTROL OF COUNCIL MANIFEST AT 1ST MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 7.—It was said today in official circles that a new clique of aldermen have assumed control of the common council. The formation of a controlling quintet of aldermen was clearly indicated Monday evening when the new administration of city government named Captain Alphonse Dubrieul, a supernumerary officer, to succeed the late Captain William Jarvis, an act which was directly in opposition to the slate compiled the previous day. It was generally understood that John J. McGarry, former mayor and captain of the military unit in this city, was to have been appointed. According to word which seeped out after the councilors retired from executive session, the board was unable to agree on McGarry for captaincy, a final round of balloting placing Captain Dubrieul in office by one vote.

CAPT. DUBRIEUL GREATLY PLEASED WITH APPOINTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 7.—Captain Alphonse Dubrieul, who became head of the police department Monday evening by a vote of the court of common council, was today host to hundreds of congratulations from his many friends and acquaintances when they learned of his success in his efforts for appointment. Captain Dubrieul asserted that the outcome greatly surpassed his expectations. "I am greatly surprised, although I am happy," Captain Dubrieul said. Continuing, he said, "I sought a berth on the regular force and never even dreamed of being made captain. Now that it has come about I'll give the city the best that's in me."

Captain Dubrieul is a tower of strength, possessing the physique of one who has attained success in athletic fields. He is nearly six feet in height and weighs almost 185 pounds. Captain Dubrieul is especially well adapted to take over the duties of the police captaincy. He has been a supernumerary officer for the past four years and has seen a great deal of active service under the direction of the late Captain Jarvis and ex-Sergeant Liard. He is of a courteous and tactful nature. While on patrol duties, Captain Dubrieul always made impressions upon those whom he served by his genial disposition and his firm but impartial execution of his duty. Captain Dubrieul is 41 years of age and has been a resident of this city for more than a quarter of a century. Previous to his appointment to the police force, he was employed at the foundry of Putnam Co. He is married and is the father of four children.

Captain Dubrieul will take up the duties of his office on Friday morning. Until he formally assumes charge of the department, Sergeant Alpheric Sponcey will direct the affairs of the police department. Patrolman Joseph G. Page is acting in charge of the department at night in the absence of Sergeant Sponcey.

The Putnam Theft Detecting society, organized more than a half century ago, became a thing of the past Monday when its few remaining members gathered in the community rooms of the Putnam Savings bank and passed a resolution to disband. Arthur Tourtellotte of Putnam Heights was the last president of the society and D. F. Wood of Putnam was the retiring secretary. The community has had no need for the services of a society of this nature in several years and since the establishment of the state police department, for the protection of the property of the rural residents, the Theft Detecting society's necessity has vanished. In the beginning the organization proved its efficiency and worth in the town in the suppression of horse stealing, but the passing of the one-time popular beast of burden and the general progress of the country made during the past 50 years are the reasons ascribed for the passing of the vigilantes.

Adhmear Bancll of Walnut street, victim of a hit-and-run driver, remains at the Day Kimball hospital in a serious condition, according to a report this afternoon. Mr. Begott is suffering from a badly fractured leg, a broken thumb and abrasions of the face and body. He was struck down by a speeding driver Saturday evening while delivering groceries in Attawaugan. State officers of Danielson barracks are continuing their search for the autoist responsible for the act. The evading of responsibility in such a case is a serious crime and is punishable by a stiff fine and a jail term.

The funeral of Vernon S. Warren of Hardwick, Mass., who died Sunday, was held this afternoon at his late home on Putnam Heights. A large number of relatives and friends attended the service, at which Rev. Henry H. Hodge, pastor of the Baptist church of this city, officiated. Burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Hodge conducted a committal service.

Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston announced today that the rate of fire loss in Putnam, per capita, for the past year amounts to $2.95. Chief Thurston said that this rate is exceedingly high and is certain to effect an increase in insurance rates. The chief engineer of the fire department stated that only two fires of serious consequence occurred during the past year, those being the blaze which destroyed the City hotel in March and the fire at the garage of the Linderman Motor Sales.

In the weekly card tournament held last evening at the Elks club rooms on Main street the Elks defeated the Masons by emerging on the long end of a 10-3 score. This is the second victory of the season for the Elks. The Masons, however, maintain a seasonal lead.

JEWETT CITY

REP. VOTERS SHOW SENSE— ENDORSE TRIED OFFICIALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 7.—The republican voters of the borough of Jewett City have held no caucus this year and the following names have been put in nomination to appear on the borough ballot, by the republican borough committee. When election day arrives, Jan. 27, a unique factor will exist, which in fact never has been seen before, so that before a single vote is cast the result will be, and is now, as certain and final as will be the declarations of the moderator after the count is completed. The republican committee has deemed it expedient to ratify the nominations of the democratic caucus in the nomination of Edmond J. Jodoin for warden, for a term of two years, and he will receive the solid vote of the borough. The two burgesses, both of whom will be elected, are Felix Guillet, rep., and Henry E. Olsen, dem. John F. Barnett, dem., will appear on both tickets for clerk and treasurer, as also will Stanley Sajiewicz for bailiff. The assessors will be Eudor LeClaire, dem., and John H. Tracy, rep., and the auditors, Louis Morey, dem., and George H. Prior, rep. Theodore Boule, dem., will be the borough's choice for collector of taxes. Mr. Boule is also the collector of the town of Griswold tax. What seems a good and sufficient reason for not warning a republican caucus is the fact that but few attend such meetings when they are held. Last year but six were present at the republican caucus, which was duly warned. Moreover, it also appears that the members of the present board of borough government have accomplished their several duties for the past year with economy and efficiency, and for the general well-being and benefit of the community.

A Main street man, as the gratification of a life-long desire, received as a Christmas present a fine marine barometer made by the famous Taylor, of Rochester, N. Y. and Toronto, Ont. The instrument, now hanging in the window, is not only an item of interest to the passers-by, but offers to some a puzzle when seen from the street, as to just what it is, anyhow. A passing girl remarked to her companion that the pretty clock in the window was stopped, as it was only ten minutes past 2. Three men and a bus driver came down and scrutinized the sensitive mechanism Tuesday, declaring after some pointing and much argument, that "It was going to rain tonight." G. H. Thornton, a retired seafaring man, called to look the thing over, and is the only one yet who can really give the low down and tell what is going on in its curious-looking internals.

At the January meeting of the warden and burgesses, Monday evening, the main business was the work of adjusting the budget for the coming year. Permission was given the M. A. Gammino Construction Co. to move certain buildings off the right-of-way of the new state road. The January bills were voted paid. The same board will meet again in February without change in personnel or assessment, the election Jan. 27 simply acting as a means of legal continuation.

Babies' Day in Borough

With the mercury from 58 to 61 for more than seven hours Tuesday, it was surely babies' day. At five minutes after 2 o'clock in the afternoon two men standing on Postoffice square counted, between the Slater library and Park square, 17 baby carriages, in which the possible first ladies and some-time presidents were enjoying an outing in the bright sunlight and open air, which was as balmy and mild as on a day in June.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kallenberger have returned from a visit in New York.

A big power excavator was at work in the Pachaug river bed, Tuesday, as though it were summer time. The great north land abutment is being stripped of its mold and presents a strange appearance, standing up 30 feet in what was, last summer, Mrs. W. A. Richardson's beautiful flower garden.

Opposed Ministers in Politics

Outstanding among the long list of momentous questions which were debated and definitely settled for all time by the once famous Jewett City lyceum was that presented for argument on the night of Jan. 19, 1858—"Ought Ministers of the Gospel to Engage in Party Politics?" There was a large assemblage present, the scent of the coming Civil war was already in the air, with interest and enthusiasm at fever heat. The speakers for the affirmative were E. C. Kelgwin, Daniel S. Anthony, C. W. Gallup, C. M. Boyd and Thomas Phillips. Those who won the decision in arguing for the negative were N. Perry Potter, Eseck Hankins, J. C. Hubbard and Thomas Clarke.

Mail Late Again

The overland mail arrived Tuesday morning at 7:45, due at 6 a. m., which is some improvement over the first trial Monday.

Party on Sixth Birthday

Mrs. Carl Benjamin entertained a party of children Saturday to celebrate the sixth birthday of her daughter, Ruth Mae. The children played games, in which Helen and Natalie Anderson, Christine Driscoll, Phyllis Gilbert, Ida Benjamin and Gladys McBroome received prizes. The dining room was decorated in yellow. Candies, yellow baskets of nuts and yellow bon-bons were at each child's place at the table. A birthday cake on which were six yellow candles was the centerpiece. Vari-shaped sandwiches, cookies, cake, ice cream and milk was the menu. The guests were Barbara Payne, Agnes Broadfoot, Miriam McNicol, Gladys McBroome, Phyllis Gilbert, Beatrice Dominick, Ida and Lillian Benjamin, Christine and John Driscoll, Doris French, Phyllis May Campbell, and John MacLean, Jr., of Jewett City; Helen and Natalie Anderson, Norwich and Evelyn Bauer, of Taftville. Lovely gifts were showered upon the small hostess. Mrs. Benjamin was assisted by Mrs. Walter Benjamin, Miss Verna Tarbox and Miss Annie Bauer, the last named of Taftville.

The Womans' Missionary society of the Congregational church is to meet at Mrs. F. E. Robinson's Thursday afternoon.

The primary department in the Congregational Sunday school is in charge of Mrs. F. E. Robinson, assisted by Mrs. Walter Benjamin and Miss Loretta Alley.

Paquette Car Stolen

Adrian Paquette's car was stolen Monday night while parked in front of his home. Soon after the theft he notified Officer Joseph Blanchette. It was while Mr. Paquette was getting ready to leave the house that the car was taken. It is thought that the car was pushed away from the house before the motor was started, because no sound of starting was heard. It is believed that the person or persons who stole the car speeded toward Webster. The car was a blue Chevrolet, with blue disc wheels and black top, a 1926 model, registered in Connecticut.

Mrs. Ralph Ravenelle is ill at her home.

The state inspector of schools was at Tourtellotte Memorial high school Tuesday.

U. S. EXTENSION FORCES PROMOTING COOPERATION

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The educational extension service of the department of agriculture assisted in organizing 842 cooperative purchasing or marketing associations with 83,668 members last year, says Dr. C. W. Warburton, director.

In addition, county extension workers cooperated with 2,269 associations, having 415,594 members, which had been organized in previous years.

Altogether, the cooperatives in the United States have 2,000,000 members, many farmers belonging to two or more associations. When duplications are eliminated, it is probable that not more than one-fourth of the farmers belong to cooperatives.

Yeggs who were either too stupid or too excited to read wasted a lot of futile effort on a safe at Norristown, Pa. They dragged the heavy safe from the office and lugged it into an alley, where, with chisels, they attacked the combination. Eventually they got it open, to find it empty. In plain view, fastened to the door of the safe, was a card giving exact instructions how to open it.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Lullaby

We've wandered all about the upland
fallows,
We've watched the rabbits at their
play,
But now goodnight, good-by to soaring swallows,
Now good-night, good-by, dear day.

Poppy heads are closing fast, pigeons circling home at last;
Sleep, liebchen, sleep, the bats are calling.
Pansies never miss the light, but sweet babes must sleep at night;
Sleep Liebschen, sleep, the dew is falling.

Even wind among the quiet willows
Rests and the sea is silent too,
See soft white linen, cool, such cool and white pillows
Wait in the darkling room for you.

All the little chicks are still; now the moon peeps down the hill;
Sleep, Liebschen, sleep, the owls are hooting.
Ships have hung their lanthorns out;
little mice dare creep about,
Sleep, liebchen, sleep, the stars are shooting.

The American Boy

Father, look up and see the flag
How gracefully it flies,
Those pretty stripes—they seem to be
A rainbow in the skies.

It is your country's flag, my son,
And proudly drinks the light;
O'er ocean's waves in foreign climes
A symbol of our might.

Father, what fearful noise is that,
Like thundering of the clouds?
Why do the people wave their hats,
And rush along in crowds?

It is the noise of cannon, boy,
The glad shouts of the free;
This is the day to memory dear—
'Tis Freedom's Jubilee.

I wish that I were now a man,
I'd fire my cannon, too,
And cheer as loudly as the rest—
But father why don't you?

I'm getting old and weak—but still
My heart is big with joy;
I've witnessed many a day like this—
Shout you aloud, my boy.

Hurrah for Freedom's Jubilee!
God bless our native land!
And may I live to hold the sword
Of Freedom in my hand!

Well, well, my boy—grow up and love
The land that gave you birth;
A home where Freedom loves to dwell
Is paradise on earth.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES

Why do people always say "I can't do this or I can't do that," when they are faced with a tough problem? People who are inclined to use these phrases are hopeless, so say our wise men of today. They claim that we can do a thing if we persevere and put our mind to the problem.

Usually young children are asked to do certain things by their parents. If they are otherwise engaged they tell their parents that they are unable to do it, and go on with what they are doing. It is up to the mother and father at this time to break their children of this habit.

If it is not broken at the outset the habit becomes more and more pronounced, until later in life the child will not be able to get out of the rut. It is a good idea to stamp out this habit while it is budding. This can be done not only by the mother or father, but with the assistance of the child.

He must be shown that it is a bad habit and try to fight himself. A habit of this sort will in later life make him unpopular with his friends. In this way, every time he is asked to assist with a knotty problem or help in doing a little hard work and his answer is in the negative he will lose his friends, and be avoided.

Now it is up to the members of this circle to beware of such a habit while they are young. Make up your mind that you will not be a member of the "I can't" club.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDEAWAKES

HELEN FINDS HAPPINESS

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to the Wideawakes for quite a while. I made up a story and thought I would sent it to you. I hope the Wideawakes will like it. The name of it is, "Helen Finds Happiness."

Helen had come home very unhappy. All her friends had shuned her. She had not played any of their games because they would not play all of hers. The truth was that Helen wanted too much of her own way. She told her mother about the girls and her mother told her to leave the girls alone for a few days and amuse herself some other way. Helen asked her mother how she could do this and her mother said by making other people happy. Helen decided to try this.

The next day she asked her mother what she could do first. Her mother told her there was a sick girl who lived near her house, and said it would be nice to take her something. Alice had saved some money and she bought some fruit with it.

Helen took this to the little girl who was very glad to see Helen for no one had come to see her while she was sick. The girl happened to be Molly whom Helen had always shuned at school because she was very poor.

Helen gave the fruit to Molly. She also gave her a book which she had brought along. They soon became good friends and Helen visited Molly many times before she was better.

In trying to make herself happy Helen had made others happy.

THE STORY OF A FRIEND

Dear Uncle Jed: One day in February Rebecca and I took our sleds and started for a near-by hill, to coast.

It was a clear cold morning and the sidewalk was a smooth sheet of ice, so that we had to pick our way very carefully and go single file. Halfway to the hill I tripped over my sled rope and fell, striking my head on the sidewalk with terrible force. "Rebecca, Rebecca!" I called; but before she answered darkness overtook me.

The next thing I knew something held touched my face and I heard a clear little voice cry: "Coal man! Coal man! Rose is hurted, Rose is hurted!" Opening my eyes, I saw tiny Rebecca kneeling beside me, rubbing snow on my forehead. Then came footsteps and the "coal man" bent over me. His help, however, was not needed, and I went home with a great lump on my forehead.

How had little Rebecca known what to do? Everybody wondered. In answer to questions she said: "Rose was asleep out there in the cold so I rubbed snow on her to wake her up."

Do you know a truer, braver friend than four-year-old Rebecca? I do not.

ABOUT THE TOAD

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wideawake Circle. I will write about some things I have learned this winter about the toad. The way the toad drinks is through his skin. He hops to a moist place in the ground and takes in the water through his skin.

I have also learned how the writing pen got its name. Long ago people used to use feather quills sharpened to a point to write with. The Latin word for feather is "penna."

Then it was shortened to pen. The quill pens used to wear down quick so the penknife was used to sharpen them. That's how the penknife got its name.

THE SILKWORM

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been studying about silk in my geography class at school and would like to tell the Wideawakes about a great insect which helps to make the silk.

The wonderful insect that makes the silk is the larva of a small moth called Sericaria mori. The moth is classed with the scaly-winged insects family or spinners. This species of caterpillar is commonly called the mulberry silkworm.

First reared in China, it is now extensively cultivated in China, Japan Italy, France, Spain and other European countries.

In these countries are large groves of mulberry trees. The leaves are picked and fed to silkworms. When full grown, the worms form from their bodies the silk fibre and wind it around themselves, forming cocoons. These very fine fibres are carefully unwound and made into silk thread and silk fabrics.

RECEIVES MANY GIFTS

Dear Uncle Jed and Wideawakes: I hope you all have had a merry Christmas. I'm sure I did and I'm going to tell you a little about our Christmas tree and about the presents I received.

My father went out into the woods and cut down a cedar tree and brought it home and placed it in a room. The tree was all ice so we built a fire in the stove to melt the ice off before any trimming could be done. My sisters and I made all the Christmas trimmings this year. We made red and green, green and white, and red trimmings. We put them on the tree which made the tree look real pretty. Then we put all the small presents on the tree. We also placed some candyboxes filled with candy on the tree and a Santa filled with candy and two stockings with candy and pop corn.

Now I will tell you about the presents that I received. I received ten presents. I will mention some, a pair of stockings, powder, a fancy pin in shape of a flower, a pair of stockings, a set containing a box of powder, toilet water and perfume, and two handkerchiefs. I hope all the Wideawakes will enjoy reading my letter.

CHRISTMAS IN SWITZERLAND

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you will enjoy my story of a Christmas in Switzerland.

Once there were some girls who lived in Paris, while their grandparents lived in Switzerland. They were going to spend their Christmas in the mountains. One morning before Christmas, they started. Their grandfather was waiting for them in his sleigh. Up through the mountains they went. The horses plunged through the deep snow. The whole country looked like fairyland.

Soon they saw a light. It was from the beloved Swiss farmhouse. Grandma was waving to them.

That night was Christmas eve. After a hot supper, they sang songs around the Christmas tree. Then they drove to a near-by village church. The moon was bright. The church bells echoed through the high mountains. They called everyone to church to join in the singing of Christmas carols.

Early Christmas morning the children were out on the mountain side with their skis. They had a happy time all day. After ten days in the mountains, the children, with tears in their eyes, said good-bye to their grandparents.

STAGES CIRCUS IN BARN

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope you will like my story of a rainy day at a farm on my vacation.

The name of the farm was called Meadow Brook. A circus was coming to town on July 10. When that day came it was raining. We were greatly disappointed. When all of a sudden little Billy said why not have a circus in the old barn. Our faces soon turned from sad faces into glad faces. Betty went to get some more children while I went to fix the barn. We got Rosie, the cat, and Snap the dog, to be wild animals. Then some of the boys acted as clowns and cowboys. The show started and the actors went through their acts very good and the show was nearly ended when all of a sudden there was a great noise. An old turkey had wandered into the barn and got hold of Rosie's tail. We could not get them apart when all of a sudden, little Billy took his toy fire-engine and squirted water at them. This soon made them let go of each other. After this excitement the show ended. It was enjoyed as well as a real circus.

FERTILIZER INCREASES QUALITY OF PASTURE GRASS

A striking feature of the effect of fertilizer on the pasture grass fertilized by the Hohenheim system under trial at the Massachusetts Agricultural college is the protein content of the herbage. The fertilized sod was thick with white clover and blue-grass while that without fertilizer was thinner and showed little if any clover. Chemical analysis showed that the average for both seasons of all grass samples from plats which received the complete fertilizer was 17.5 per cent. crude protein in the dry matter while all samples from the check or no-fertilizer sections averaged 13.3 per cent.

The fertilized plat received a spring top-dressing of 250 pounds of Nitrophoska II. (16.5-16.5-20. In addition it received three summer applications of Calurea at the rate of 44 pounds per acre for each application. Calurea is a product containing 34 per cent. nitogen.

The carrying capacity for the past season in animal units was 11 units on the fertilized area and five units in the unfertilized area.

NEGLECTED AND MISUSED CEMETERIES

For varying reasons cemeteries are neglected and allowed to grow up to thickets and briars. In such instances their boundaries are for the most part fully defined and maintained. It is simply a lack of interest in maintenance because those who should be interested in them are unmindful of their duty or have moved so far away that the condition is not known and the existence is virtually forgotten.

There are other burying grounds where conditions are even worse, for the walls or the fences have long since gone, the land has been used for pasturage and the number of graves and their exact location has become uncertain.

The attention of the Westerly town council has just been called to what was once a cemetery, where the graves are still well defined but where only two gravestones remain standing, one of these stones carrying a G. A. R. marker and a flag being surrounded by wire netting and included in what is being used for a chicken yard. This is part of a burying ground believed to be about 200 years old, of which the records are missing but through which a road was apparently constructed when an estate was sold, and it was cut up into lots which included the old-time graves.

The situation is not so very different from what exists in Norwich, where the burying ground of the first settlers of this town is now unmarked and unprotected, subject to encroachment of homebuilders, even though the land was given to the town for burial purposes and preservation.

Less seems to be known about the Westerly cemetery than about the first burying ground in Norwich but in each instance there is evidence which indicates hallowed ground that ought to be protected and guarded against its utilization for other purposes. The agitation in Westerly, like that in Norwich, has been started for the purpose of redeeming the land and restoring the cemetery. The town council is to be congratulated and it is to be hoped that it will be followed with more definite results than those which have attended the effort here. It is bad enough to see the small and old cemeteries which show conspicuous evidence of neglect, but the picture of cemeteries which have been converted into chicken yards or been converted to other use without any attempt at removal of bodies is sad beyond description.

INTERESTED HELPERS

Delegations have come to Washington almost every year to urge the granting of independence to the Philippines. Thus, the one now on its way establishes no precedent and will probably advance no new reasons. Possibly it is heartened by the attitude which has been taken by certain members of congress, who have recently advocated giving the islands their freedom, but it certainly cannot be encouraged by the motive that is back of such advocacy.

New support for the independence of the islands has developed, not because of an interest in giving more advantages to the Filipinos, or because it is believed they have advanced to the point where they should be allowed to do as they please. It is based upon the fact that the islands are offering a considerable competition to the beet sugar growers here, and the desire is to have the islands placed in such a position that they will stand in the same relative position as all other foreign countries do in regard to the tariff.

The idea is that if independence can be granted to the Philippines it will be impossible for the islands to send sugar to this country without paying a duty on it. At the present time, inasmuch as the islands are American territory, no duty can be levied. But cast them loose and let them set up for themselves and they become foreign territory. The Philippines then would be subject to the same sugar duty as other foreign countries, higher even than the favorable duty which is permitted to Cuba.

It was through this same spirit of hostility to the Philippine sugar that others have urged that all sugar brought to this country must come in American ships, by extending the coastwise laws to include the Philippines. That, likewise, was for the purpose of increasing the cost of the island sugar landed in this country.

There is probably no chance of independence being granted at this time, but certainly the island delegation seeking such action cannot gain much encouragement from such manifestations of "friendship."

FIXING TICKET COMMISSION

For a long time the theater goers in New York city have been subjected to an extortionate charge by the various agencies which handle the tickets. There have been times when it was necessary to pay anything that was demanded. The fellow with the big wad was the one who could get tickets under any circumstances. The fellow who was willing to pay a reasonable increase for the accommodation he received in getting his tickets could expect little attention.

Efforts which have been made to put an end to the ticket scalpers have had temporary benefits, but not until much needed legislation was enacted regulating such agencies. And yet, no sooner has the public been given protection in this respect than it is found there is gross injustice prevailing in the demands which are made upon the agencies by certain of the theaters. This has resulted in an agreement among 25 of the theaters whereby they agree to consign a block of seats to the brokers with the understanding that the brokers shall collect no more than a 75 cent commission in selling such seats, and it is understood that in obtaining these blocks of tickets for the best shows the brokers will not be forced to pay for all the tickets which may remain when less popular shows are on. The brokers, on the other hand, must agree not to "buy" any of the tickets outright, they being subject to the withholding of the tickets in case they do anything of the kind. Under this arrangement the broker will get a clear commission on all he sells and be able to return the unsold, leaving him no legitimate excuse for charging exorbitant commissions.

The theaters have apparently come to the realization of the fact that through the methods which have been practiced the would-be theater goers are being driven away from the play houses in considerable number. These people have come to the conclusion that they are being discriminated against and they have become disinterested, to the detriment of the box office receipts.

By this agreement it is acknowledged that undesirable conditions have prevailed in the past, that it is time they were ended and that only by a fair understanding and treatment of all concerned can it be expected that it will be accomplished.

EIGHTH ST. CROSSING SIGNALS

For the automatic signal at the Eighth street crossing to go out of commission within a week after it was put into operation doesn't create confidence in this type of protection at a blind crossing.

At the present time this is the only means of warning the highway users that a train is approaching. Pedestrians and vehicle drivers rely upon the flashing signals to guard them against being struck by a locomotive, but if the signal doesn't work they are left in a bad predicament. Under ordinary circumstances they would be disposed to stop, look and listen, but when signals have been erected upon which crossing users have been told they could depend they are placing themselves under the guidance of such mechanism and are not prepared to question its accuracy.

When the signals were authorized by the public utility commission over the protest of the city and town authorities, it was claimed that there would be additional protection given to the highway users at the crossing because the signals would be in operation 24 hours a day, while the flagman was at his post only during fixed hours.

Possibly the test of the flashing signal has not been sufficient to condemn it, but it is perfectly evident that but for a bit of good fortune the substitution of the signal for the flagman would have been the cause of an accident with possibly fatal results at a crossing which is recognized as a bad one.

Whatever went wrong with the signals, whether through accident or being tampered with, it is to be hoped that it is not going to be a matter of frequent occurrence, and that it will not so mislead the traveling public so as to make the crossing more dangerous than it has been or would ordinarily be.

READY FOR THE CONFERENCE

Tomorrow the American delegation to the London conference makes its departure. It goes for the purpose of giving whatever aid it can in reaching an agreement that will delay any further construction of battleships and in bringing about a limitation on the construction of cruisers, submarines and other warships.

It is no more than should be expected and yet it is gratifying to know that the members of our delegation are of one mind, that they will stand as a unit and work for the best possible solution and there are reasons for believing that they will give due weight to the advice of President Hoover that the aim should not be to arrive at hasty conclusions.

There is no dodging the fact that there are some stiff problems to be faced and it is known in advance that there are differences of opinion as expressed by the representatives of nations that will participate. There seems to be no question about a recognition of the merits of the undertaking but the uncertainty seems to lie in how far it will be possible to have any agreement extend.

At present there is the naval pact which has demonstrated its value over a period of years so positively that less difficulty seems to face an extension of that than in obtaining agreement upon other limitations. Each nation must look to its own welfare and it is evident that they do not all look through the same eyes.

Nevertheless, our delegation will set forth with confidence and a determination that every effort will be made to reach an understanding. It is not a question of making speed, but of getting desired results that will operate to the advantage of each and every one of the leading powers.

THE CITY DWELLER

The last child had gone with a shy "Good Night, Miss Haley," and the room, so alive a few moments before, was now so quiet that the stillness could be heard. Miss Haley looked at the walls, decorated with colored crayon pictures, the strained effort of the best artists in the class—"Mine's the best. It got hung up."

She looked at the haze of chalk dust that never seemed to quiet clear, at the dusty floor, at her desk where rested the banana Marietta had brought her. She was glad bananas had skins. Marietta's hands were always dirty. Gently into the waste basket she put the poor withered roses that Orville had brought her. Poor flowers; their heads held high by wire-tortured stems until they became so heavy that even these props could hold them no longer.

She went over to the window. It was a lovely day—soft breezes—sunshine—she thought she smelled lilacs. Lilacs, in this brick and cinder paved school yard! This weather did make her think of home. Lilacs were blooming there now and people would be coming out on their porches to call in friendly fashion to the passers-by. Yes, she thought, and to find out where they had been and where they were going. Small-town interest. That was one of the reasons she came away. There was no privacy in a place like that. Not even in her own home. Her letters. The postman, an old friend, brought them, looked at the post-mark, the return address, the thickness of them and then remarked, "Better watch Ellie, Mrs. Haley, or she'll be leavin' you one of these days."

And her mother. Well, the letters looked read. Things were different here. At her staid and respectable boarding house one's privacy was respected. Letters were placed on the table in the hall. When you came in you just glanced at them to see if you had one. Of course, you couldn't help seeing that Miss Ewing got one every day in the same masculine writing—he must be a traveling man, they had so many different postmarks.

And Mr. Berger. There was lots of German mail for him. Maybe he had a wife there. And that Mr. Collins. Nothing but bills. And over and over again. She didn't think much of him. Well, she was the first one home anyway—no one saw her letters.

Of course, Mrs. Potts, who graciously "took in" these few paying guests, would often say, "I see a letter from your mother today, Miss Haley," or "You must of bought a dress this month. There's a bill from Hiblers." But that was nothing. Mrs. Potts was far too cosmopolitan to succumb to provincial curiosity. No one would think anything of comments made in so purely impersonal a way. People were different in the city.

Miss Haley leaned a bit further out of the window. Miss Adams, the eighth-grade teacher, passed. Those certainly were not school clothes she had on. Miss Haley wondered where she was going. At least there was some place to go. Not just to church or to a picture show or to the neighbors' houses, all so like your own.

Here there were people with whom you could really converse. They talked about things that were vital—not just food and other people. Oh, the deadly monotony of the small town where each day in the week in a family's life stood for the same thing for weeks without end. How glad she was to be away from it. How different people were who had a broader outlook in life. Her crowd, for instance.

Often they just met in one another's apartment, sat around on the floor and talked. Or they would get "wienies" at the delicatessen. It was such fun to cook them over the tiny stove in the little kitchenettes, discuss the latest plays which they read, as theatres were so expensive, and the really worth-while books; those that had a message. That was the life.

She turned back to the room. Time to go. She wondered if Miss Guilford had gone yet. She would like to invite her out to supper tonight. Miss Guilford was from a small town, too. She paused a moment before going to Miss Guilford's room. What day was today? Tuesday. No, she would not ask Miss Guilford today. Tuesday at Miss Potts' select boarding house meant pot roast and apple dumplings. Tomorrow—Wednesday—yes, that would be better. Chicken and ice cream. She could depend on that—every Wednesday.

Miss Haley put on her sophisticated little hat and, though it was warm, her coat. No one in the city ever went without one. She walked out lightly, happy in the thought that she had rescued herself from the blighting monotony of a little town where every one did exactly what every one else did. Here she was really was living. Thank God for cities.—Chicago News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—With Prime Minister MacDonald's labor—or rather labour—ministry actually within eight votes of being ousted along in December, the success of the London naval parley may well also have trembled in the balance.

A great deal in the judgment of American veterans of the Washington naval pow-wow, is going to rest on the skill of the presiding officer of that London gathering and on his tact and initiative in meeting unexpected emergencies.

The Washington conference minutes are full of examples. Time and again the quickness or preception and resourceful expedients of Charles Evans Hughes saved the situation.

Presumably Mr. MacDonald will be immediately named to preside over the London meetings. It is customary thus to honor the inviting nation. Washington observers, official and unofficial, agreed during Mr. MacDonald's brief visit to President Hoover that he had what was necessary to meet situations he might face at London. He made a very good impression, beyond doubt.

Fateful

And he has one other important qualification. That is the urgent will to bring the conference to definite accomplishments. His political fate, to a far greater degree than that of President Hoover, who was the initial sponsor for the new attempt at naval limitation, may be bound up in success of what he has undertaken.

Should he fall as prime minister before the conference and some other statesman, not similarly committed, take his place, there might be all the difference in the world in the results obtained.

An example of Mr. Hughes' adroit dealing with a difficult situation came December 28, 1921, when the French delegation put in the officially announced auxiliary ship building program of the Paris government.

A Hughes Victory

That was the point where the Washington conference verged on complete breakdown. But Hughes was ready for the test. It had been obvious to all that an accord on limitations beyond those applying to capital ships and airplane carriers was not possible.

As chairman, Mr. Hughes regretfully admitted this. He promptly saved the situation in part, however, by proposing that even if limitation of total tonnage in cruisers, submarines, destroyers and other auxiliary craft was impossible, the attempt be made to set out definitions of size and armament limitations for individual ships.

Mr. Hughes said he did not understand the British reservation of "the full right to build any auxiliary craft which she considered necessary "to build under guise of auxiliary ships, vessels which might possibly come within the category of capital ships."

And Mr. Hughes then presented the American proposal for a maximum cruiser limit of 10,000 tons and 8-inch guns.

It was accepted with little discussion, with a few additional definitions, and to that extent projected the Washington conference beyond a mere capital ship accord

YOUR HEALTH

THE SAFETY OF SURGERY.

By C. JEFF MILLER, M. D.
New Orleans, Louisiana.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

Up to 75 years ago surgery was not safe. Before that time and indeed up to 50 years ago, operations performed in any hospital amounted to less than 5 per cent. of the total admissions. Deliberately undertaken surgical procedures were limited to organs outside of the adbominal cavity like the kidneys and the bladder, because opening the depths of the body meant a death rate of nearly 100 per cent. Compound fractures, in which the skin was broken and the tissues were injured, were particularly fatal. Infection was the almost invariable sequel of any wound and surgery was mostly of an emergency nature, done as a last resort, with a small hope of success, and resorted to only because death seemed inevitable under any circumstances.

Today the reverse of that situation is true. Fifty per cent. and more of the total hospital admissions are surgical. Men and women need no longer suffer and die from diseases which yield only to the knife, for operations of the most extensive and radical kind are undertaken deliberately. Infection following them is a rare occurrence, the death rate for most of them has been reduced to incredibly low figures, and for some of them it has been reduced to zero.

In other words surgery today, humanly speaking, is safe. In many instances it is safer than medical treatment, for certain diseases cannot be treated in any other way. Infection has been eliminated by the work of Semmelweis, Pasteur and Lister, and the application by modern science of the results of their work. Anesthesia makes possible the deliberate and careful performance of operations and eliminates the necessity for sacrificing painstaking gentleness to speed. Moreover, the use of local and spinal anesthesia means that patients constitutionally unfitted for ether and other inhalation anesthesias may still reap the benefits of surgical treatment. Scientific training has taught surgeons not only how to operate, but when and why to operate. Careful pre-operative preparation has converted cases formerly considered hopeless risks into relatively safe ones, and equally careful post-operative treatment avoids complications once considered almost inevitable. Moreover, thanks to the inspiration of Florence Nightingale, skilled nursing both before and after operation, and skilled assistance for the surgeon at operation, has still further increased the patient's safety.

There is no reason today why anyone in the need of surgical treatment should fear surgery, though old wives' tales about it are still widely told. It is a cruel kindness, we grant, but the fact cannot be gainsaid that it is kind in spite of its cruelty. The men and women in enjoyment of vigorous health today who 50 years ago would have been dragging out a miserable existence, and the men and women alive today who 50 years ago would have been dead, bear eloquent testimony to that. The chief danger of surgery today is not the act of operation but delay in resorting to it, and surgery will never be as safe as it can be made until the public co-operates with the medical profession to eliminate the evil of calling on the surgeon in emergencies which, by the periodic health audit, might have been avoided.

A YANKEE ABROAD

Sandy Speaks For Britain.

LONDON—Britain's yearly bill for alcoholic drinks is about $1,460,000,000, or 300,000,000 pounds.

It's amazing where all this money comes from, in view of the industrial depression and the terrible unemployment problem. Even now the labor government is battling to get a bill through parliament for a big increase in the doles to working people.

The latest drink figures available are for 1928, which give an estimate of 298,800,000 pounds. That is upward of half the sum called for by the entire British government budget for the present year, including expenditures on navy, army and air force. And education. And poor relief.

I was discussing this matter with my Scotch friend, Sandy Machrihanish of Aberdeen the other night. He is by the way of being an expert on matters alcoholic. Also his views frequently represent those of the majority of the people over here.

"That's an awful lot to pay for irrigation of the throat," I ventured. "It would be an awful lot even if we humans had necks like giraffes."

"Aye," replied Sandy, with a gloomy glance at his empty glass. "But it would feel verra gude runnin' doon a neck as long as that. It's na so bad gein' doon a sherrt neck, for that matter."

"But look at the vast quantity," I exclaimed. "If that booze were poured into one spot, there would be enough to float all the warships of the five powers which will convene in London to discuss reduction of navies."

"Dinna be silly," retorted Sandy, looking through the bottom of his glass. "Ye could na pourr it all into one basin, the the first place. And if ye could, there'd be so many bathers that there would na be any room for warrships."

Sandy hasn't much imagination. So I seized on something more practical for an illustration.

"How about sausages," I offered.

"'Dogs' cost a penny each. You could buy 71,712,000,000 for that booze money. Imagine it! A total of 35,856,000,000 feet of sausages—6,790,909 miles of 'em. If placed end to end they would reach——"

"Aye, I know," interrupted Sandy, as he cocked one eye at that empty glass. "And if all o' 'em barked at the same time, the noise would be hearrd rround the worrld. If each of them had pups, they would reach to the moon."

"Look here," I exclaimed in exasperation, "you're not taking this thing seriously. Many people in this country, including prominent labor leaders, David Lloyd George, your former premier, and Lady Astor, are dead against this expenditure for booze.

"If you keep on sinking such a huge sum in alcohol, while times are so hard and there are a million and a quarter unemployed workers, what will you have? Tell me that. What will you have?"

"A wee drap o' whuskey, thanks," said Sandy.

Little Talks on Thrift

Must Be Practiced Voluntarily—Not Under Coercion.

The practices of thrift should be undertaken voluntarily. Seldom if ever is good accomplished when efforts are made to compel others to be thrifty. The only approach to thrift is educational. Those who are to profit by adherence to this simple virtue must first be convinced in their own minds that it is essential to their welfare and progress.

There are many devices now being made use of to encourage thrift. Where these are inspirational they will bring results. But no good will come of efforts to force habits of thrift upon others.

The executive heads of a large business organization, believing they were doing their employees a favor, made an arbitrary arrangement by which a certain percentage of each person's salary was to be withheld for savings purposes.

Although the plan was originated with the best motives, it proved unsuccessful. The apparent paternalistic attitude was resented by the rank and file of the organization. Later, the plan was discarded and a voluntary arrangement was substituted. Each person on the payroll of the concern was then permitted to order a certain percentage of his salary withheld. These savings were administered by the company's officials and the plan developed into a great success.

Even in school savings bank work loud protests frequently are provoked when efforts are made to compel the children to deposit certain fixed amounts.

The practices of thrift include a considerable amount of discipline and sacrifice. Most of us are willing to undergo these severities when self-imposed but we rebel when efforts are made by others to compel us to submit to them.

These are timely suggestions because around the beginning of the year much thought is given to the development of thrift societies and organized savings work. It should be borne in mind that all such activities will succeed only when their impulses are inspirational.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Horses, Horses!

A young teacher wishing to note the Christmas season drew a picture on the blackboard, with colored chalk, of the three wise men on their camels. She had some difficulty in depicting the camels and took great pains with them. She was rewarded the next morning. One of the little boys coming into the room gazed long and earnestly at the picture. Then he said admiringly:

"Gee, Miss X———, I wish I could draw a horse as good as that!"

Why?

Swearing in the home of four year old Junior was limited to "holy gee." After listening to Christmas carols over the radio, Junior very earnestly inquired:

"Mother, why do they sing that holy gee night song so much?"

STATE PRISON AND JAIL SENTENCES GIVEN IN SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

The superior court criminal session, which opened here Tuesday morning with Judge C. L. Avery presiding, got right to work imposing sentences when State Attorney Arthur M. Brown first presented before the court those who were willing to plead guilty.

Judge Avery entered the court room soon after 10 o'clock, accompanied by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church, who offered a brief prayer before Judge Avery directed Deputy Sheriff Manuel Martin to open court. The spectators' seats in the court room were filled to capacity during the session.

Most of those presented at the morning session had for their counsel Public Defender Charles L. Stewart.

State Prison Sentence

Sedrick Kennett, 23, of East Lyme, was sentenced to not less than 3 nor more than 10 years in state prison for placing a large rock and parts of an automobile on the New Haven railroad tracks in East Lyme on Dec. 3, 1929.

State Attorney Brown said that Kennett's explanation was that he put the obstructions on the track so that he could flag the State of Maine express and get a reward. A freight train hit the obstruction before the express came along.

The state attorney spoke at length on Kennett's record which began in 1926 with commitment to the reformatory for theft of an automobile at Ashford. Later he was committed to the insane asylum at Middletown, escaped from there, broke into the summer home of Congressman E. W. Higgins at Mashapaug, was sent back to Middletown, escaped again, was caught in Springfield, sent back to Middletown and from there to the Cheshire reformatory from which he was discharged. Before this attempt to wreck the train, Kennett had tried unsuccessfully to hold up two automobiles with a revolver.

Public Defender Stewart did not oppose the recommendation for a state prison sentence, saying that Kennett seemed to be a psycopathic personality who could be treated there.

For Stealing Automobile

Clarence King, 18, a Voluntown youth, who stole the Buick coupe of Joseph Duhaime from the garage on the night of Sept. 8, 1929 after Duhaime had given him a ride home from Jewett City was sent to the reformatory at Cheshire. The car was found about a month later in Lonsdale, R. I., about the time that King reappeared in Jewett City and was arrested. Public Defender Stewart concurred in the recommendation for a reformatory sentence.

Drove Away With Automobile

James Perry, 32, whose home is in Jacksonville, Fla., was given a six months jail sentence, without costs, on the charge of driving an automobile without consent of the owner. He was arrested on the charge of theft of the automobile of Wm. C. Smith at New London on the night of Dec. 31, 1929, being caught at Bridgeport while on the way to New York. At that time he had with him his wife and a passenger they had picked up. State Attorney Brown said he was giving Perry the benefit of the doubt in changing the charge from theft to driving without consent. The man had been married in New York in September, had gone to Springfield looking for work, came to New London where he was about "broke", when he took the car to get back to New York, where he could get help. According to Perry's statement, he intended to notify the owner of the car after he got to New York.

Perry's wife was in court and talked to him through the grating of the pen whenever there was a recess in the court session.

Given Jail Sentence

A sentence of four months in jail, without costs, was given to Elizabeth Klein, 22, of Worcester, who has been in jail since her arrest on the charge of theft of a diamond ring, valued at $1,000, the property of Mrs. Ida Lynch of Washington, D. C.

State Attorney Brown explained to the court that the theft took place on Sept. 9, 1929, at a party in this city. It disappeared at the party after Mrs. Lynch had laid it down in one of the rooms. The ring was recovered in a Boston pawnshop where the accused had pawned it for $35, the trail which led to her detection having been picked up when she was noticed displaying the ring at Norwich state hospital where she was employed.

The state attorney had the ring in court and showed it to Judge Avery.

Will Be Out in May

Archie Burns, 32, of this city had a smile on his face when Judge Avery gave him a sentence of four months in jail without costs. "If this man is sentenced to four months in jail," remarked the judge before passing sentence, "that would bring him out in May, which would be a good time for him to look for work and also give him time to sober up," which was the occasion for Burns' smile. State Attorney Brown had recommended a jail sentence of six months on the charge of statutory burglary for getting into the Sophy Paskiewits restaurant at 96 West Main street on the night of Oct. 19. The man was caught in the restaurant by the Norwich policeman on the beat.

Nolle on $100 Payment

Recommendation of a nolle on payment of $100 was recommended by the state attorney in the case of Walter F. Congdon of this city, accused of violation of the liquor law in a sale of a pint of whiskey at an alleged speakeasy on Lake street on Sept. 7, to one, Charles F. Hill. The state attorney said he believed the man was guilty, but thought there would be considerable difficulty in proving it. The $100 had already been paid to him by Attorney Edward Moran for Congdon, the state attorney said, and Judge Avery followed his recommendation as to sentence.

Nolle on Embezzlement Charge

There was a nolle on recommendation of the state attorney in the case of Albert W. Lundberg of New London, accused of embezzlement on Oct. 4, of $494.09 from the Pellock Gas & Oil Co. of New London. If Lundberg was a tenant he owes the concern about $400 and is not guilty of any crime, said Mr. Brown, but if he is agent, he embezzled the money. The state attorney said he didn't want to have the superior court used to collect accounts and Judge Avery facetiously observed that it was not a "small claims" court.

At this point a recess was taken while counsel for various of the accused men were in conference with Judge Avery in his room, and when court convened again a number of other sentences were passed before the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

Norman [illegible] and Maurice Killeen, both of Montville, pleaded guilty to simple assault on a Norwich girl on Oct. [illegible] in Montville and were each fined $100 and costs. They had been arrested on a more serious accusation against the Norwich young woman, who is a restaurant employe.

Jail Sentence With Fine

Joseph Bedard of this city, against whom there were counts of violation of the liquor law, pleaded guilty to one count, that of sale. The other counts were nolled. State Attorney Brown moved for sentence, declaring that this was a first offense, but the man had been in the business for some time and he insisted that there ought to be some jail sentence in this case. He recommended a fine of $200 and costs with ten days in jail. Judge Avery made this the sentence. Attorney Thomas J. Kelly was counsel for Bedard.

Bedard was one of those arrested here last fall in a series of liquor raids and the counts against him included three cases of sales to William Forest and Herbert Gray on Oct. 29, 30 and 31, keeping with intent to sell and reputation from Jan. 1, 1929, to Dec. 31, 1929, at the Central House on West Main street.

To Women's State Farm

Fred Ladd and Mrs. Ellen A. Wheeler, both of the Yantic section of the city, were before the court on adultery charges on Sept. 29. They pleaded guilty. Mrs. Wheeler was committed to the state farm for women and Ladd was sentenced to 30 days in jail, without costs in either case.

For Crap Dispute Stabbing

James Lee, colored, a Norwich man whose attorney was Thomas M. Shields, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and on recommendation of the state attorney was fined $50 and costs. State Attorney Brown said this came near to being a case of self-defense, but not quite. Lee was watching a crap game in a house on the West Side, when he was called on to referee a dispute and when he decided against a Providence man by the name of Savard, the Providence man attacked him. Lee stabbed his attacker in the abdomen with a pocket knife. He had always been of excellent reputation, the state attorney said, and there was no other record against him.

Given Jail Sentence

George Brown of New London, pleading guilty to embezzlement, was sent to jail for 30 days. He was given $48 on Sept. 4 to pay some bills for a man named Zavoritis and he took $35 for himself, substituting a phoney check for the money he took.

Sherwood Gorton, 18, of Groton, was fined $25 flat on the charge of fornication. His case had been continued from the previous criminal session when he was charged with seduction in the town of Old Lyme on Aug. 20.

On Embezzlement Charge

Another continued case was brought up, concluding the morning session of court. This was the case of Harry F. Holloway of New London, who pleaded guilty to embezzlement. The charge against him was embezzlement of $3,632.14 from H. L. Handy Co. in October, 1928.

State Attorney Brown said that Holloway had skipped his bail in January in consequence of which his father had paid $1,000. The man was before the court again in September and then was in jail for some time until his father took him out again on bail. Now Holloway was willing to pay a certain amount weekly to the company and also to his father, and the state attorney recommended a suspended jail sentence.

Judge Avery made the sentence a year in jail, suspended so that Holloway can be in the custody of the probation officer and he is to pay $5 a week to the company.

RECALLS CHECKING FIRE SCARE IN CASINO, N. Y.

Announcement in the New York Herald-Tribune of Tuesday that 30 floors of workshops and showrooms for the use of manufacturers of women's clothing will replace the old Casino in New York city, recalled to Howard L. Stanton, former chief of the Norwich fire department, the night the word "fire" electrified the large audience in the Casino, the home of light opera and musical comedy in New York for nearly a half century.

It was on Sept. 6, 1887, at the 500th performance of Erminie, that the audience was thrown into turmoil by the cry of "fire." Chief Stanton had gone to New York to attend the 500th performance. Unable to buy tickets at the theater the chief purchased tickets from a scalper at two dollars a piece. He was seated in the balcony. Francis Wilson was playing Cadeaux in Erminine with Pauline Hall as the leading lady.

Someone shouted "Fire." Chief Stanton, realizing that the smoke that floated into the theatre was "spent smoke" such as given off by a steam fire engine, shouted to those around him in the balcony to sit down. Most of them obeyed the command.

Shortly it was learned that there was no fire in the theatre. Francis Wilson came to the front of the stage and told the audience there was nothing to fear, that the smoke came from fire engines going to a fire on the block below.

Chief Stanton has in his possession a miniture suit case which was given each lady present as a souvenir of the 500th performance. Within the suit case is a china plaque with a picture of the Casino on one side and the names of those in the cast on the other side.

THIRD IN PENTECOSTAL ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

The third meeting in the series of union prayer Pentecostal services was held Tuesday evening in the Third Baptist church. Rev. Harry P. Brothwell, pastor of the church, presided. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church was the speaker of the evening. After a short song service led by William A. Lund, the pastor of the church welcomed the representatives of the various churches to the service and the opening devotional exercises were conducted, with hymns, Scripture reading and prayer.

Rev. Mr. Bailey's address on "Filled With The Spirit" was in part as follows:

The main question for us as Christian people to put to ourselves is not what we are going to do with Pentecost but what Pentecost is going to do with us. Our chief concern is not to observe an anniversary but to get more spiritual power.

Why is not every life filled with the spirit of Christ to the full? Too much rubbish around! The avenues of the soul are clogged up. Prejudice precludes the entrance of the spirit. Materialism occupies the foreground. Malice poisons the waters coming from the spring celestial.

It may be a fair question to ask whether we are in a fit condition to receive the Holy Spirit. The spirit of Christ does not come to those out of sympathy with Jesus. The citadel of a man's soul is never assaulted by the cohorts of heaven. Divine power comes into our lives only upon invitation of the occupant and remains to the extent of the welcome.

Spirit filled men and women should be as natural and as common as trees. They can be filled with the spirit very much as trees become healthy and strong and fruitful. It is by absorption and production. Nourishment comes by daily feeding, and energy gained is expended in leaf, and limb and fruit bearing. It is not usually spectacular but it is beautiful and it is mighty.

The meeting closed with the hymn, "Come Holy Spirit Heavenly Dove." Rev. David A. Pitt pronounced the benediction.

The next meeting is to be held in the United Congregational church at 7:45 p. m. Speaker, Rev. Percy Kilmister, pastor of First Baptist church, on Holy Spirit and the Church.

BABE RUTH REJECTS SALARY OF $75,000 A YEAR OFFERED BY THE YANKEE CLUB

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ten years ago to the day after he signed his first Yankee contract, calling for $10,000, Babe Ruth today nonchalantly rejected an offer of $75,000, the salary paid the president of the United States. At a conference with Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York American league baseball club, and E. G. Barrow, its secretary, the home run hitter shook his head when it was suggested that the club would be willing to pay him $150,000 for a two year crop of home runs.

Ruth countered with a proposal that he affix his well known signature to a contract calling for $85,000 annually for three years. This suggestion Colonel Ruppert emphatically vetoed, declaring that the club would not agree to a three-year contract at any terms, although Ruth pointed out that he had just closed a three-year contract at $70,000 a year.

The matter rested with a difference of $10,000 in money and a year in contract limits. Yankee officials said that they had made their "top offer" to the Babe and the next move must be made by the player. Ruth said he would leave Saturday for St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp of the Yankees.

The big slugger's comment on the $75,000 offer was that it was "not enough," while Secretary Barrow insisted it was generous, perhaps to a fault.

The big outfielder brought up the question of exhibition games and the club was understood to be willing to make a stipulation limiting the number of exhibitions in which Ruth should be called on to participate. This the Yankees planned to do in any event as the wear and tear of the extra contests on the slugger's legs were regarded with apprehension last year.

Although he has played ten years in a Yankee uniform, Ruth has had only three contracts in that time. When his release was purchased from the Boston Red Sox for a price reported to have been $125,000, he had a hold-over contract calling for $10,000 a year. This the Yankees took over and he played in 1920 under its terms. For 1921 he had a contract calling for $25,000 and he was signed in 1922 to a document running for five years at $52,500 a year. He then jumped to the forefront of high finance in baseball by signing for three years at $70,000 a year.

At the conference today, participated in only by Ruth, Ruppert and Barrow and held at Ruppert's brewery, rather than the mid-town offices of the Yankees, the negotiations were opened with an offer to renew the expiring contract for one year at the same figure, $70,000.

When Ruth, with a show of indignation, refused the "feeler," Colonel Ruppert made his offer of $75,000 a year for two years. The Babe then stated his terms and the conference adjourned with a rejection by Ruppert.

Secretary Barrow said tonight that he had no idea what the next move would be, nor where nor when. "It is up to the Babe," he said.

There was no idea in baseball circles generally that the home run hitter ever will be classed as a hold-out. Negotiations as to salary may be continued until the season opens in April, although probably Ruth's name will decorate a Yankee contract long before that time.

Ruth already was baseball's highest salaried performer, his last contract exceeding the amount paid K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, by $5,000 a year. He was, however, slightly under the salary of the president of the United States but the Yankee officers today offered to remedy that.

The big fellow gave full approval of his present condition. "As good as ever," he declared, as he laughed at suggestions that he might not be able to go at full speed for three more hectic baseball seasons.

Babe Ruth's ever-mounting annual pay check with the New York Yankees has ranged over the years as follows:

1920—$10,000.
1921—$25,000.
1922-23-24-25-26—$52,500.
1927-28-29—$70,000.

WARM WEATHER WAS CAUSE OF EAST'S DEFEATS

BOSTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Warm weather and not western football skill defeated the Pittsburgh and Army elevens in their recent California games, according to Hal Booma, brilliant Dartmouth end, who arrived here today from San Francisco.

Booma, who covered himself with glory playing for the eastern team in its New Year's day clash with the all-star western aggregation, was in a hurry to get back to Dartmouth and take over his duties as captain of the Green's hockey sextet. Before departing for Hanover, N. H., however, he had much to say about western football.

"Western football followers greatly over-rate the abilities of Stanford, Southern California and California and belittle anything and everything in football east of the Rockies," said Booma. "You're not on the west coast very long before you are informed that all of the great football players in the country are centered in the state of California."

"In my opinion," Booma continued, "there were two reasons why Stanford and California established such a superiority over Army and Pittsburgh on their home gridirons: First, the weather; and second, the man power found on the western football squads."

SHIRES UNABLE TO ATTEND BOXING HEARING

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(AP)—After indicating it would absolve Promoter Jim Mullen of Chicago and Manager Eddie Meade of Cleveland of all charges of "fixing" in the Arthur Shires-Dan Daly boxing batch here last December, the Illinois state athletic commission today continued its investigation until tomorrow afternoon when Shires is to appear for examination.

Shires advised the commission he was unable to attend today's meeting because of his bout tonight with Tony Faeth, another baseball player at St. Paul. He said he would tell his story at tomorrow's meeting.

Daly, who was knocked out in 21 seconds by the White Sox first baseman and who subsequently charged he was intimidated into taking a "dive" in the fight, failed to appear today.

Both Promoter Mullen and Meade, who managed Daly for the fight, denied any attempts to fix the fight and the commission appeared satisfied with their testimony.

Boys Start Playing Baseball

Baseball may be slipping among the younger generation but that does not seem to be the case in Norwich. If anyone took the trouble to walk around the city during the mild weather lately, what would they have seen the first week in January but exhibitions of the national art at every turn. With the skating spoiled by Mr. Mercury's jump, the kids have taken to baseball and marbles, and especially baseball. It's going to be a long season.

CLEVELAND EXPECTS TO HAVE FAST BALL CLUB

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 7—(AP)—A long suffering frontiersman once feelingly and historically remarked that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian."

Seven slightly profane baseball aggregations of the American league were repeating this phrase during the final stages of 1929 with varying degrees of dismay and sorrow.

In 1930? That's a moot question and the Cleveland Indians are making no promises but along with the seven other teams of the circuit are hoping that they will finish as well as they did last year—with the third place share of the world series loot in their pockets.

There will be few new faces in the 1930 Indian lineup. One or two major shifts, however, are among the pre-training camp castings. Carl Lind, for instance, has an inside track on the shortstop job left vacant by the release of Tavener. Hodapp, who took up Lind's place at second when Carl was out because of illness, has the job pretty well sewed up.

The rest of the infield will include Fonseca at first, Sewell at third. Much of the success of the Indians in 1930 hinges on the ability of this stellar infield to maintain its hitting and fielding power.

With the sensational Ferrell and Hudlin and Miller ready to take regular turns in the box the Indians are well set from a pitching standpoint. Then too, a great deal is being made of Clint Brown, young right hander who won 21 games for New Orleans last season. Holloway and a youngster by the name of Shoffner are not to be taken lightly when they face the plate.

Jamieson, who is no longer young, will probably occupy the bench the greater part of the season while Dick Porter cavorts in the left garden. Averill and Falk complete an outfield that is expected to rate high in the league.

Alex Hooks, Bob Seeds and Johnnie Gill are rookies who are expected to see plenty of service. Gill set a two base hit record in the Eastern league while with Albany last season.

The Indians are no worse nor better off than the opponents they will face, none of whom have announced any young stars of exceptional merit. The Indians feel confident of landing in the first division but they are making no championship boasts.

SHARKEY WILL BOX SCOTT AT MIAMI

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Phil Scott, of England, and Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor, will meet in the ring at the second annual "Battle of the Palms" in Miami, Fla., Feb. 27, it was announced tonight.

The announcement, made by the Madison Square Garden corporation, sponsors of the Miami battle, said that representatives of Scott and Sharkey had agreed to terms and would formally sign contracts tomorrow.

Just what financial arrangements were made the Garden declined to say until the contracts are made public tomorrow.

The announcement followed a long conference at the Garden of representatives of the corporation, Sharkey and Scott.

Selection of Scott as Sharkey's opponent at Miami ends all of the Garden's difficulties in getting the Boston sailor's consent to fulfill his contract obligations. Previously Sharkey had declared he would not box Tuffy Griffiths in the southern arena. He named Scott as the opponent he wanted to meet.

The Garden immediately went into a huddle with Jimmy Johnston, Scott's manager, and after wrangling over terms for several days finally emerged with an offer agreeable to the Britisher's representative. Johnston had been holding out for 25 per cent of the receipts as opposed to 20 per cent offered by the Garden. A compromise between these two figures probably was arrived at although the Garden was reticent on that subject.

Sharkey's objections to various opponents suggested by the Garden were based on the theory that as the outstanding American contender for the vacant heavyweight throne he should be asked to meet only outstanding rivals. Griffiths, he maintained, was too small and would not prove to be a good box office attraction in the south.

TORONTO LEAFS PLAY TIE WITH N. Y. AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs gained a tie with Ottawa for third place in the international group standing of the National Hockey league tonight by battling to a 1-1 tie with the New York Americans.

The game was a deadlock in every respect. The two goals were scored less than two minutes apart early in the second period and during the rest of the 70 minutes of play the best either could do was give the goalies a few hard stops.

Charlie Conacher, young Toronto wing man, put the Leafs ahead with a goal in the first three minutes of the second period. He tricked Forbes with a hard shot from just inside the blue lines. The lead lasted less than two minutes before Billy Boyd got the puck deep in Toronto territory and passed it across to George Massecar, who had a clear shot for the tying goal.

SHIRES KNOCKS OUT FAETH IN TWO MINUTES

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 7—(AP)—Arthur (The Great) Shires added another one-round knockout to his record tonight by disposing of Tony (The Terrible) Faeth after two minutes of fighting in their scheduled six round bout.

There was no semblance of a "dive" when Faeth went down. Arthur the Great had caught him with a terrific right cross squarely on the jaw. Faeth, turned half about by the punch, dropped through the ropes and nearly out of the ring.

At the count of nine the pitcher was back on his feet but the Great Shires, thoroughly roused in fury, tore across the ring and bounced another right off Tony's little chin. That was the last of Faeth. The referee counted him out as he lay flat on his back.

TUNNEY MAY HAVE TO UNDERGO SERIOUS OPERATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Gene Tunney may be forced within the next few weeks to undergo an operation for the removal of a stone from one of his kidneys.

The former champion, incommunicado since his return a few weeks ago from a lengthy honeymoon in Europe, could not be reached. However, his former manager, Billy Gibson, said Tunney already had been examined by physicians who diagnosed a slight ailment as a kidney disorder. If X-rays within the next few days indicate a stone has formed, an operation will be performed for its removal, Gibson said.

Tunney's former pilot said specialists had agreed that the ailment was not the result of body blows during Gene's ring career.

Didja ever watch a young woman, or in fact any woman, young or old, getting weighed on one of these sidewalk weighing machines?

It makes no difference whether they be tall or short, wide or narrow, round as a ball or skinny as a bean pole, they all act the same.

You see her come up to the machine, give it a quick glance and walk right by it for a coupla of yards. Then she hesitates, turns and walks back by the machine for a few more yards.

Again she hesitates and again she turns, looks up and down the street to see if there's anybody she knows. Then she sort of eases over to the window like she was looking at the display.

She follows along the window until she's close to the machine. All the time she has been looking in the window she's been fumbling in her pocketbook for a coin.

By the time she arrives opposite the scales she has the coin all out and in her hand. Then she takes one last look up and down the street. If she sees somebody she knows she just turns her back on the machine and assumes that "waiting-for-the-trolley" pose.

But if there's no one around she hops onto the scales, waits a second and then drops a coin. You can fairly see her shiver when the bell rings, and she looks like a kid caught stealing cookies.

She then grabs the little ticket and closes her hand over and with head in the air marches smartly away. When she's gone a half a block or so she steals a glance at the card.

And right there you can tell whether she's gained or lost since the last time she was weighed. If she has lost weight you see her smile to herself and tuck the card in her pocketbook.

But if she's gained you see her look at the card and then she just tears it up and throws it in the street. And the chances are she'll stop at the next drug store and get an ice cream soda.

It's a great problem, this weight question. And what a woman will do to attain that "perfect 36" is nobody's business. I've a friend who ate nothing but grapefruit for breakfast, lunch and dinner but in between she'd eat candy and ice cream and then wonder why she didn't lose weight.

This diet game is the bunk. If you're going to be thin then you will be but if it's in the cards that you're going to be a heavy then a heavyweight you are, regardless of how little or how much you eat.

I know a girl who eats only one meal a day and then not a good square one but she tips the beam at 160 while another girl who weighs about 98 soaking wet eats three meals and plenty between meals and she can't gain an ounce.

It's a great game.

MASSIE MILLER WILL BE IN LOS ANGELES OPEN TODAY

Massie B. Miller local professional at the Norwich Golf club will be entered in the $10,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament which starts today. Miller who finished in a tie for tenth in the Long Beach tournament seems to have hit his stride and should show well in what is expected to be one of the fastest fields on the Pacific coast this winter. Whether Miller will have to qualify or not is not known as many of those who finished in the money in the National open will not have to play the qualifying rounds, which start today.

PLAINFIELD FACES FAST TEAM IN OLSON'S SWEDES-INDIANS TONIGHT

What should be one of the season's most delectable sports dishes will be served at the Plainfield Community house this evening when the Plainfield Pros take the floor against Olson's Terrible Swedes-Jim Thorpe's Indians. The visiting team has the reputation of being one of the strongest road teams touring the country today. They have been playing basketball for the past nine years and have played in 32 states in America, from coast to coast.

During the season of 1928-29 the Swedes won 93 games and lost 19 which was the most losses of any of any of the nine years. The Plainfield Pros were numbered among the victims by a 44 to 29 score. The Plainfield team hopes to get revenge for that defeat tonight.

Since playing here last year the Terrible Swedes have been greatly strengthened by the addition of Raymond West and Tony Wapp, two former members of Jim Thorpe's Indians who were one of the finest basketball teams in the country. In fact every one of the men on the Terrible Swedes club is a player of note. Earl Cartwright is a former college man who played with the Buick Motor team last year. Lefty Byers was an All-Conference star of the Kansas Aggies and last year was with the Buick Five. C. M. Oleson and Bonnie Stewart complete the team.

Plainfield will use the same lineup as in previous games with Kasper and Brusso at forwards, Conway at center, Williams and Bernot at guards. This club has been playing brilliant basketball during the season and expects to continue the good work tonight.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will meet the Montville team in another fast game. There will be dancing following the main attraction as usual.

SHYMA CLUB WINS FROM BALTIC INDIES

The Shyma Five of Taftville defeated the Baltic Independents, 36 to 18, Tuesday evening at Parish hall. Lefty Dugas was high scorer with ten points, although every one of the winning club broke into the scoring column. The Shymas led at half time 18 to 14.

In an exciting preliminary game, the Junior team of the Taftville Shyma club easily defeated Red Burelle's All Stars by a score of 54 to 33. Durr led the attack for the Shyma club with a total point score of 27, while Adams was high scorer for the losers. Each man on both teams scored at least one point. The summary:

DANNY MURPHY STOPPED AT NEW LONDON LAST WEEK

Danny Murphy, Norwich's hero in the old State league days, stopped off in New London for a short time last week and among local friends to greet him was John A. Holland, of 420 Asylum street, a former manager of the local Kacey nine.

Danny, who after leaving the locals became one of the greats of the old Philadelphia Athletics, is located in business in Newark, N. J. The recent happening at Chicago when an impostor, arrested for vagrancy, represented himself as Murphy, greatly amused the former local baseball star.

NEARLY 75 PER CENT OF N. F. A. STUDENTS IN ATHLETICS

Of a male enrollment of approximately 400, it has been estimated that, in round numbers, 265 boys were on the nine Academy sports squads during the 12 months of 1929. Of course, there will be overlapping on the various teams so that these figures cannot be taken to mean that the Wildcats have gone athletic-crazy and that nearly three-fourths of the boys at the school are athletes.

Football drew the largest turnout when Coach Whitney had 60 boys early in the campaign. Baseball was somewhat below the record established 1927, when 120 would-be diamond stars reported to Coach Brigham, and last spring had around 50 candidates. Tennis had the smallest number, with only about ten working out.

Here are the approximate figures:

Football	60
Baseball	50
Track, outdoors	35
Basketball	25
Track, indoors	25
Cross-country	25
Swimming	23

BUDDIES WIN FROM FAST SOUTH MANCHESTER CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTH MANCHESTER, Jan. 7—Playing a very close defensive game the Plainfield Buddies held the fast South Manchester quintet in check here tonight while they managed to nose out a 17 to 13 victory over the locals. The game was hard fought with Manchester leading at half time 7 to 6 but the Buddies overcame this lead in the last half. The defensive play of the visitors was the best seen on the local court in some time. The summary:

DELANEY WILL BOX AT NEW HAVEN ARENA

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 7—(AP)—Jack Delaney will appear in the New Haven Arena against an opponent as yet unnamed, it was announced here today following a conference this afternoon between Al Weill, matchmaker of the Arena and Andy Parker, present manager of Delaney. At the same time it was said that Delaney would in all probability be signed to contracts for two or three appearances in the Boston Garden if he won his fight in New Haven. Weill has been named matchmaker for the Arena.

Delaney will make his first comeback trial in Providence, R. I., on January 24, facing Tom Kirby, of Boston, in a ten round engagement.

KOZIOL MEETS BROWN AT PROVIDENCE JAN. 24TH

Al Koziol, local slugging lightweight, will have to wait two weeks longer for his next Providence fight than he first believed. Tuesday evening, Barney Keenan, Al's trainer, received word that Koziol's bout had been moved up to Friday, Jan. 24, instead of the 10th, as was announced last week. Koziol meets Bristol Brown.

In the main event that evening, Jack Delaney, the former light-heavyweight champ, starts on another comeback campaign and will meet Tom Kirby, of Boston.

MONTVILLE ACES TAKE TWO BASKETBALL GAMES

After losing three straight the Montville Aces came back strong to take two hard fought games last night in the Uncasville gym.

In the first game the Aces beat the Jew Boys of New London 32 to 21 in an exciting game. Long of the Aces and Levine of the Jew Boys led the scoring with five goals apiece.

The second game was by far the most exciting when the Aces were compelled to play an overtime period to vanquish the hard-fighting Iota team of this city, 28 to 26.

The game was nip and tuck throughout with the lead never more than two or three points ahead. On the first tap of the overtime a perfectly executed play by Long and McDermott proved the winning tally. Ungerer was high scorer in this game with twelve points. The score:

POETRY

Counsel

If thou shouldst bid thy friend farewell,
But for one night though that farewell may be,
Press thou his hand in thine; thou canst not tell
How far from thee

Fate or caprice may lead his feet
Ere that tomorrow comes. Men have been known
Lightly to turn the corner of a street
And days have grown

To months, and months to lagging years,
Before they look on loving eyes again.
Parting at best, is underlaid with tears,
With tears and pain.

Therefore, lest sudden death should come between,
Or time, or distance, clasp with pressure true
The palm of him who goeth forth; unseen,
Fate goeth too!

Yea, find thou always time to say
Some earnest word betwixt the idle talk,
Lest with thee henceforth ever, night and day,
Regret should walk.

—Mary E. M. Davis (1853-1909).

Then Laugh

Build for yourself a strong-box
Fashion each part with care;
When it's strong as your hand can make it,
Put all your troubles there;
Hide there all thought of your failures,
And each bitter cup that you quaff;
Lock all your heartaches within it,
Then sit on the lid and laugh!
Tell no one else its contents,
Never its secrets share;
When you've dropped in your care and worry,
Keep them forever there
Hide them from sight so completely
That the world will never dream half;
Fasten the strong-box securely—
Then sit on the lid and laugh!

—Bertha Adams Backus.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Collegiate—What was the tenor of your dad's last letter?

Fraternal—There was no tenor—only a fiver.—Boston Transcript.

"You say you're a lover of peace and then you go and throw a brick at Casey."

"Yes, sir—an' 'e were peaceful, too after I throwed it."—Montreal Star.

Kentucky Colonel (to his tailor)—Well, Josh, rig me out in a new suit.

Tailor—What size shall I make your hip pockets, colonel; pint or quart?—Detroit News.

Wife—I was highly incensed by the actions of that bold girl you were dancing with last evening.

Hubby—Well, I was highly perfumed myself.—Exchange.

Customer—I'd like a nice birthday present for my son. He likes something to blow.

Helpful Clerk—How about a good handkerchief?—New York Central Lines Magazine.

Father—Why were you kept after school?

Son—I didn't know where the Azores were.

Father—In the future just remember where you put things.—Le Rire, Paris.

George (nervously)—I'd like, the best in the world, Gracie, to marry you; but I don't know how to propose.

Gracie (promptly and practically)—That's all right, George. You've finished with me; now go to father.—Exchange.

In traffic court at Ft. "Case dismissed," said the judge; "that's a new excuse, and I always dismiss for new excuses."

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Lower interest rates bolstered sentiment in the bond market today and the response of the domestic list was a general rally. Rails, and to a lesser extent utilities, met the best demand that had appeared in the young new year, with the result that advances of at least a point were well sprinkled over the more seasoned issues.

Total sales ran a million dollars above yesterday's. Most of the buying orders came in the afternoon after a dull morning which had been high grade liens inclined to move upward. Quotations on time loans dropped to 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent for the shorter maturities against the previous rates of 4 3-4 to 5, and call money went to 4 per cent, the lowest in nearly two years.

The average for ten rails was carried to 105.4 against 105.1, yesterday's composite price, and 106 flat a year ago. The combined average for thirty rails, utilities and industrials moved to 98.8 from 98.7 or two and a half points above the 1929 low. The high for last year was 99.9.

High grade industrials held firm, meeting a lighter inquiry than did other domestic groups. Chile Copper 5s and Illinois Steel 4 1-2s advanced a point, while Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s and Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s sold fractionally higher. Pressed Steel Car 5s with a 2 point gain featured the lower-priced obligations. Pathe Exchange 7s soared 5 1-4.

United States governments moved inconspicuously, with the trend irregularly higher. Prominent foreign bonds were mostly firm. French 7 1-2s and 7s were again active and the former made another new high, but the close found small net changes.

The activity of the older sections of the list and the dullness of the stock market left the convertibles neglected. Only the American Telephone 4 1-2s displayed any life, and these debentures closed a point lower.

It is reported that the Westphalia Electric Power Corporation may seek a $10,000,000 loan in this market, provided interest in foreign bonds quickens sufficiently to make such a flotation advisable. A syndicate today sold a $4,000,000 issue of 6 1-2 per cent Province of Buenos Aires six months external notes.

Fire Whistle To Be Higher

The city's fire whistle is to be relocated in an endeavor to have the blasts calling out the department heard a greater distance than is possible at present. EVIDENT INSIDE JOB— MOTOR COMPANY ROBBED

The Thompson Motor company, 289 Bank street, was robbed last night and from the nature of the robbery and the knowledge the thief had of the building and the hiding-place of the money stolen, there is every indication that the break was perpetrated by either an employe or someone who had formerly been employed by the company. Only a person who is or has been employed at the automobile repair and supply station could have knowledge of where the money was secreted. The thief stole $45.60, taking all the bills, half dollars and quarters, but refrained from stealing the smaller coins. Entrance to the building was gained by the thief going to the rear and cutting a large section of glass from a window. Through the opening made, the thief unlocked the window and then entered the building. Going to the office, the thief pulled out a drawer of a cabinet beneath which was the box containing the money. Nothing in the office, nor the sales part of the building was molested, which showed that the crook sought money and not goods that could be converted into cash.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer's Little Joke

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

> A harmless joke played now and then
> Is good for squirrels and for men.
> —Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Farmer Brown's Boy was both surprised and disappointed when he found that there was nothing in the trap he had set for Chatterer the Red Squirrel. That is, there was nothing in it but the nuts he had used for bait. The trap had been sprung and he had been sure that he had caught Chatterer. All the time Chatterer was hidden in the great pile of corn and was watching him, chuckling as he watched.

"I don't know how that little rascal sprung that trap without being caught," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I'll try it again. He did it once, but I don't believe he can do it twice. He must have done it by accident."

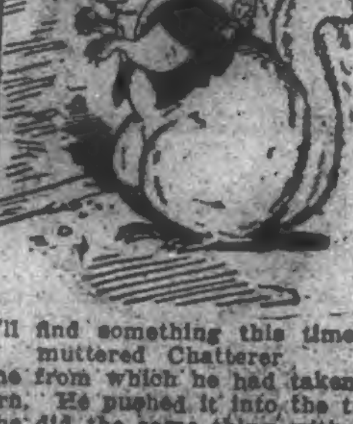
So Farmer Brown's Boy once more set the boxtrap very carefully. As before, he baited it with nuts. He took great pains with the setting of it. You see, he meant to catch Chatterer if it were possible. The next morning when he looked at it, it was sprong again. As before, there was no one in it.

"You little scamp!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "It must be that you climb up on this trap and so trip the trigger. I've got to think of some way of fixing it so that you can't do that."

Farmer Brown's Boy took the trap away and worked over it. That afternoon, when he brought it back to set it, he had fixed it so that that little stick that Chatterer had touched was protected. Chatterer couldn't touch it now. "Now," said Farmer Brown's Boy "we'll see if you'll spring this trap this time."

Of course Chatterer knew nothing about this until very early the next morning when he visited the corncrib. The first thing he did was to look at that trap and, of course, he saw right away that he couldn't spring the trap as he had sprung it before. Chatterer sat down in front of that trap and studied it for a few minutes. Then he began to chuckle. If he couldn't spring that trap he could at least see to it that Farmer Brown's Boy should find something in it.

Chatterer picked up a bare corncob, one from which he had taken all the corn. He pushed it into the trap. Then he did the same thing with another. He hunted out a third and pushed that in. The fourth one was extra long. When he pushed that in it touched the trigger of the trap. Down came the door! It gave Chatterer a fright. Indeed, it came very near hitting him on the head. He jumped back just in time. When he had recovered from his fright and once more looked at the trap, he chuckled more than ever.



"We'll find something this time," muttered Chatterer.

"He'll find something this time," muttered Chatterer. "Farmer Brown's Boy will find something this time. It won't be what he thinks it is and I guess he'll be some surprised."

In this Chatterer was not disappointed. It was only a little later that Farmer Brown's Boy came in. He looked at once at the trap. Of course, he saw at once that the trap was sprung. He chuckled aloud.

"That's the time I fooled you, old fellow!" said he. "As they say in some places, I outsmarted you. You've had the joke on me several times, but now I've got it on you."

He went over and picked up the trap. It was then that he discovered that the door was not quite down. There was the end of a corncob in the way. The instant he saw that bit of corncob he knew that once more the joke was on him after all. He opened the trap. There lay the four corncobs. Farmer Brown's Boy gave vent to a little whistle of surprise. Then he just had to laugh. He was enjoying Chatterer's little joke quite as much as was Chatterer himself.

A well-known hunter and trapper residing near Haversham and operating along the shores of Quonochontaug pond reports finding evidence of big game in the vicinity and is bent upon its capture to prove the truth of his assertions. He has set a number of traps near the pond and upon examining them has seen tracks in the soft ground "as big as alarm clocks" about the snares. The surrounding brush has been bent and trodden down by the passage of some large animal. That the "varmint" has somewhat of an appetite is evidenced by large gnawed bones scattered about. Extra traps of a larger and stronger nature have been set. His friends have recommended that a trap camera be added to the equipment.

Clarence A. Vars, Westerly member of the state board of pharmacy, whose term expires at this session of the legislature, was a Providence visitor Tuesday morning and attended the opening session of the general assembly at the state capitol.

PROVIDENCE BUS SLIDES AND GOES OFF HIGHWAY

The 6:15 a. m. bus of the Rhode Island Coach company lines leaving the Westerly station Tuesday morning for Providence skidded on the icy surface of the Nooseneck Hill road and went off the highway on the westerly side of Meeting House bridge over the Pawcatuck river, just as it rounded the curve on the downgrade approach. The front end of the car was so badly smashed that the bus had to return to Westerly. The few passengers in the bus were transferred to another machine which carried them to their destinations. The bus was operated by George Vaughn. The bus skidded when Vaughn applied his brakes to avoid being involved in a collision with a machine operated by James Howard of Ashaway which skidded and went into the ditch at the side of the road.

Engineer Henderson went over several of the streets with Councilmen Joseph Fraser, Archie Meikle and John Monti, members of the police committee. The principal changes will be made at the intersection of Granite, Elm and Broad streets and Grove avenue and Granite street. ROB CLARK'S MULE ROCKER GETS INTO THE MOVIES

Robert Clark has a mule named Rocker and has him trained, at his farm on Deer Hill. At the kitchen window the owner will whistle and on the run the chestnut mule will go where his master is. Talk about strong! A large stone had to be moved by two horses. The stone would not go forward; so mule Rocker got on it and how that stone moved to the place Farmer Clark wanted it! No matter where Rocker is when the whistle blows for 12 o'clock to put on the feed bag the mule drops everything and runs to the barn. He will eat out of his master's hand. Put an apple on Clark's head the mule will not touch it. But when his master says "Rocker, do you want that nice red apple for your girl in Gales Ferry?" Rocker picks off the apple without touching a spear of hair. The mule can jazz dance as Trainer Robert plays his sweet potato whistle. The children around the nearby farms have some fun with the chestnut mule and he is like a kid among them and sees that the children don't get hurt.

Several years ago, Mule Rocker got lost from the farm and it was a mystery to Trainer Clark where his playmate had gone to. The telephones were kept ringing in town. "Have you seen a mule around such a place? We have lost one." would come a voice. When the fishermen had their basket lunches bound for the fishing ground on Front street, they saw an animal with a 19-cent store straw hat on. It was the wee hours of the morning and Mate Carl Ashcraft rubbed his eyes to see if he was awake or only walking in his sleep, to see a mule with a straw hat on that time in the morning. Rocker put on full steam ahead and was soon out of sight. The fishermen were still thinking of that mule roaming the streets of the fishing village, when on the railroad track there was the same mule with the straw lid on. He would not move off the tracks. About then, some working men were bound to New Haven and seven of them could not push Rocker off the ties. So Trainer Robert Clark came down and said with his sweet voice, "Now mule, you know that is not using a fellow right to lose his beauty sleep and worry over you" Rocker hung his head low and was ashamed, while his master was talking. Then Trainer Clark said, "Well, my pal Rocker let's go home for it is 3 o'clock in the morning" The mule went right along with his master. But the owner had to take some kidding over his lost mule. Back in the barn went Rocker for a week to rest up. Last week at the Capitol theatre where Hallelujah was playing, a talking picture, a mule was needed. The manager of the theatre heard of mule Rocker, owned by Robert Clark. He jumped in his auto and made arrangements for the mule and its driver to help push the picture along and to have the trained mule on the stage. So putting him in the gas wagon, with Rocker all set for New London, he drove the mule over. It took three hours on account of the ice and slippery roads. Everett Merritt, a boy who knows a thing or two about horses and mules, was his pal in the act. So a log cabin on wheels was got ready with Driver Robert Clark blacked up, with his dusty coat on and with a chew of B. L. tobacco in his left cheek, holding the reins with Rocker all ready to do his stuff. Down State street the trio went, telling about the picture and the mule with its slow walk so everybody could see and laugh at the driver, all blacked up, like a southern coon, spitting away and getting a big hand as he went around several streets. A big policeman said, "Come on Mr. Driver! Get Spark Plug to going, for he is holding up traffic!" Auto horns were tooting, so mule Rocker knew enough to get over in a slow way and Driver Clark, cool as a cucumber in a garden, had his trained mule eating right of his hand. The traffic cop had to laugh.

The second day with the log cabin, Robert Clark drove mule Rocker over from Noank. He was horseback riding and coming up Main street to take the right turn into State street the cop handling traffic waved him along and thought it was an auto, not just a mule and his driver. One little kid cried out from the walk "Where is your lantern, Paul Revere? You are the man that told the Massachusetts people and the minute men, on your horse with a lantern, that the English was coming!" It got a good laugh to those who saw the Noank mule and its trainer. Clark come back with a New Year smile and said, "Happy New Year to you, wise guy! Back up! you are in the wrong stable!" Then the trained mule gave him a Deer Hill look that started the boy on a 100-yard run to his home.

Trainer Clark was telling about his trip and fun with the mule Rocker at the gas station and kept the gang laughing—more fun than having the measles. "The second trip, Gee! mule Rocker was going strong when he hit a tree but the log cabin was safe and no one was hurt. Well, it is all in a life-time! Me and my mule Rocker sure made a hit in the Whaling City!

"When I ask how Rocker is, the mule will scratch his ear with his right foot. He also will say 2x2 is 4; for it has taken me a long while to teach him the tricks and to count. Hour after hour I put away a good western story book to teach mule Rocker things. It is my hobby to be raising horses and mules to study them." So the fishing village has a trained mule that can do anything but sing, and many are wondering if Trainer Clark is going to put his mule in the movies; but we guess Deer Hill farm will hold him as long as he lives and he will not leave the village.

MONTVILLE

What might have been a serious affair, occurred Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock at Dart's corner in Palmertown, when a Hudson sedan, operated by A. Molinisky of Oakdale, traveling on the main road toward Uncasville, and a Essex coupe owned by Mrs. Bertha Gwiazdowski, coming out of the cross road from Bridge street, came together. Luckily the coupe was wedged between the sedan and a larg truck parked in front of G. W. Dart's store, thus saving the lives of the occupants. There were two men in the Molinsky car, and Mrs. Gwiazdowski and young son and Emile Nadeau in the coupe. The boy was thrown through the window but fortunately, escaped with a few minor cuts and bruises. STORRS CONTEST HENS KEEPING EVEN GAIT

For the sixth consecutive week the curve of egg production in the Storrs contest is practically a straight line at the 60 per cent level. A week ago the birds did their 60 per cent and the merest trifle over; whereas for the week just ended they were the merest trifle under. The extreme variation in production for the last six weeks has not exceeded 3 per cent. In other words the hens have steered steadier on their course than it seems possible for a flock of a thousand birds to do.

In the ninth week of the project the total for all pens was 4,157 eggs or a yield of 59.4 per cent. This is exactly 101 eggs better than for the corresponding week a year ago and while this gain is not large it has, nevertheless, served a purpose. Both the management and the contestants have been encouraged by the small but persistent gains that are made from week to week.

Pens that played stellar roles during the past week are domiciled in widely separated sections, in fact, from coast to coast. Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., stepped out into first place with a score of 68 eggs. Then followed a Connecticut pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn. These ten pullets yielded 64 eggs for the week. Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., was third on the list with a tally of 61 eggs. The fourth best pen for this period was likewise Leghorns and they are bred and owned by Leighton Orchards at Kingston, R. I.

Weekly spurts are never to be sneezed at, and yet, those pens that hammer away week after week from the time the contest starts until it ends frequently wind up with the largest totals for the year. During this past week Spring Brook Poultry Farm at South Wethersfield, Conn., moved up to third place in the Barred Rock class, that is to say, in total production from Nov. 1st to date. Harold F. Barber of Dover, Mass., is now leading the White Rock class. Among the Reds, Homer R. Rowell of Groveland, Mass., moved up into third place. And Hanson's Leghorn Farm is [illegible] in the list of leading Leghorns.

It should be added, that only five eggs separate the three leading pens of White Rocks. There are three pens of R. I. Reds within four eggs of each other, and three pens of Leghorns within one egg of each other. Thus any of these pens that slackens its pace is at once relegated to a lower place.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 481; Fisher F. Farm, Ayton, Ont., Canada, 377.

Barred Rocks—R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 481; Westfield Poultry Farm, Westfield, Mass., 441; Spring Brook P. Fm., So. Wethersfield, Conn., 414.

White Rocks—Harold F. Barber, Valecroft, Dover, Mass., 467; Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass., 456; Harold F. Barber, Valecroft, Dover, Mass., [illegible].

Rhode Island Reds—Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 552; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., [illegible]; Homer R. Lowell, Groveland, Mass., 503; [illegible] N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., [illegible].

White Leghorns—Toivonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 540; Geo. Lowry P. Farm, Inc., W. Willington, Conn., [illegible]; Tom Barron, Catforth, Preston, England, 497; Madowedge Farm, Sterling Jct., Mass., 496; Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 496.

Trout kept in hatcheries until they are six or eight inches long lose their wild instincts, and so when planted in streams or lakes become easier prey to predatory fishes than young trout planted at a smaller size.

SIX INDISPUTABLE FACTS

You've heard a lot about anti-freezes. Here are the real facts in the case . . . the indisputable reasons why more motorists use Denatured Alcohol than all other anti-freezes combined.

1 An entire season's supply of Denatured Alcohol costs less than half as much as one filling of certain preparations.

3 No special servicing is required to make your car ready for winter. Just put Denatured Alcohol in your radiator as it is.

4 Every car manufacturer approves Denatured Alcohol, and the firm that made your radiator is also emphatic in its endorsement.

5 If your protective solution is lost through accident or carelessness, the cost of replacement with Denatured Alcohol is usually one-sixth that of other preparations.

6 You can get Denatured Alcohol anywhere, anytime. Buy when you need it, wherever you are.

QUOTATIONS CLOSED SLIGHTLY LOWER, SALES SHOWING ONLY 2,029,290 SHARES

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP) — The stock market remained becalmed today, although call money sagged to 4 per cent for the first time in nearly two years. Share prices generally drifted lower, a few shares closing 2 to 10 points off. Total sales aggregated but 2,029,290 shares, the smallest full day's turnover since August of 1928, save for the session preceding Christmas, when sales fell below 2,000,000 shares.

Failure of the market to make any headway with call money going begging at 4 per cent was a striking commentary upon the change of speculative sentiment in the past few months. It was only a comparatively short time ago that traders eagerly paid 10 per cent for funds to buy stocks. Money was freely offered in the outside market today as low as 3 1-2 per cent. Time loans for the shorter dates were shaded 1-4 of one per cent to 4 1-2-4 3-4 per cent. A reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent is further reduction in the New York reserve bank rate in the near future.

Business and industrial news, however, was in general not of a character to enliven the bull crowd. Copper buying quieted down after the recent revival. Automotive news was disappointing.

Studebaker earned its dividend by a rather narrow margin in the last fiscal year, and Franklin omitted the common dividend due at this time. Early estimates of last week's crude oil production indicated a large upturn, more than cancelling the previous week's curtailment, although opening of wells in Oklahoma pro-rating purposes was held partly responsible. Steel mill operations were reported at about 60 per cent of capacity, having quickened only to the rate of mid-December, and most steel trade reports indicated that further acceleration would be gradual.

A strong and active feature of the market session was Radio Keith, which was bid up more than 3 points. Keith Albee preferred jumped 11. Sponsors of the stocks feel that the organization is in a position to show substantial earnings during the coming year. Although the reports were denied in authoritative quarters, it was rumored that Radio Keith might acquire Loews, as part of the reorganization of the Fox companies. Another strong spot was Wabash preferred B, which mounted 7 1-2 points. Failure of the Class A stockholders to win their suit for back dividends clears the way for resumption of payments on the B stock. The American Woolen shares rose about 2 points. A pool is understood to have been formed in these shares, and merger rumors have been circulated.

Communications mergers received no encouragement from Newcomb Carlton, president of Western Union, in his testimony in Washington. Radio Corp. and International Telephone sagged moderately, American Telephone lost 2 points and Western Union, a more volatile issue, sold off nearly 6 points. In other shares lows of 2 to 5 points appeared in Air Reduction, American Water Works, American Tobacco Auburn Auto, Bordens, Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, General Electric, Hudson, Johns Manville, Nash, National Biscuit, Simmons, and Underwood Elliott. Union Tank Car dropped 10.

Commodity markets were inclined to sag. Wheat futures lost about 1 1-2 cents on reports of large Russian offerings and in response to weakness at Liverpool. Corn sagged about 1-2 cent, and cotton closed practically unchanged.

Foreign exchanges continued to decline, reflecting rumors of an early reduction of the Bank of England rate. Sterling sagged close to par. Cables were quoted at 4.87 3-16, off 3-16. The French franc slipped well below the outgoing gold point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Despite assertions that menace from Russian exports is a myth circulated to obtain North American wheat cheap, the bugbear led to fresh price breaks today. Unexpected severe setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations preceded downturns here, and the effect of the drop in values abroad was sharpened by indications that export business in wheat from North America was virtually at a standstill.

Comment that the United States wheat visible supply is 100,000,000 bushels in excess of the average of the last five years acted also as a weight on the market.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were nervous, 1 3-8c to 1 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-8 to 1-2 at 5-8c down, oats unchanged to 1-2c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Although something of a rally in Chicago wheat prices took place near the end of the day, sellers were yet in a majority at the finish. Late buying, however, was reported as being largely on the basis that sellers had over-reached themselves, and that recoveries were in order.

Meanwhile the market here, overwhelmed by a rush of selling from future delivery holders and from speculators, dropped to the lowest level reached since before the Christmas holidays, trade attention being focused more than ever on overseas advices of freer offerings of low-priced wheat from Russia with Argentina represented as competing.

Accelerating the downward momentum of the wheat market future take a great deal more wheat from world's markets than at present. Furthermore, it was pointed out that what was referred to as the mountain of wheat in the United States visible supply is equal to 30 per cent of the average crop of wheat in this country. Sellers contended also that hopes of advancing prices would have to come chiefly from new crop developments which are two months away. On the other hand, July delivery of wheat showed a noticeable tendency today to gain on other months, the prevailing cold wave having apparently caught much domestic winter wheat devoid of a snow blanket.

Corn and oats were easier mainly as a result of wheat weakness. Besides, colder weather was construed as favorable for promoting larger receipts of corn at terminal markets.

Provisions averaged lower most of the time today with grain and hogs, but responded well to scattered buying at the last.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)— Mixed price movements in today's curb market reflected the day of opposing speculative forces, final quotations showing a slight preponderance of net declines. Trading showed a further falling off in volume, the day's sales aggregating only 583,100 shares. Commission house business was negligible in character, testifying to the public indifference in recent market proceedings.

Both "bull" and "bear" traders appear to be waiting for some piece of news to take the market out of the narrow trading area within which it has been fluctuating for nearly a month. Easier money rates have failed to provide any stimulus to long operations and business news has been rather disappointing, but short selling has been held in check by the difficulty in borrowing many stocks and the absence of any extensive long liquidation on either the rallies or the declines.

Electric Bond & Share, one of the recognized leaders of the public utility group, sold off 1 1-2 points while Associated Gas & Foreign Power Warrants dropped 3 1-4 points and American Light & Traction rallied 2. American Superpower yielded fractionally while Cities Service showed a slight gain.

Franklin Manufacturing dropped 3 points to a new low at 20 on the omission of the quarterly dividend and Cord Corporation yielded 1-2 while Ford of Canada jumped 5 1-4 points on a few old lot sales.

A flurry of buying in a few aviation stocks lifted Aviation Corporation of the Americas about 3 points and Western Air Express 2. Investment trust and trading corporation shares were mixed, Goldman Sachs, Niagara shares and Ungerleider Financial losing ground while the Blue Ridge and Shenandoah preferred issues showed a slightly firmer undertone. Pennroad held steady in the face of the house interstate commerce committee's recommendation for an investigation of railroad holding companies.

New low records for a year, or more, were established by American Laundry Machinery, Godchaux Sugar, Grand Rapids Varnish, Knott Co., Welch Grape Juice and a few others. Deere & Co. rallied 14 1-2 points on a few sales, while Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea dropped 5 and Celanese preferred 4.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Arrangements were made today for the sale of a seat on the New York stock exchange for $400,000, a decrease of $5,000 from the last previous sale.

The federal reserve bank reported that there was no change in imports, exports or gold earmarked for foreign account today.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad have approved a budget for capital improvements during the current year to aggregate approximately $61,000,000.

Stockholders of record Jan. 14 of the Johnson Motor Co. of Waukegan, Ill., manufacturers of outboard boat motors, have been offered the right to subscribe to additional common stock at $25 a share in the ratio of one new share for each five held. Proceeds from the sale of the additional stock will be used for additional working capital.

Work on the new 14-story addition to the New York curb exchange will begin Feb. 1. It is expected that the building will be completed within a year.

Reports from various steel centers today stated that there has been a considerable improvement in the demand for steel products since the beginning of the year with a resultant sharp increase in ingott production and that buying has been even better than many trade authorities had anticipated.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

A half-caste beauty of the north, Talu, with a soul of fire and a charm which enslavinges all men—Lenore Ulric's most sensational role, better than "Kiki," "Tiger Rose" or "Lulu Belle" . . . her first all talking and singing Fox Movietone characterization . . . "Frozen Justice" is the title and it opens today at the Breed theatre and will continue through Friday.

Men of the north, bold, handsome and intriguing go to their death to win Talu's affection. She dares the wrath of tribal gods and flees. But soon she is disillusioned by the tinsel dance hall life in "civilized" Nome. Singing "The Right Kind of Man," her audience is carried away by the quality and feeling of her voice.

Broadway Theatre

A little white girl—left motherless in the tropic jungles of Central America, her only companions her father and his partner, her nurse a native woman, her playmates the natives, by whom she is worshipped almost as a goddess, her playthings the creatures of the jungle—she grew up to budding womanhood, bubbling over with life, literally a jungle kitten, full of play, but ready at a moment's notice to unsheathe her claws to enforce her demands of life. Thrust by a freak of fate into the elite of Long Island society, her position assured by the valuable oil leases left her by her father, this little tigress, scratches and claws her way roughshod over society conventions, destroying all obstacles by her sheer nerve and audacity, with one object in view—to win and hold the man she loves in spite of opposition from the wealthy mamas who held other plans for the young man's future with one of their own set. Born for the part, Joan Crawford, that dynamo of action and pep, injects all the spirit and animation possible into the role of Bingo, ably supported by a big cast including Robert Montgomery, Ernest Torrence, John Miljan, Holmes Herbert, [illegible], Gwen Lee, Gertrude Astor, [illegible] and a long list of other favorites. On the accompanying bill is featured Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in a screaming featured comedy, "Dangerous Women," involving two forlorn old maids, a desperate [illegible] and a very meek country minister. The vitaphone specialties include Burns & Allen, a [illegible] team in "Lamb Chops," Irene Franklin, musical comedy star, and Allen's [illegible], a novelty surprise, [illegible] the latest Fox Movietone News. Tomorrow night, [illegible] in the regular performance, the radio [illegible] will be [illegible] on the stage and the beautiful [illegible] valued at $440, will be presented the fortunate patron by the Hanover-Carlsend Co., donors of the set.

Palace Theatre

Once again in accordance with its promise to give the people of Norwich the best type of entertainment available, the Palace theatre is presenting a double-feature bill. The program that begins today contains two marvelous pictures. One of them is "The Careless Age," an all-talking and singing and dancing Vitaphone production starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Loretta Young, Carmel Myers and others. The other is "The Sap," a titanic laughing comedy with Edward Everett Horton in the lead role, assisted by such well-known stars as Alan Hale, Patsy Ruth Miller and Edna Murphy.

"There are no daisies for October." There in a nutshell is the theme of "The Careless Age," the story of which deals with the love of youth for youth and the heartache of age, age which has flung away its own golden blooms and has no more charms to spend. Youth demands youth. A youth loved a woman and a young girl loved the youth. There is the tangle, the triangle of passion from which this story is woven. Is a happy marriage possible between a youth and a woman of years and experience? If you do not know, come and see "The Careless Age."

"The Sap" is a different sort of picture. Here is the story of a small town rube who had big ideas. In fact his ideas were bigger than his capacity to carry them out. They were the biggest thing about him, excepting possibly his feet. The sap is the laughing stock of the little South Dakota burg where he lives. All the village thinks he is a nut or pretty nearly in that class. He is always planning some new invention but he never seems to get the wheels working properly. Scarcely anyone has any confidence left in him. That is, nearly everybody has given him up as a total loss except his charming, though long-suffering wife. She still thinks he has the stuff, although it's difficult to see why she should have any reason to think that.

He is lazy, he is called good-for-nothing. In fact he looks like a dead loss anywhere. But somehow by an amazing stroke of luck he puts over a deal that makes him look like a world beater. Don't miss it!

Embryonic Star

Just as soon as Julius A. Morraye of San Francisco can dispose of his delicatessen store he will go to Chicago to prepare for an operatic career. Recently Tito Schipa, Chicago Opera company tenor, heard him sing and promised to aid him should he come to Chicago.

QUART OF WATER
CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

SALAMACHA TRIAL ON ARSON CHARGE FOR THURSDAY IN SUPERIOR COURT

Paul Salamacha, of this city, who is under accusation of setting fire to the Union hall building on North Main street on June 29th last, is to go on trial on the arson charge before Judge C. L. Avery in the criminal superior court session here Thursday morning. This assignment was made by Judge Avery at the suggestion of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown when the afternoon session of the court here Tuesday was adjourned to Thursday morning. Salamacha pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by the court.

On Thursday also, there are three pleas to be taken in cases which were deferred till then from the Tuesday session of court. These include the case of Malcolm H. Austin, of Montville, formerly of this city, on a statutory manslaughter charge for causing the death of Charles Muensch last fall when Muensch was struck on West Thames street, below the city line, by Austin's automobile. Earl Mathewson is attorney for the accused man.

The others in which pleas are to be taken are two Jewett City cases, that of Steven Nofie, charged with violation of the liquor law, and Victor Chartier, charged with perjury in connection with testimony he gave in a liquor case.

In the afternoon session of court, State Attorney Brown called upon the continued case of Joseph Sylvia, of Stonington, who had been under a charge of statutory manslaughter for causing the death of Louis P. Starr in an automobile accident on Sept. 29. Mr. Brown said in order to make this a case of negligent operation of an automobile which was the cause of death, it would be necessary to prove that the man was driving under the influence of liquor and it was doubtful if this could be done. He, accordingly, changed the charge to reckless driving and Sylvia pleaded guilty to this charge.

On recommendation of Mr. Brown, Judge Avery imposed a fine of $50 and costs. The state attorney told the court that the man killed was a relative of Sylvia and left a wife and three children, for whom Sylvia is now looking out.

In the case of two Norwich men, George Shadlock and John Sullivan, accused of statutory burglary on Nov. 10 at the Julian Falcone place in Taftville, where they took out a cash register and other articles, State Attorney Brown said this was a drunken affair all through and he recommended nolles on the payment of $100 by Sullivan and $50 by Shadlock. This order was passed by the court.

Mrs. Nellie Walenda, of Jewett City, was put to plea on the charge of violation of the liquor law, there being three counts against her. She pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. Attorney Thomas M. Shields is her counsel. It is expected that a jury will be summoned in next week to take up the trial.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE FOR COLCHESTER ROBBERY

Louis Russo, alias Yenkie, one of the bandit quartette from Newark, N. J., that stole two automobiles and a quantity of silk dressgoods at Colchester on June 16 last, was presented here Tuesday afternoon before Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court criminal session, when he pleaded guilty to three counts of theft and was at once sentenced by Judge Avery to from 3 to 5 years in state prison on each count, the sentences running concurrently.

There were six counts in the charges made against Russo by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, but the counts to which he pleaded guilty were theft of a Hudson coach belonging to Hyman and Joseph London, theft of a Dodge coupe belonging to Arthur H. Chapman and theft of 1,100 silk dresses and dress material of the value of $3,579.50 from Ike and Max Cohen.

Russo was represented in court by an attorney from Newark.

Samuel Bushinger, alias Sammy the Jew, said to be the ringleader of the gang, is now under arrest in Philadelphia and it is expected that extradition proceedings may be pushed through in time to get him to this session of the superior court. For that reason State Attorney Brown had the court direct the sheriff not to take Russo to Wethersfield until after Bushinger has been presented here. However, his state prison term begins from the date of sentence.

Bushinger is the last of the gang to be captured, his arrest and that of Russo being a feather in the caps of State Policemen Peter Busch and William E. McKenzie, who got into the secrets of the underground world in Newark by posing there as gunmen and eventually getting the information that led to the arrest of the two men, first getting Russo in Newark about two months ago and then Bushinger in Philadelphia about a week ago.

Joseph Marinello, another of the gang, driving the Hudson coach in which much cloth was found, was arrested in Darien the morning following the break, and he is now serving a term of from one to four years in the state prison at Wethersfield.

Angelo Sica, the second member of the gang to be caught, was traced by the state police to Fresno, Cal., was arrested there and brought back to this state by Trooper Busch. He is now serving a long sentence in the state reformatory.

NORWICH TOWN

REV. CHAS. A. NORTHROP WRITES FROM DANBURY

The following letter from Rev. Charles A. Northrop, a former pastor for many years of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, was received by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, the present pastor, and was read by him at the annual meeting of this church before the gathering assembled New Year's night:

Wooster Heights, Danbury, Conn.
The day after Christmas.

Dearly Beloved Brethren:

Every word here is meant.—I cannot forget the grand times we all had together during those years when I was in my prime and you were my willing assistants. Were it not that all so-called old men hate to travel, especially when the weather is uncertain, I might make a special effort to reach you in person.

Some of you saw and talked with me several weeks ago and knew then, that I was still alive and as young as ever; some of them upliftingly said. When I was there I did a lot of gossiping and found out many things about some of you, none of which be it said, caused me to think less of you than I had here-to-fore; so that if I can't come again it is not because I don't want to.

But, in spite of our absences from one another, there is a certain continuity of remembered kindnesses, and experienced comradeship that will persist as long as any of us live.

I ought to be more infirm in health than I am I suppose, being almost an octogenarian; but it is not my fault that I still take a lively interest in present day affairs. While I cannot work, I certainly can and do, pray for the development of the Christian life among all peoples, which lay as the basis of whatever progressive ideas I had suggested to you in my preaching. I am not looking backwards. (The old days were not the best days,) and my forward look is toward the kingdom of God here on earth. I envy the younger generation for what they are privileged to see and bring about of "eternal life in time," in the years just ahead of us; if I am now mostly a spectator of the life around me. I do not think I shall ever lose my interest in living and sink down and pine for heaven. I have pretty much all I can stand of heaven while here among you. God bless you all.

Still yours,
CHARLES A. NORTHROP.

CAUSTIC ATTACKS ON DRY LAW RENEWED IN THE HOUSE

Representative Black Ironically Nominated Bishop Cannon For "Cheer Leader" in the House For "Dry Killings"—Representative Schafer Quoted From the Bible as He Satirized Representative Beedy's Explanation That Coast Guardsmen Had Drunk Liquor After Working For Hours in Water to Their Knees in Bitter Cold Weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The ancient classics were invoked today by wets in the house as they led debate on the war department supply bill into the field of prohibition to assail the drys for applauding what they termed "dry killings."

Irony and Latin were employed by Representative Black, democrat, New York, as he nominated Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, to be a "cheer leader" for the drys.

"Of course," he said, "I do not want him to turn any somersaults here because some chips and stocks might fall out of his pocket."

Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, drew an analogy from the Bible.

"Each day's tragic news," he asserted, "indicates more human lives sacrificed on the altar of prohibition baal."

He characterized this figure as a "god" of the drys, "which must have blood."

Giving what he termed a theme song of Horace, the celebrated Latin poet, Representative Black shouted:

"Nunc Est Liberdum." (Now is the time to drink).

His delving into the classics was by way of emphasizing his demand that President Hoover's law enforcement commission hold public hearings. He said it should give "a judicial determination whether the prohibition law is workable."

"If it does not do that," he said, "then the entire congress should rebuke it, because it will have proved itself useless."

"There has been a general let down lately in the speeches made by the drys," he asserted, and cited the speech of Representative Beedy, dry republican of Maine, yesterday, as a "particular specimen."

Beedy, he said, "advocates a new amendment to the 18th amendment," which he said would "read something like this:—That this amendment shall not apply to red-blooded American seamen, standing in water three feet deep, provided they can steal a rum runner's liquor."

Referring to a speech made yesterday by another prohibitionist, Representative Adkins, republican, Illinois, Black said, "Mr. Adkins said he was at a party and did not see any drinking."

"I wonder," the New Yorker asked, "if he was at that 'dry convention' the republicans held at Kansas City a short while ago."

The prohibition question will not be solved, Black contended, "until some president of the United States is impeached for not enforcing this law." Expressing "the greatest respect in the world" for President Hoover, the New Yorker said he failed to understand why the president "cannot see the realities and come to the rescue of the country instead of temporising with it as he has."

Schafer also discussed Beedy's address of yesterday and asserted that arrests for drunkenness in Portland, Maine, had greatly increased during the ten years of prohibition.

"Following the applause favoring the dry killings yesterday," Schafer said, "Within the shadow of the nation's capitol we find, according to a press release, that another federal prohibition agent shot a citizen last night while making a prohibition raid without a search warrant.

"For almost ten years," he continued, "the crimson tide has flowed and the next victim ever waits at the gate of his temple," referring to the "god of the drys."

"No one, innocent or guilty of violating the sacred prohibition laws, knows whether his bleeding form will be the next to be cast upon the reeking altar without warning. It may be some of those who vigorously applauded the prohibition killings in the house yesterday."

Beedy aded a new verse to the prohibition "scripture," Schafer said, when he explained that coast guards had drunk some of the confiscated liquor after working for hours in water to their knees in bitter cold weather.

The verse Beedy added, Schafer said, reads:

"Red blooded gobs take a little drink of confiscated liquor on a cold December night for the sake of thy stomach and knees."

"I sincerely hope," the Wisconsin wet concluded, "that the day is not far off when the disciples of Volstead will extend their creed and advocate 'Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities.'" (1 Timothy V 23).

Representative Schafer has been gathering statistics and making other studies on the prohibition situation, and will give the house more of his conclusions during an hour's address on Friday with the consent of the branch.

The question has been thrust to the forefront of late by differences over enforcement among drys in congress. A number of the house wets are expected to meet tomorrow to discuss their plans toward attempting to secure modification of the Volstead act.

Meanwhile the report promised by the Hoover law enforcement commission is awaited. Chairman Wickersham of that group has indicated that it would have something to say about its conclusions within a day or so, but nothing in that connection was forthcoming today.

COUPLE SLAIN BY DIVORCED HUSBAND OF THE WOMAN

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Elizabeth Mason, 26, and her husband, George Mason, 31, were slain today by Mrs. Mason's divorced husband, John Ernest Barnett, 34, Chattanooga, Tenn., accountant, who then fired a bullet into his own head.

The Masons were killed while en route to work. Barnett drove his automobile alongside the Mason car, forcing it into the curb, jumped to the walk, and poured a fusillade into the other car with a home made machine gun. Barnett then pulled a pistol from a shoulder holster and fired a single shot into his own head. Both men were dead when ambulances arrived and Mrs. Mason died an hour later in a hospital.

In Barnett's car, police found a shot gun, ammunition and an automatic pistol in addition to five notes, one of them a diary detailing the slayer's three day vigil in the vicinity of his former wife's home waiting for an opportunity to kill her.

"My companion in death is my former wife, (to me she is still my wife)" he wrote in one note. "If anyone except us two are killed it will be an unfortunate necessity. It is not premeditated."

He told of his marriage to Doris Elizabeth George in October, 1924. She obtained an uncontested divorce in April, 1928, and married Mason in July, 1929.

SMUGGLING ITALIANS INTO THE UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Federal agents at Ellis Island announced tonight that they had been working several months in an effort to apprehend a group of men here alleged to be responsible for smuggling Italians into the United States from South America.

The announcement was made after arrival of the Lamport and Holt liner Voltaire whose officers disclosed that 32 Italian stowaways boarded the ship at Buenos Aires, but were discovered and landed at Santos, Brazil.

The men were concealed in a secret compartment in the third class section. They had plenty of food and some of them carried tickets indicating they had passage from Italian ports to New York via South America.

The tickets did not designate what ship the Italians were to take from Buenos Aires to New York. They bore only a memorandum that this part of the journey would be made "by arrangement."

Increases In Tariffs On Rayon Approved

Senate Devoted an All Day Session to This Rapidly Growing Industry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Further increases in rayon tariffs were approved today by the senate during an all day session devoted exclusively to this fast growing industry.

With the exception of the first paragraph in the new schedule, approved yesterday but reconsidered today and deferred for final action until new import statistics are received, work on committee amendments to the rayon section was completed.

Another controversy then began over whether the papers and books schedule, which follows rayon on the bill, or the highly disputed sugar duties, should be taken up tomorrow. That was unsettled when the senate adjourned.

Not one record vote was required today, despite a severe assault on the proposed increases by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who cited treasury income tax figures to show that 70 per cent of the American rayon mills were foreign controlled and were making millions in profits while paying their workers "pitiable pittances" for wages.

It was at Wheeler's suggestion that the senate reconsidered its action of yesterday in approving slight increases in duties on single and plied yarns not specially provided for. He wanted particularly to eliminate the proposed 45 cents a pound minimum rate on these yarns, but agreed at the request of Smoot that a final vote be deferred until the tariff commission could produce figures on recent imports.

The Montanan described the minimum duty as "little less than a scandal" and said it was equivalent to an advalorem of between 60 and 112 per cent. The advalorem rates in the bill on these yarns are 45 and 50 per cent depending on weight.

Wheeler read from tax data showing the American Viscose company, a subsidiary in this country of a British concern, had earned net profits of $27,609,050 in 1926, or 55 per cent of its gross sales; $29,051,180 in 1927, or 42 per cent and $31,645,901 in 1928 or 46 per cent.

Spun rayon yarn was given a rate of 12 1-2 cents a pound and 45 per cent if singles and 12 1-2 cents and 50 per cent if plied. The house bill provided a specific duty of ten cents and the same advalorems while the finance committee proposed a 20 cent specific duty and like percentages. Senator George also proposed the compromise on this item.

The duty on rayon clothing and articles of wearing apparel not specifically provided for was increased from 45 cents a pound and 60 per cent in existing law to 45 cents and 65 per cent.

This was a reduction from the house proposal which provided 45 cents and 70 per cent. The same increase was voted for manufacturers of rayon filaments, fibers, yarns and threads not specifically provided for.

The latter increases were approved with the understanding that if the duties in the first paragraph are reduced they will be reconsidered.

Only one reduction in existing duties was approved. Roving of rayon was given a rate of 10 cents a pound and 30 per cent as against 45 cents and 60 per cent at present and 45 cents and 70 per cent in the house measure.

FAMILY MAROONED WITHOUT FOOD IN MOUNTAIN CABIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8—(AP)—The seriousness of the cold weather in upland northern California was emphasized today by the reported marooning without food in a mountain cabin 45 miles above Sonora of Mr. and Mrs. John Nightingale of Stockton and their seven-year-old son Stanley.

An airplane was sent today from Stockton, Calif. to drop provisions to the Nightingale family, who Saturday went to their cabin in the High Sierras, but the pilot after more than two hours in the air, reported he could not distinguish the cabin due to the white blaket of snow over it. Men on snowshoes and skiis set out in an effort to reach the cabin afoot.

Grants Pass, Oregon, reported that Samuel Baker, president of the Grants Pass chamber of commerce, and several other men were snow-bound in the isolated Oregon caves country where the snow is six feet deep. A rescue party has been sent out to break a trail.

HEARINGS BY HOUSE BANKING COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Confronted with complex proposals for legislation affecting the national banking system, the house banking committee today began hearings looking toward a study of the situation in the light of current conditions.

The committee failed to agree on two bills proposed by the federal reserve board, and decided they should be re-drafted. One would empower the board to cancel federal reserve bank stock held by a member after the member had discontinued banking operations. The other would authorize the board to permit withdrawal of any state bank or trust company without the six months notice now required.

Meanwhile another far-reaching change of law was proposed by Representative Strong of Kansas, ranking republican on the committee. He said that tomorrow he would introduce a bill to eliminate group and chain banking.

Victory In Senate For Ind. Republicans

Senators LaFollette and Thomas Conceded Places on the Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Senate republicans gave recognition today to the western independents and the "young guard" element after a two day struggle over reorganization of the party's machinery.

Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, one of the independents, and Senator Thomas, of Idaho, a member of the "young guard," were tendered places on the powerful finance committee which shapes the revenue and tariff legislation—a committee usually reserved for the "old guard regulars" only.

The veteran Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, himself cast the deciding vote in the committee on committees which overruled the attempt of Senators Reed, Pennsylvania; Moses, New Hampshire; and Bingham, Connecticut, to keep LaFollette from this committee assignment.

The western independents have opposed the republican's tariff bill now before the senate and in coalition with the democrats have rewritten it. Both the independents and the young guard had no representation on the finance committee. Now for the first time in several years the northwestern agricultural area will be represented.

The decision today of the committee on committees will be formally voted upon tomorrow and on Friday will be put before the republican conference. It avoided an open rupture between the western independents and the republican regulars, who have been at odds ever since the Hoover administration was inaugurated.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, a leader of the independents, and Senator Nye, of North Dakota, the representative of the independents in the committee on committees, tonight looked upon the action as a distinct victory. They had threatened a floor fight for LaFollette.

There was no indication tonight that Senators Reed, Moses and Bingham had yielded in their opposition to recognition of the group which has bolted the party's tariff bill. But there were growing indications during the day that the young guard, as well as some of the veteran party leaders, were inclined to favor the effort to heal the growing breach in the party's ranks which some admitted had become menacing.

KILLED HIS SON-IN-LAW IN DUEL WITH KNIVES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—A butcher killed his son-in-law today in a desperate duel with long meat knives in the elder man's shop in Harlem, and then himself wounded escaped.

In the ten years that Paul Napalitino, 38, had been married to the butcher's daughter, she had haled him into domestic relations court several times on charges of beating her. Last Sunday after she was said to have suffered at his hands again, she took their three children and went to the home of her father, August Trinchese, 55.

Napalitino came for his wife today. He and Trinchese quarreled. The children, 3, 5 and 7 years old, heard their father's voice and came downstairs from the butcher's apartment over the shop.

The two men, each armed with a long sharp knife, were fighting back and forth the length of the shop. The children watched in terror.

Then Napalitino suddenly dropped his knife, ran out to the sidewalk and collapsed, dying, with deep wounds in his neck. Trinchese had escaped through a rear window when police arrived and there was a trail of blood to the window.

ROYAL RITUAL AT MARRIAGE OF MARIE JOSE AND HUMBERT

Three Kings and Two Queens, Two Former Kings and Three Former Queens Were Among the Host of Eminent Personages Present at the Imposing Ceremony in the Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal Palace at Rome—Prospective King and Queen of Italy Later Drove to the Vatican and Received the Blessing of Pope Pius XI.

ROME, Jan. 8—(AP)—Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, became the wife of Crown Prince Humbert and the prospective queen of Italy this morning at a marriage ceremony resplendent with color and pageantry in the Pauline chapel of the Quirinal palace.

Three kings and two queens, two former kings and three former queens, and twenty-eight princes and twenty-six princesses, crowded into the chapel with a host of eminent political, social and military personages from many countries.

After the ceremony, the young royal bridal couple drove to the Vatican where Pope Pius XI cordially received them, gave them the pontifical blessing and wished them happiness throughout their lives. It was the first time in the history of the papacy that a pope had received and blessed a future king and queen of United Italy.

Crown Prince Humbert, who is 25 years old, and Princess Marie Jose, who is 23, were married by Cardinal Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, according to the ritual reserved for royalty.

On one side of them in the chapel, stood the assembled kings, queens and princes, and on the other side Premier Mussolini, Marshal Petain, of France and the military chiefs of Italy.

Wedding Procession

The royal wedding procession entered the hall of the royal guards, adjoining the Pauline chapel, at 10:35 a. m., 35 minutes late for the ceremony.

Princess Marie Jose, accompanied by her father, King Albert, of Belgium, came at the head of the royal group, and was followed by Belgian and Italian officers.

Then came Crown Prince Humbert and his mother, Queen Helena, of Italy, followed by King Victor Emanuel with Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

The procession passed through a crowd of a thousand guests in the hall of the royal guards, among whom were members of the Italian and Belgian aristocracies, state officials and members of the diplomatic corps. The men were in full uniform or full dress, and the women wore gowns in pastel shades, veils and tiaras.

The party then entered the Pauline chapel where the highest ranking diplomats and the cabinet ministers were waiting for them.

The king and queen of Italy ascended a small throne dais on the gospel side of the altar, and the king and queen of Belgium a similar throne on the epistle side.

Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert knelt on red plush prie-dieux mounted with gold.

Among the royal personages on the left of the altar were King Boris, of Bulgaria, former King Manuel, of Portugal, former King Amanullah and former Queen Souriyah, of Afghanistan, and former Queen Sophia of Greece.

Marriage Ceremony

The actual marriage ceremony was over almost before the distinguished congregation realized that it had begun. Cardinal Maffi pronounced the "I join you in matrimony" about five minutes after the couple first knelt before the altar.

In accordance with old custom an ancient rectangular veil twelve feet long was held over the heads of the royal pair by the Count of Turin, the Duke of Abruzzi, the Prince of Udine and the Duke of Pistoia, and it was dropped after they had answered "Si."

The princess and the crown prince turned to their parents for the final gesture of parental consent before answering "Yes." The Belgian and the Italian sovereigns replied by an inclination of the head.

Then Crown Prince Humbert placed a ring on Marie Jose's finger, and Cardinal Maffi proceeded to celebrate the mass, for which Pope Pius granted plenary indulgence to all those participating.

At the elevation of the host, trumpets rang out, and drums sounded in accordance with royal ritual.

After the mass the procession moved out of the chapel with the same pageantry and color.

The new crown princess of Italy was dressed in white cream velvet and wore a train bordered with ermine seven yards long. Crown Prince Humbert was resplendent in the full dress uniform of an infantry colonel and wore the collar of the Annunziata, Italy's highest decoration. The princess' gown reached her ankles.

The couple, accompanied by courtiers and by the Italian ambassador to the holy see, hastened to enter automobiles for the drive to the Vatican. They were 25 minutes late because of the great crush of people around the Quirinal palace. Pope Pius smiled benignly when they were ushered to his presence and dismissed their excuses for tardiness with a gesture.

He presented Crown Prince Humbert with a beautiful tapestry representing Pinturicchio's Madonna, with a frame decorated with the papal triple crown, and the coats of arms of the papacy, the house of Savoy and the royal house of Belgium. He gave the princess a gold rosary set with precious stones.

The religious marriage was accompanied by a civil rite that included the reading of the civil code and the signing of the register by witnesses.

The bridal couple before going to the Vatican went out on a balcony of the palace and showed themselves to an enormous crowd below, who cheered wildly. Their route to the Vatican was lined with other cheering crowds.

Premier Mussolini's entrance into the Quirinal with the wedding procession marked an epoch in the social development of fascism.

For the first time since his advent to power in 1922, the duce was greeted by royalty and nobility on all sides with the Roman or fascist salute, made with the outstretched right arm. He returned the salute in the same fashion.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8—(AP)—Taking notice unofficially of purported interviews with persons figuring in the William Desmond Taylor murder case, District Attorney Buron Fitts said today he neither had heard nor read anything which warranted a new investigation of the slaying here in 1922 of the prominent motion picture director.

SEE MENACE IN MERGER OF BRITISH COMMUNICATIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, today took issue with the statement made yesterday before the senate interstate commerce commission by Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, that the Radio corporation was holding the British communications consolidation up as a "fantastic bogey."

General Harbord, in an address before the New York board of trade, reiterated the Radio corporation's claim that the British cables and radio consolidation and similar mergers in other countries are a menace to communication companies in the United States "where restrictive legislation forbids a natural union of these important arteries of world trade."

He called attention to the fact that Mr. Carlton had "scoffed at the idea" that a unification of communications interests in other countries calls for a similar action here.

COURTHMARTIAL FINDING IN THE NORTHCUTT CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—A finding has been made in the courtmartial case of Lieutenant Harold Wilson Northcutt of the navy's construction corps, who disappeared from his station at Norfolk on October 22, and was found 12 days later by government agents in Vancouver, Canada.

Navy officials, who must review the finding, refused to announce the verdict. No notification of an acquittal on any of the three charges against Northcutt has been given.

The charges were desertion, entering a foreign country without permission, and "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman." They were based on the disappearance of the 28-year-old former star student of the navy, and his discovery in Canada.

While Northcutt awaits official announcement of the outcome of the trial at the Bremerton navy yard, his wife and young son are here.

HUNDREDS AT OPENING OF WILLIMANTIC EXPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—With hundreds of people from all parts of eastern Connecticut in attendance, the fifth annual Willimantic Exposition was formally opened at the state armory on Pleasant street this evening, under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association.

Official announcement of the opening was made by Mayor Walter R. King. Town Clerk Frank P. He told of the mutual interest taken by the merchants of the city, through the chamber of commerce, in the exposition. He termed the exposition one of the most worthy enterprises on the annual schedule of Willimantic's many activities.

While the crowd was inspecting the hundreds of interesting exhibits, concert music was rendered by the Willimantic State Trade school band.

The exposition has opened informally at noon at which time Manager D. D. Cavanaugh and his corps of assistants had completed all preparations and the doors were opened to the public. The exposition will be open day and night until Saturday evening when final awards will be made.

The exposition is specifically devoted to the development and promotion of the great poultry industry in Windham county, the number and variety of exhibits to be seen invades many other lines from automobiles to tiny curios and antiques. The same holds true of the pet stock and rare birds shown. In the fur-bearing class there are dogs, cats, rabbits, etc., while in the feathered variety there are many turkeys, poultry, pigeons, rare turkhens, domestic and wild birds, land and water fowl, etc. The merchandise displays are likewise varied and highly educational. Among exhibits drawing special interest is one by the Southern New England Telephone company where a practical showing is made of the use of extension phones in households and where a group of pretty "hello" girls are stationed to answer questions on telephone problems.

There are about 500 heads of poultry, embracing every standard variety. Among the features of this department are entries of silver Wyandottes that are the largest shown since the popularity of these hens began to wane in 1897. There are White Wyandottes from Lambert's farm in Appanaug, R. I., barred rocks, white Plymouth rocks, a pair of fowl hatched without tails, geese, wild Mallard ducks from John R. Littlefield's of Wakefield, R. I., and any number of rare birds. White, red and bronze turkeys, to the number of 50, from the Mountain Notch Farm at Somers made an interesting exhibit in the poultry department. Many stop to look at the pair of turkhens and a full feathered peacock from Southwick & Son of Blackstone, Mass.

The parlor adjacent to the drill shed of the armory is proving a popular place with the visitors. Here are effectively displayed valuable collections of Oriental rugs by Haig Iskiyan of Hampton and curios and antiques from various sections of this and neighboring states.

The merchandise exhibits entered by Willimantic merchants are complete and highly educational, showing the latest in various lines of common usage.

Thursday forenoon the exposition staff and exhibitors will visit Connecticut Agricultural college and in the evening will be guests of the poultry association at the annual banquet in the Nathan Hale hotel. OBITUARY

Mrs. Lucy P. Chesbro

Mrs. Lucy Phinney Chesbro, 77, widow of the late John H. Chesbro of Scotland, died early this morning in a Norwich hospital. She had been ill for some time. She was born in Yantic, October 7, 1852, a daughter of Elisha and Lucy Waterman Phinney and had spent the greater part of her life in Scotland. Her survivors are: One son, Harry Chesbro; a daughter, Mrs. W. W. Pratt of South Wales, N. Y.; one brother, Henry Phinney of Scotland; three nieces, Miss Susan Chase of Toledo, Ohio, Mrs. Harry Pearl of this city and Mrs. Samuel Pearl of Scotland; and a nephew, Moulton Chase of Cliftondale, Mass.

A warning to be on the look-out for a bogus salesman, who has represented that he is Harry Stone, selling hosiery, has been issued by the chamber of commerce. The warning is based on a communication from the national headquarters of the Better Business bureau at New York city. In Wakefield, Mass., recently, Harry Stone collected a deposit on an order for hosiery from a woman and that is the last she has seen of the salesman or his goods. He claimed to be in the employ of the Fasheen Knitting mills of East Boston, Mass., and selling Gotham Gold Stripe hosiery. Giving a fictitious home address of 19 Parker street, Everett, Mass., this same man, always claiming to be selling the hosiery mentioned above, has fleeced many in various New England cities during the past two years. The Fasheen Knitting mills claim that they have no salesman by the name of Harry Stone and that furthermore they do not manufacture hosiery. The Gotham Silk Hosiery company employ no salesmen in house-to-house canvass, selling only through retail stores. The man is described as medium height, dark complexion, very thin, 35 to 40 years of age, carrying a brown brief case containing samples of women's hosiery and underwear.

In bringing attention to this questionable salesmanship, the chamber of commerce requests that persons approached by solicitors not bearing proper certificates should telephone at once and report the circumstances to the chamber office.

Officers of the Ladies' society of the Congregational church elected for the year are: President, Mrs. C. W. Noyes; first vice president, Mrs. W. E. Hendry; second vice president, Mrs. Harry W. Standish; honorary president, Mrs. H. R. Chappell; secretary, Mrs. G. C. Moon; treasurer, Mrs. O. L. Willard; auditor, Mrs. F. P. Fenton; chairman of directresses, Mrs. A. B. Smith; chairman of thimble clubs, Mrs. D. W. C. Hill; chairman of program committee, Mrs. C. C. Case; chairman of membership committee, Mrs. G. E. Hinman; chairman of house committee, Mrs. E. J. TOWN APPROVES PLANS FOR REPAIRING OAKS SCHOOL

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—Plans for repairing the Oaks grammar school which was visited by two mysterious fires last week and were approved at the January meeting of the Windham town school committee held at the high school building tonight. The repairs, which are to be made under the direction of the properties committee, W. B. Sweeney, chairman, will probably not be completed for about six weeks, it was stated tonight. Meanwhile the present arrangement of transporting the 116 pupils to the Natchaug and Windham street schools will be continued.

It is estimated that the cost of repairs will be within the insurance adjustment which was reported to be about $1,500. While there is but little structural damage to the brick structure the two fires raised havoc with the woodwork, especially to the ceilings which were covered with varnished sheeting that was damaged in Sunday evening's fire. This fire started in the kindergarten room on the west side and worked up to the second story where closet rooms were damaged. The first fire which broke out about noon Saturday in the basement was confined to toilet rooms on this floor and caused considerable damage to the plumbing. While considerable re-painting will be necessary, it is planned to adhere to replacements only in making repairs. Including the reading of the minutes by Secretary Egbert A. Case, the remainder of the business of the meeting was of routine nature.

The new one-story frame building replacing the J. M. Tatem Handle company plant at Eastford, which was destroyed by fire some time ago, is nearly completed. The concrete floor has been laid and work is being rushed in the interior. The plant is expected to be in operation by February 1.

COLUMBIA

The annual supper and business meeting of Columbia church was held at Yeomans' hall Friday. At 6.30 a bountiful supper was served by the Ladies' Aid society, consisting of baked fresh ham, scalloped potatoes, apple sauce, cabbage salad, cake and coffee. At 7.30 the business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Florence Badge, church clerk, and then turned over to the pastor, Rev. John Howell. Reports of the different church officers and organizations were submitted and accepted. The treasurer's report showed a slight balance with all bills paid to date. During the year over $1,900 was collected for the expenses of the church. The trustees' report showed $16,000 invested funds, with an additional fund of $5,000 which is not a trustee fund. These invested funds bring an annual income to the church of about $1,000. Church envelopes bring in about $700 a year and the loose collection on the plates each Sunday amount to about $300 more. The treasurer called attention to the fact that both loose collection and envelopes were much more than a few years ago, especially noticeable in the summer, showing that summer residents are helping support Columbia church generously.

The Ladies' Aid society report showed a membership of 51. During the past year they have spent over $200 on the upkeep of the parsonage. They cleared over $250 at their fair and supper last August and at present they have over $700 in the bank. Reports were also read by the C. E. society and Sunday school, also Ladies' Missionary society. The clerk's report shows a membership of 145, 60 males and 85 females. The working group of the church is composed of about 50. The following officers were elected for the new year: Secretary, Mrs. Alice Hunt; treasurer, Edward P. Lyman; trustee for three years, Clayton E. Hunt; standing committee for three years, William M. Wolff. About 60 were present at the supper and meeting.

At the session of the Sunday school held after the church service, the annual election of officers was held. Clayton E. Hunt, who has served as superintendent during 16 of the last 19 years, declined reelection, and Miss Margaret Hutchins was chosen to succeed him, with Miss Gladys Rice as her assistant. DANIELSON

BOHEMIAN CLUB TO DISBAND THIS MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 8.—The end of this month will mark the passing of an organization that has been outstanding for a generation in the social life of Danielson—the Bohemian club. At the annual meeting last evening it was voted to disband the organization, and first steps toward that end were taken today by Secretary A. Putnam Woodward. Lack of interest and dwindling membership account for the decision to close up the club's affairs. Mr. Woodward pointed out this morning that the factors that enter into passing of the club are common to the great majority of clubs throughout the country and to lessened attendance at the meetings of many fraternal organizations—the automobile, the movies and the radio, among others.

Things were different when a small group of well-known local citizens gathered in a store here on Feb. 1, 1898, discussed forming the club and decided to do it. Of all the original and charter members—there were 18 of them—Secretary Woodward is the only one now retaining membership in the club. The majority of them have passed down the purple valley. Dr. F. H. Coops was elected first president and the other original officers were: H. W. P. Collins, secretary, and originator of the idea of forming the club; Dr. F. P. Todd, treasurer; Henry E. Church, W. W. Sheldon and A. P. Woodward, executive committee. Mr. Woodward through all of the 32 years that have since elapsed has held one office or another in the club. In addition to the officers herein mentioned the other charter members were: Dr. C. E. Simonds, Frank D. Spaulding, Alrick P. Gibbs, Charles F. Winkelman, Dr. W. E. Hyde, W. B. Young, Jr., Edward S. Carpenter, Dr. H. C. Breault, E. H. Keach, H. J. Richard, Oliver W. Bowen, Dr. O. C. Sharpe, Attorney Harry E. Back and Frederick H. Armington.

Since that time the club has had, first and last, hundreds of members, many of them from the ranks of the professional and business men of the town. Some two years after its formation the Bohemian club was incorporated. Steps are to be taken to dissolve the corporation, and the club including its name, will pass into the things that are of the past. The club is to dispose of its furnishings, will pay all outstanding bills and will vacate the quarters it has occupied for about 15 years in the Danielson Trust Co. building. The original quarters of the club were on the third floor of the town hall building, where the Odd Fellows are now located. Prior to taking the present quarters the club had the entire second floor of the Frankling block, now replaced by the Windham County National bank.

There was a movement on foot today among some of the members of the club to organize a new club and to retain part of the present quarters of the Bohemian club.

INEBRIATED MAN CAUSE OF STORY OF LALONE'S CAPTURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 8.—A drunk, who refused to pay a taxi fare, was the cause of a rumor originating here and spreading all over eastern Connecticut by noon today that Roland G. Lalone, escaped convict, had been recaptured and was in custody at the state police barracks on North Main street.

Last night a taxi man picked up a man in Webster who wanted to come to Elmville and he was driven into this town. Arrived at his destination, he refused to pay, being drunk and argumentative. He was driven to the barracks on North Main street and the matter of the fare adjusted through the efforts of a state officer.

From this little incident was born the story that Lalone had been captured in a stolen taxi and brought to the barracks. The story spread like wildfire all through the towns hereabouts and persisted throughout today notwithstanding persistent denials. The whereabouts of Lalone and his escaped companions remained unknown here late this afternoon.

J. W. Powdrell did not mince words in his talk to members of the chamber of commerce and their guests in discussing some of the things that Danielson should do if it would be greater commercially and numerically than it is today.

Among the impressive information he presented to his auditors were the figures taken from the payrolls of Powdrell & Alexander, of which he is president, dealing with the money paid to employes of the concern who are non-residents of Danielson and in a great many cases live outside the confines of the town of Killingly. The scores of thousands of dollars paid to these non-resident employes every year is largely taken out of town, and this happens to be true because the majority of those who earn the money cannot live in Danielson because there are no homes for them. Again, the community faces difficulty in locating new industries in vacant available plants of the town because, for one reason, representatives of these prospective industries who come here to check up are naturally interested in housing conditions for their employes.

Mr. Powdrell also made mention of the fact that it is necessary for him to take buyers who come here from all parts of the United States and from points in Canada to do business with his concern out of town for suitable hotel service and accommodations. The suggestion there was that Danielson is badly in need of a modern hotel such as has been talked of for this town for several months past.

What Mr. Powdrell said in the hearing of numbers of business men and other influential citizens of the town likely will be of very considerable value in forwarding the home building campaign that is expected to be getting under way within the next few weeks.

While here this afternoon, E. C. Rogers, owner and landlord of the Putnam inn, talked of plans for developing the T. E. Hopkins estate on North Main street as a modern high-class hotel. He has plans for the proposed hostelry showing a structure and an arrangement of which Danielson could well be proud. Mr. Rogers' chief ambition just now is to interest Danielson people in making this hotel a reality. This done, the plaints about inadequate hotel service in Danielson would be largely overcome. The hope is to undertake the development of this property in the spring and to have it ready for the summer season. There is very general interest in this proposal here, and it likely will receive generous support.

There continued to be some confusion in getting newspapers into Danielson promptly today, and a mishap to a delivery truck running between Norwich and Danielson also contributed to the delay.

PUTNAM

CITY ENGINEER'S REPORT SHOWS LARGE WATER WASTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 8.—The unsanitary methods of sewage waste and industrial waste disposal existing in this city were scored in a report submitted to the common council Tuesday evening by City Engineer George W. Perry. The report was compiled by Engineer Perry following his survey of waste disposal methods made during the summer months after the city had voted a special appropriation of $399 to enable the department of engineering to purchase special apparatus to record the daily sewage flow into the Quinebaug river.

The lengthy report of the engineer was accompanied by maps showing the flow under various weather circumstances. According to the report of Mr. Perry manufacturers having drains discharging sewage directly into the river are the following: The Putnam Woolen company, mills and tenement houses (no toilets) and agent's residence; Edward Bloom company, Stone mill; Belding Hemingway company, entire plant; General Phonograph company, entire plant; Perkins Strongman company, Lowell Needle company, overflow from septic tank, Putnam Land and Mills company, No. 1 and No. 2 mills; Thomas Harris heirs, entire plant and Kent's shop; Harry A. Keech, Truesdell street, box shop; Putnam Fabric company, mill; C. M. and E. B. Kent, Kent block including the Putnam Steam laundry. Three houses on Arch street near the river; fourteen houses at north end of South Meadow street and near south end of Church street, where there is no sewer, discharge is directly into river. To remedy the present unsanitary conditions by the installation of sewage lift pumps and sewage mains in various parts of the city where offensive and unlawful conditions exist would cost about $31,000, the report said.

Water is being wasted in a great many ways in Putnam, Engineer Perry points out. The consumption as showed by tests at the crib over the sewage outlet south of Arch street, per capita, is considerably higher than it should be, due, in a large part, to the fact that water furnished the householder in Putnam is not metered, as in most cities.

The sewage flow for about 6 hours on Mondays and Tuesdays, when the laundries are in operation, is very large. On these days, in summer, the flow is larger than in winter. From 2 to 5 o'clock on Saturday and Sunday nights, at a time when few people would be around, the flow is small. If it were not for leaking fixtures and other leaks there would be practically no flow at these hours. Mr. Perry said that he took many meter readings at the crib during early morning hours, the discharge at this time being clear water only at a rate of 75,000 gallons per day. Mr. Perry quoted Engineer Copeland as saying that efforts should be made by the city to reduce the sewage flow before a move is made toward filter installation.

In concluding paragraphs, Mr. Perry touched upon the huge volume of storm water discharged into the sewers, which should be removed before the city takes steps to install the filter method of sewage disposal. The discharge of storm water could be carried directly into the river by laying a drain on Arch street, 750 feet in length. The cost of this project would be about $3,500, the engineer estimated. Mr. Perry's report was most comprehensive. It brought to light the unsightly conditions in a fair and impartial way and overlooked nothing, and in many ways exposed unsanitary practices being carried on in Putnam in regards to unhealthy sewage disposal methods which have not been generally known. Mr. Perry's report of his survey also brought to light the imperativeness of a movement to eliminate such conditions that have been branded unlawful by the state government. His report will appear in full in the municipal register soon to be published.

PUTNAM PAYS OFF $5,000 ON CITY DEBT IN 1929

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 8.—The new court of common council assembled in the chambers on Church street last evening for the first meeting of their two-year term to which they were elected last fall. Improved streets, a hope that the city will see fit to the purchase of additional fire apparatus; that the plan to eliminate sewage from the river will progress this year; that the improving of the water system will be gotten under way as soon as possible and that an immediate remedy will be brought about in regards to the parking controversy were the high lights of Mayor Charles A. Richard's annual message. The various city officers, with the exception of the head of the police department and the superintendent of streets, had reports of activities of their departments for the past year read by City Clerk Thomas P Ryan. In the case of the police and street departments the mayor announced that the documents had been mislaid, but would be read at the February meeting.

The report of City Treasurer Charles H. Brown contained an item of vital importance, when it was announced that the city debt has been reduced $5,000 during the past year. The reduction of the debt is ascribed to the manner in which the old administration had materially stressed the economy programme inserted in their platform.

Aside from the reading of annual reports the only matters to come to the attention of the council were a petition from a number of merchants on Main street that a one-hour parking system be instituted between Mansfield's block and the Putnam Savings bank and on the opposite side of the street between the Citizens National bank and the office of the Eastern Connecticut Light and Power company; on lower Main street from Gagne's drug store to Carroll's store, at the intersection of Main and Bundy streets. This was referred to the highway committee to confer with the committee on rules and ordinances and report a plan at the February meeting. The Citizens National bank, through its cashier, Arthur E. Smith, applied for a ten-minute parking space in front of the banking house. This matter was referred to the police and ordinance committees to investigate.

Following the reading of the bills of the current month and bills of the water department a motion to adjourn until February was passed.

Tax Collector's Report.

In his annual report submitted to the common council previous to his formal retirement from the office of city tax collector, Archibald MacDonald, Jr., said that only taxes amounting to $5,878.81 remain on the books as uncollected. The grand list for the city of Putnam was unusually large last year and Mr MacDonald's record is one that is a credit to himself and to the city. He has been succeeded by Harvey Grinsell who took the oath of office on January 1.

Fire Loss Is $22,776.31

Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston of the fire department said today that 116 alarms were recorded at the central station during the year 1929, 64 of which were chimney fires and the remainder box and out of town calls. The total fire loss incurred during the year was $22,776.31 on property involved valued at $307,109 which was protected by insurance amounting to $250,065. Fire insurance adjusters made settlements on fire razed property to the extent of $20,176.81, Chief Thurston's records showed.

In one instance, the City hotel which was covered with insurance to the amount of $22,000, only $4,600 was paid to the proprietor after adjusters had reported to the company. The building was destroyed on the night of March 6, 1929, and proved to be the most disastrous blaze of the year, Chief Thurston said.

Henry J. Dubois, a member of the board of water commissioners whose term expired January 1, was re-appointed for another term of three years by Mayor Charles A. Richard last night. The appointment received a vote of confirmation by the common council. Mr. Dubois first became a member of the board of water commissioners two years ago, when the resignations of the old board of commissioners were accepted by the council.

The prospect of an overhead system of traffic control at the triple intersection of Main, Front and Pomfret streets in the business section is being considered by the common council. This dangerous site is presently guarded by a flashing beacon which lights at intervals of two seconds. Mayor Richard is of the opinion that traffic passing through the center of the city would be more efficiently regulated with the installation of the proposed device. Busses and large trucks have been known to create congestions at this point which is extremely hazardous because of the Central fire station being situated only a few hundred feet further up the street. The apparatus stationed there must pass through the triple intersection to answer every alarm within its district. No serious conflagration has ever grown out of the fire department's delay at this point, but it is the council's ambition to eliminate the possibility of such disastrous results.

Two new filter beds will be in service at the pumping station in Harrisville early next week, it was said today. The beds have been equipped with working apparatus. When placed in service the pumping capacity of the water department will be increased by an additional one half million gallons a day.

Walter (Klinker) Brown, well known railroad man and resident of Water street, this city, today became a member of the force of the New Haven police.

Postmaster A. Macdonald announced today that the post office hours for the future will be from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., instead of from six o'clock in the morning until seven in the evening. The change of office hours is due to the change in mail service enacted this week.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin announced today that two prizes are being offered to the pupils of the 6th and 7th grades for the best papers on "Thrift." The com-

JEWETT CITY

FANNY READ KEPT HER ROOM SINCE CIVIL WAR TIMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 8.—Judge Howard M. Read of Hancock, N. Y., made a few days' visit in Jewett City and Norwich last summer, looking up matters pertaining to several of his Read ancestors, who for many years lived in Lisbon. While calling in Norwich at that time, a story about his visit in this section, written by City Editor Charles F. Whitney, appeared in The Bulletin of June 10. Local people were much interested in the article and what it told about the borough's distinguished visitor. Jan. 6, the New York Evening Journal ran a big illustrated story about Judge Read's family, mentioning in particular a number of remarkable facts concerning his aged aunt, Fanny Read, who, when a girl, came to the Thomas Read homestead in Lisbon on the Newent highway. Today, John E. Phillips has received a letter from the judge and arrangements have been completed for the securing of photographs of the old house which are to be taken by George H. Prior. The Binghamton (N. Y.) Sun tells Judge Read's story about his aunt.

He related numerous incidents never before made public in connection with Miss Read's long period of self-imprisonment, dating from the time her father had sent her to her room, forbidding her to see her soldier sweetheart. Her will proved to be as strong as that of her father and she remained in the room for the span of a natural lifetime. Doctors and nurses who now know her romantic story at the Binghamton State hospital, are much interested in this aged recluse, who for nearly 70 years lived in seclusion in a room of the old American hotel, in the village of Hancock. Judge Read says that his aunt's condition has now made her removal mandatory. He has watched over her and looked after her welfare for more than [illegible] years. Started long before Fanny Read went into seclusion, the old inn has a remarkable history. According to Judge Read, the hotel, of which his aunt was the sole occupant, has 50 rooms. Built in 1835, rebuilt in 1856, it remains today exactly as it was when Fanny Read's father sent her soldier lover away and told the girl to go to her room. The furniture is priceless. Every room is filled with the furnishings of that period, the old sofas, chairs and marble-topped tables stand just as they were when the girl recluse forced the closing of the establishment. Priceless antiques are to be found in every room. Even the wall paper remains the same as it was when sol-

Tells How Fat Men Can Lose Half a Pound a Day

Here's a simple way to get rid of that corporation and quickly feel in both body and mind the joy of living.

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

It's the safe way, too—for every day you continue this easy method of losing unwanted and unneeded flesh you'll gain in energy, vigor and endurance.

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs need to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind.

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of hot or cold water you get these six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any social activity or recreation—you can play as hard as you work.

And after two weeks your excess flesh starts to go—you'll know it—feel it—see it—the scales will tell the story.

As one, once corpulent man remarked—"I feel so energetic that I want to get up with the lark and I'm just as lively as a cricket."

Kruschen Salts is not a purgative or a cathartic, but a real system conditioner and for those who are the victims of constipation or toxemia its daily use soon means blissful regularity.

CONNECTICUT mother's story will interest you

"MY little son, Sidney, became bilious, pale and listless," says Mrs. E. P. Berkeley, 88 Church Street, Hartford. "He was never hungry and didn't digest what he ate. He was constipated.

"I decided to try California Fig Syrup; and it has been a blessing. Now his bowels are regular; he has a fine appetite and perfect digestion, I give him a little Fig Syrup, now and then, when he seems to need its help, and it keeps him gaining."

Giving children California Fig Syrup is the finest way to do away with the ills caused by constipation. This is the way children like; that doctors approve. This pure vegetable product just suits a child's system. It moves the bowels gently without griping or discomfort. It helps tone and strengthen bowels and stomach so they continue to act naturally. A child's whole system soon reacts to its purifying and energizing qualities. Prove it the next time your child develops those first symptoms of a clogged system—bad breath or coated tongue.

A PHILIPPINE CONFERENCE

Even though the question of independence for the Philippines is being kept to the front, there is no question but what the resolution introduced by Senator Bingham, calling for a commission by the president to confer in the islands regarding the future status of the islands, is properly directed.

What is to be done with the islands has been a question that has been raised periodically. It is shown in the treaty that the islands were ceded to the United States but there has been talk about independence and there have been those who lent encouragement to it and even went so far as to indicate that the time was coming when they might be cast loose. It has always been maintained that there should be no thought of parting with the islands until our duty to them had at least been discharged. There has been no definite stand taken as to when they would be in a position to take care of themselves or that they would be allowed to shift for themselves at some future date.

As the matter stands at the present time the agitation in the islands has been put forth in such a manner that there is believed to be much uncertainty among the rank and file of the islanders as to just what would be accomplished by independence, what responsibilities and handicaps would have to be shouldered and what benefits would be attached to remaining as they are.

Through the suggested conference there would be an opportunity to present this situation to the islanders in such a light as to remove any false notions. They would be able to grasp the meaning of such a change and perhaps appreciate the part which politicians have played in putting forth the fight for freedom. Within the past several years there has been a better understanding on the part of the people of what this country is doing for the islands and what can be expected. With a determination as to what the future policy is going to be there would be ended much of the bickering which is now keeping the islands from experiencing the full benefits and developments which they should and would get under a stabilized future.

JUDGES BY APPOINTMENT

In his address to the legislature at the opening of its session this week, Governor Case of Rhode Island has proposed something which may be considered revolutionary and which may encounter much opposition, but he stands on good ground in asking for it. It is his belief that there should be a change made in the method of selecting superior court judges. He understands the importance of having high grade judges, and he acknowledges that the present method of having the selections made by the legislature has worked out with a considerable degree of success, but it is his conviction that the choice of judges should be vested with the governor, he to be responsible for the nomination and ratification of his choice to rest with the senate.

Rhode Island has had its contests over the choice of judges. Perhaps they can be waged without in any way interfering with the selection of the proper men, and without the persons chosen getting into the contest and becoming obligated to those who stood by him, but it is obviously the desire of a state, or at least should be, to have the men the best fitted for work on the bench selected for such duties. And when it comes to discharging that important responsibility of getting the best, it is reasonable to expect that a governor is going to rise to the situation much easier than a legislature.

Making one man responsible for such selections and holding him to it, by the senate and the people is as much preferable to choice by legislature as such a method is over the election of judges. Places on the bench should be kept as far removed from politics as possible. When they are elected they are made the football of politics. When they are chosen by legislatures the situation is not much better. When the governor names the judges he expresses his judgment in regard to men of character and men of ability and it is possible for the electorate to put their finger on the situation and correct it in case bad selections are made. The fact is that the senate can be expected to keep any appointments up to requirements.

Because the step is asked gives no assurance that it will be adopted, but the governor has the satisfaction of pointing out and advocating a needed change.

PAYING BY CHECK

In sending a letter to the New York Herald Tribune, the president of a New York bank and trust company indicates that he is surprised that there is not a more general resort to the use of checks in paying wages for the purpose of preventing the frequent attacks upon paymasters and the loss of life and pay funds. He believes that greater use should be made of checks instead of cash payrolls.

There is no secret about the fact that the use of checks would remove an obvious temptation to those who are ready to rob. It would also mean a decidedly valuable protection to the payroll and those who are expected to transport it. In paying off, checks could be as easily handled as cash, probably more so. What seems to be the only objection to the use of checks comes from the employes. Checks are not quite as fluid as money. They mean that they must be cashed and it is known that there are those who dislike to cash checks. That means that there must either be some means of getting to a bank, an obliging storekeeper or friend, or some handicaps may exist in converting them into cash. Therein lies the objection from the standpoint of the employe.

On the other hand the loss of a payroll is no slight matter. It can easily react to the disadvantage of the employe, even as it does to the concern, and there is reason why an employe should be desirous of doing anything he can in a reasonable way to thwart those who would steal the money intended for him.

Paymasters and messengers have been intercepted by thugs who knew they carried funds. The resort to armed companions and the carrying of payrolls in machines which have been guarded has often been inadequate. Funds carried in armored cars have been seized at the right moment, until it has been frequently recognized that safety lies in keeping the money out of the busy thoroughfares.

Paying by check has been resorted to by many employers as a matter of convenience and protection. That more do not employ this method of paying off, especially when conditions are such as to create any uncertainty, is cause for surprise when everything is considered. Through proper arrangements and cooperation the safety factor could be greatly strengthened.

PERSHING DECLINES

That General Pershing does not desire to enter a contest for United States senator from Nebraska can be readily understood. He is not desirous of political honors and he probably doesn't care to become a member of the upper house of congress under present-day conditions.

Nevertheless there is evidenced a determination to make a fight in Nebraska against Senator Norris at the coming election. If it isn't General Pershing as the opposing candidate for the republican nomination it will be someone else. There is in Nebraska, quite the same as elsewhere, a feeling that Senator Norris should be replaced. The republicans of that state cannot swallow the fact that he turned the party down in the last election and is now seeking their support for a reelection on a republican ticket.

Such action has been characteristic of those insurgent leaders in certain states. They have posed as republicans long enough to obtain the nomination and the election and then they have thrown the republican standard to the wind and done about everything that was possible to obstruct and hinder the administration in carrying out its policies; those policies which the people of the country have backed by their votes.

Under such circumstances it is not at all surprising that there is strong opposition welling up against Norris. Whether there is sufficient political strategy among the Nebraskan leaders to select one strong opponent and prevent a division of the vote by the entrance of several candidates in the primary remains to be seen. It was apparently hoped that General Pershing would consent, or could be drafted, to fill that bill. His refusal simply means that someone else must be chosen. Nebraska has men upon whom it can rely to stand by the party which elects them and not become turncoats.

THE ROYAL WEDDING

Interest has centered for a number of days upon the wedding of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium. This means the joining of the two ruling houses and the coming of the future queen of Italy. Thus it is a matter of much significance to all Italy and where royalty is involved the rest of the world always looks on with much concern, whether directly concerned or not.

The wedding was celebrated with all the preparations and pomp that could be asked. It was an occasion for elaborate decorations and spectacular parades because of the probability that the two young people will some day be the rulers of Italy. That is, they will be the successors of the present king and queen if all goes well.

What the developments in Italy will be it is impossible to tell. Conditions there are such that it is not as easy to say with accuracy who the successor to the throne will be, or even that there will be a successor to the present king.

Since fascism got its grip upon Italy the position of the king has continued to dwindle in importance. The power of the duce must be reckoned with in Italy today. It rests with him to say whether Prince Humbert will succeed his father. It may all depend upon what attitude he takes in regard to Italian affairs, whether he is heart and soul back of the duce or whether he is disposed to be a sovereign of the old type and unfriendly to fascism.

He appears to be well thought of among the people of Italy, a young man of good appearance and promise, and to strengthen him in what may be his future responsibilities he has taken to Rome a popular princess from the Saxe-Coburg stock which has long been reflected in Belgian kings.

GARDEN GLORY.

Margot lifted her shoulders in the morning sunlight and breathed deeply. It was good to stand in one's own back yard right in a patch of warm sunshine. Besides, hadn't Tiller Thomley brought her to this little white house the third week of their marriage just because it had what Margot always wanted, a garden with a wall around it?

That is, ground where a garden ought to be, but as yet wasn't. You see, Tiller was too busy managing the shining new hardware store down in the suburb. He was becoming as inflexible as granite these days, but Margot only smiled. He was just steeped in business. He thought in terms of nails, wrought iron and sand paper. He could never be brought low on his knees, fingering the earth with his hands. She wouldn't even ask him. She'd fill the emptiness that lay inside the lovely old wall with a young fairyland of color and form.

So today, with mysterious packages heaped in her lap, she sat on the cold white garden bench and wondered where to begin. Such names as gaillardia, antirrhinum and abutilon flew through her head like wisps of nothing. That's what they were—terrible names. But translated further down on the slim package was a delightful explanation. There were white and violet annual called "Indian chief," bell-shaped blossoms, drawf asters in lilac shade, and blue-eyed African daisies. All of which, before she knew it, made such gay mental pictures that she could scarcely wait to commence digging.

All day she worked, lifting out grassy squares, digging with a cunning trowel that she'd found in the basement, and thinking up patterns that would best identify certain flowers. In her mental pictures she saw hollyhocks in an old-fashioned row against the sturdy wall, and in the center of the green expanse a tiny bird bath.

"Tiller Thomley can have his nails and turpentine," she said late that afternoon, "but I'm soon going to surprise him with morning glories for breakfast and a host of others for the evening centerpiece. And," she thought "he may even grow to like flowers, too."

And so, when Tiller Thomley sank into an unusual silence that evening while he thumped aimlessly at the piano, Margot wondered whether she ought to start a nail or a flower conversation! It was a bit amusing. How little he suspected that she'd been making small furrows in his very own yard all the day, he who didn't know an orange crown from a marigold!

"Er, Margot, I've something for you out on the back walk," Tiller's matter-of-fact voice thundered from the piano. "When you're ready, let's go to see it." Margot wondered. Perhaps a pup she'd wanted. She hurried the yellow dishes into their yellow shelves and wondered what her serious husband would say were she to shout a few of those awful flower names at him. No doubt he'd think it was more Dutch the washlady had been teaching her!

But on the back walk in a huge box certainly wasn't a pup. Margot looked at her husband and then back again at the square hamper. It wasn't until after she had raised the lid that Tiller saw her amazement. The next moment she pulled out a handful of small packages. Seeds, of course.

"Tiller Thomley—a gardener?" was all she managed to say. It was too good, her husband buying seeds of his own accord. Actually wanting a garden himself, and purchasing such ducky variations! Yes, here was a hand spade, a trowel, some cord for measuring off. And even a book on modern gardens behind old-fashioned walls!

"Why, Til, dear, you surprise me so! What ever made you—"

But he interrupted: "Margot, it's going to be all your very own garden, but I insist on a few rare numbers in it." He got on his knees before the box, searching while he added, "I want that thing called 'Tagetes Patula'—they're marigolds—and, oh, yes—the 'Iberis Umbellata' or spiral candytuft." Tiller in a garden! Well, she just couldn't believe it.

"All right, anything you say. I didn't know you knew so much about flowers. But it's been a thrilling surprise." Tiller grinned. He remembered taking the afternoon off, closing his office door and studying that seed book forward and backward! But it was for Margot.

"Not at all, only wish I'd known sooner," he said, fumbling with the seeds in his hand. "Couldn't let my wife get ahead of me." Then he did know after all?

"Next time you want to surprise me with a garden," he advised jokingly, "don't buy all your equipment at a competitive hardware store. They always love to remind me of the fact!" and he burst into a wise chuckle. Margot gasped. You just couldn't fool Tiller.

"And, hon—" he continued, "near that bird bath you're thinking about, let's have borders of—er—'hordeum jubatum.' Bungling words, aren't they? Means a kind of squirrel grass, Margot. Fanciful, what?" And curiously enough, Margot knew he was happy.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—One of the things Washington found in its Christmas stocking was that Pandora's box of politics, prohibition.

Yuletide events made it certain of a protracted return engagement in congress—just how protracted remains to be seen.

Nor was Senator Borah's snappy card of greeting to prohibition folks "from top to bottom" what started it all. Senator Harris of Georgia already had pried the lid of the box up a bit.

The Borah statement, coupled with that of Judge McCormick out in Los Angeles, just served to pull it off entirely.

Harris, dry of dries, grew actively curious before the holiday recess about what President Hoover's law enforcement commission had gleaned in eight months of executive session investigation of prohibition enforcement matters. He wanted a preliminary report, at least. He still wants it. Why?

A year ago Harris stirred things up in the senate with his proposal to give Secretary Mellon an unasked $50,000,000 for enforcement.

For More Money.

"Everyone knows that prohibition enforcement is a mere farce," the Georgian said when he introduced his amendment. "I am not criticising the men who are attempting to enforce prohibition because their difficulty lies in the fact that they have not sufficient funds.

"I will continue offering such amendments until we get a sufficient appropriation."

It seems possible Senator Harris thinks a preliminary report from the Wickersham commission would help toward that end. So somewhere in the seventy-first congress appropriation program his $50,000,000 project may bob up again.

Just before Harris put in his amendment, former Senator Bruce of Maryland, more ardently wet if possible than Harris is dry, got senate approval for a prohibition enforcement appropriation of $370,000,000.

That was just a gesture, based on a haphazard estimate by Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

It went out, as expected, in conference. But the Harris proposition meant real money. That's what he will be after if he knows it.

Incidentally, the late Senator Warren, veteran chairman of the appropriations committee, said on the senate floor more than a year ago that bone dry enforcement would cost at least $50,000,000.

Keeping Quiet.

When you stop to think of it, the Wickersham commission has had remarkable success in keeping its doings quiet.

It has been working eight months and the Bystander recalls only two sort of personal glimpses. One was the Wickersham letter of last July, in re federal and state cooperation toward prohibition enforcement under laws "modified to be reasonable, enforceable."

The other was Judge McCormick's remarks about "government lawlessness" in search proceedings.

If there ever was a Washington counterpart for that record of non-publicity on the part of a government agency of any kind, the Bystander never heard of it. And those were just personal views.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fishing and Hunting Licenses Prohibitive For Poor Man

Mr. Editor: I have recently read that two persons have obtained fishing licenses under the new law but there are a number of old fishermen in this vicinity who thought that $2.25 was enough and when the town clerk said $1.10 more they said, "Nothing doing, we won't pay it. We will take a chance as the Black Duck did."

I should like to call the attention to this one man law up in Hartford. I mean the man that goes before the fish and game committee. A resident of the state of Maine can get a license to fish for 50 cents and in New York state in some counties for $1.25 to hunt and the laws hold good till they are changed. I will admit that these high prices help to pay the salaries and expenses to pass these laws, but the state claims to own all the game and fish today. The farmer owns the land and feeds them but has got no right to them, only when the law is off. With the present law in force the man that works and has only Saturday afternoons to hunt has only four half days providing it doesn't rain. He pays $3.35, if it rains he is out of luck. Now then if the man fishes, hunts and sets traps he has to pay $5.70 and no place to go. Some joke on the sportsmen of this state who have been spending their good money for a little sport and the 5,000 pheasants that we imported from England last year they must have flopped their wings and flown back to England.

YOUR HEALTH

Sleep the Restorer.

By Ralph M. Filson, M. D., Hartford, Conn.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In the present day we have a tendency to "Burn the candle at both ends." We are too likely to forget that these bodies of ours have their limitations. We try to keep them running at top speed for as much as eighteen out of every twenty-four hours, and expect that under such treatment they will not weaken. The human body in health is a wonderful example of an extremely intricate machine with all parts perfectly coordinated and having within itself means for keeping the machine in operation as well as for repairing and replacing parts which are subject to the wear and tear of usage. But these means are not without limit. They can meet reasonable demands and in times of emergency unusual demands, but they cannot be responsible for the upkeep of parts which are seldom, if ever, at rest.

Sleep of good restful quality and sufficient quantity is essential for the proper upbuilding of our bodies, and for the rest and repair of those parts which are taxed by the day's work. If our bodies and minds are not given periods of absolute rest of the kind which comes only with sleep, they cannot stand the strain of modern life; they wear out and fall prey to disease. Sleep is necessary to health and it must be taken regularly and in sufficient amounts if our health is not to suffer.

There is an increasing tendency to use the hours away from work for an endless round of social activities with no regard to the rest requirements of our bodies. This is to be regretted and those who go the pace cannot help but break down eventually. If we are to make the most of our lives and enjoy the great blessings of health, there should be a fair division of each day between work, recreation and rest. Rest is not mentioned last because it is regarded as least important, but rather because it is most effective if it follows a well regulated share of the other two. Bodies which have earned repose by doing some useful work, and minds stimulated and freshened by meetings in various social ways with our friends, are better conditioned for the relaxation which comes with sleep, the great restorer.

The machine which is not kept running or working constantly, but is given regular intervals of rest when it is cleaned, oiled, and tuned up will not so soon require the services of the repair man or the purchase of new parts. So with the human machine. If it is allowed regular periods of rest it will take care of its own cleaning and oiling, and will not so likely need the services of the repair man in the person of the doctor or the surgeon, except for an annual test to prove that all is in good working order.

CHILD TRAINING

Appreciate Their Obedience

Mary S. Stover

Miss Ballard is a grade school teacher of some year's experience. A fairly wide acquaintance with boys and girls made her soon rate very highly the young niece and nephew whose home she was visiting for the first times since they were babies.

Elma and Raymond were not only bright, sturdy and good-looking, but so well-mannered and obliging that Miss Ballard felt her sister should be a very happy mother. On the contrary, Louise was a worried, fretful, nagging parent. The sharpness with which she called the children from their play caused the listening auntie to wonder if their good behavior might be just a cloak which they put on in her honor.

Both the children came in as promptly as little folks can be expected to tear themselves away from an engrossing game, but the frowning mother scolded instead of praised. Day after day this sharpness was so common that Miss Ballard finally put a half-teasing, older-sisterly question. "Don't you demand rather too much, Louise? See how respectful and obedient your youngsters are compared with all their playmates."

"Disobedience among the neighbors' children is my reason for holding Elma and Ray to strict account," explained their mother, soberly. "Most of the parents in this part of town are so easy-going that I feel called upon to take a very firm stand. If my children should once get to acting like the rest, there's no telling where it would end."

"I understand your reasoning, but let's study the question more. Whoever distrusts children tempts them to 'go lengths', as the old saying is, whenever a chance comes. Your kiddies are too loving and fine to rebel but over-strictness with them may endanger the sweet comradeship that means so much in family life. All children have a strong sense of justice, and they must know themselves to be far more obedient than the rest. Doubtless they ought to be; but why not praise them for minding so well?

"Frances Willard's mother was noted for her habit of encouraging each child, yet when asked how she would do differently if living her life over again, she said: 'I should blame less and praise more.'

"Another counsel from long experience has impressed me so much that you can take this sermonizing for an attempt to share advice of which I myself was greatly in need! Louise, I was just overwhelmed with shame when a favorite summer school instructor urged us, teachers, to feel more appreciation for what he called juvenile docility. This man pictured himself as watching any school ground when the last bell rang and the children, as he said, 'left the games they loved more than they loved to eat' for studies of little natural interest to them.

"Of course boys and girls should answer the school bell promptly; it is right to expect as willing response to every summons from the home doorway. Yet it often takes much self-control and good nature for them to drop what seems so important to them. Children are not unlike us. To understand their dismay we need to recall some time when we've been called away from a good visit or from a piece of work we were in a hurry to finish. I've found the memory of such times a very present help to patience with children who lagged a little; it makes me feel that those who come on time deserve a word of praise."

The young mother had stopped sewing. "I've had hundreds of such interruptions," she said, "yet have never considered how trying they might be for children. Being at the door has often served for an excuse to make Ray do some errand at that instant, whether urgent or not. Thank you, Sister."

Mrs. M. Lexferty Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples.

"My trouble began on my face and took the form of small, hard pimples. A few of them spread to my neck. They itched causing me to scratch, and my face was disfigured by them. My trouble lasted one year.

"I tried other remedies but they were not a success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and within two days the pimples began to vanish. COUNTY FARM BUREAU INCREASES MEMBERSHIP BY OVER 50 PERCENT

A two-day intensive drive for membership by the New London County Farm bureau, which formally closed Wednesday, but has a little follow-up work yet to be done in it, has resulted in being the most successful membership drive the farm bureau has ever held. The total number of members secured is approximately 800, which is better than a 50 per cent increase over last year.

The work was pushed along under President W. W. Service as general chairman, with the county divided into three districts under special chairmen and the office force of the bureau co-operating, these being Walter T. Clark, county agent, Miss Ruth T. Russell, home demonstration agent, Randolph W. Whaples, county club agent, and Miss E. Elisabeth Grover, assistant county club agent.

The town of Lebanon, which was in the first section, of which Elisha Waterman of that town was chairman, made the top score in the membership list, having 60, which is two and a half times what the town had last year. The other towns in this section were Colchester, Franklin, Sprague, Lisbon and Norwich.

The second section covered the southwesterly part of the county and had for its chairman H. R. Whitman of Waterford. Besides the town where the chairman lives, the district included Lyme, Old Lyme and East Lyme, Groton, Salem and Montville.

The third district was in the easterly part of the county with Mrs. Sidney Hall of Preston Plains as chairman. This district included Preston, Griswold, Voluntown, Ledyard, Stonington and North Stonington.

Every town had its workers and that their efforts were successful is indicated by the outcome of the drive.

CONTINUING SERIES IN PENTECOSTAL ANNIVERSARY

"I think it is tragic that we have but one or two evening services a week," said Rev. Percy Kilmister, pastor of the First Baptist church, who gave the sermon at the fourth of the series of union prayer Pentecostal services Wednesday evening at the United Congregational church. "It would be wonderful were we to have a great evening service with all churches uniting, bringing out the sense of unity and spirit," he continued on his subject, The Spirit and the Church. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, the pastor.

The speaker said that a new spirit of unity was brought to the church in the Pentecostal period, the 1900th anniversary of which is now being celebrated throughout the churches in the world. The unity of churches is talked of a great deal at the present time and we ought to thank God for the things that have been done by this, in bringing people together, he said. Personally in favor of the matter, he stated that it will be a long, long time before we can get together simply because we Protestant people are queer, we have our own tastes. It is not going to be an easy matter.

The preacher told of a person who was not connected with any church and went to the church that appeared to have the nicest programme at the service. He said the fellow who doesn't tie up definitely in one church is not worth his salt to anyone. He spoke of the little churches in the small rural districts that paid their pastors a mere pittance and went on to tell of the difficult problem it was even to get the Baptists together of the same fold.

In closing the preacher said that we must rediscover the real spirit of unity that existed at the time of Pentecost and he spoke of the spirit that brought to the church in those days the divine abiding presence. He said that those people believed that with the Spirit of God they could do all things. Can we believe in our hearts that we also have with us the abiding presence?

The services will be continued this (Thursday) evening at the First Baptist church when the preacher will be Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, who will have for his topic, The Meaning of Pentecost. The final service in the services will be held Friday evening at the Central Baptist church. The speaker for that evening will be Dr. Clarence M. Gallup of Providence, formerly of Norwich.

CAUGHT IN CANADA FOR WILLIMANTIC POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8.—Ernest Roberge, 36, married, was returned here tonight in the custody of County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler and Police Officer Arthur M. Hurley from East Angus, Canada, to face charges of issuing fraudulent checks which victimized Willimantic and Norwich people.

Since the disappearance of Roberge, in November, the police of this city and Norwich had gained knowledge of at least five checks aggregating over $500 which were fraudulently issued by Roberge. The accused conducted a meat market in the Oden block on Jackson street for some time. The market was cleaned out over night of its stock and Roberge was among the missing the following morning. Acting upon complaints received here and in Norwich the police sought to locate the man and learned that his wife and five children had gone to Canada, presumably to join him. He was arrested at East Angus while on the train which he had just boarded to escape the law. The local officers left here Monday morning, driving by automobile to Concord, N. H., and then taking a train to East Angus, which is halfway between Quebec and Sherbrooke. The arrest was made at noon Tuesday.

STATE COLONIAL DAMES TO SHOW GARVAN SILVER

Norwich members of the Connecticut Society of the Colonial Dames of America have been notified by the state president, Mrs. Charles M. Andrews, of New Haven, of a most interesting event this week.

The Yale Gallery of Fine Arts will place on exhibition Friday, January 10, at 4.15 p. m., one of the most remarkable and important collections of early American silver ever brought together. The entire collection is lent to the gallery by Francis P. Garvan, Yale, '97, and Mrs. Garvan, of New York, whose early American furniture has been one of the outstanding features of the newly opened museum. To mark the opening of the exhibition there will be a public lecture under the auspices of the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames by E. Alfred Jones, of London, outstanding authority on English and early American silver, who will speak in the Gallery of Fine Arts at 4.15 on "Early American Silver." The Colonial Dames have consented to share this lecture, which will be free, with the public.

The collection, which will be on exhibition Friday, more than doubles the number of pieces in the Garvan collection of silver which has been on exhibition since the opening of the gallery a year ago. The complete group is considered to be one of the great collections of its kind.

A number of pieces of "Blue and White" china, showing early views of the New Haven Green, Mount Vernon, the capitol and white house in Washington, the Erie canal, and various historical scenes, together with a collection of early American glass, all of which has been lent by Mr. and Mrs. Garvan, have been installed in the Yale gallery.

E. Alfred Jones, who will lecture Friday afternoon, will use slides drawn entirely from the Garvan collection at Yale. Mr. Jones has published many volumes on old silver including the catalog of the J. P. Morgan collection, the Rothschild collection, the silver belonging to the late emperor of Russia, and that at Windsor castle and Cambridge university. He is especially well known in this country for his volumes on "Old Silver in American Churches."

WHEELER IN DISAGREEMENT ON RENO DIVORCE RULING

Chief Justice George W. Wheeler disagreed with the opinion of his four associates in the case of the state against Alfred E. Cooke, Hartford insurance man whose Reno divorce has been held invalid by the supreme court of errors and will file a dissenting opinion, it was learned this week. It was expected that Chief Justice Wheeler's opinion would be filed in the near future. The majority opinion, written by Justice Frank D. Haines, upheld Judge Isaac Wolfe who found Cooke guilty of non-support in the Hartford county superior court.

The Hartford insurance accountant, by the supreme court's ruling, finds himself a married man in the eyes of the Connecticut law. In Nevada he is divorced. If he were to establish a residence in Nevada or another state that recognizes his Reno divorce he could marry again. But if he failed to pay his wife, Madeline Marie Cooke of Hartford, for the support of herself and their son, he could be brought back to Connecticut on a nonsupport charge. If he came to this state after marrying elsewhere he could be sent to state's prison as a bigamist.

NATIVE OF THIS CITY KILLED IN HARTFORD

Charles W. Van Pelt, 81, native of this city, was fatally injured Tuesday night at Hartford when struck by a sedan driven by George L. Simpson, 47, Hartford. Mr. Van Pelt was crossing Capitol avenue in returning to his home from a grocery store when he was struck. He died almost instantly.

He was born in Norwich, April 6, 1848, a son of the late Charles W. Van Pelt and Maryann Crosley Van Pelt. His father was one of the "forty-niners," who migrated west during the gold rush. Several years later he took his family to California and lived there for many years. Mr. Van Pelt had lived in Hartford for the last nine years and previous to that in Middletown.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Louise Hale Van Pelt, he leaves two cousins, James T. Stowe, city treasurer of Middletown, and Mrs. John Crosley of East Haven.

ADVISES ROTARIANS TO EXPECT GOOD BUSINESS

Richard P. Hendren of the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Relations, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Equipped with a quantity of statistics relative to the exports and imports of the United States and Europe, Mr. Hendren spoke at length on the topic of "Europe's Part in the Prosperity of America." The speaker was introduced to the large number present by Walter E. Turner, chairman of the program committee for January.

In speaking of the business conditions of America he said that the outlook for the coming year was good and that the country was basically sound and we must look to good business. The bureau of domestic and foreign relations has made an extensive survey of the situation and finds that there is no reason why business should not be good during 1930. Europe has taken on a constructive attitude which should open an even more extensive export field.

Business is never good everywhere, said Mr. Hendren, one section of the country may be feeling a business depression while in other parts business is booming. One country may have a business depression but never all countries at once, so Mr. Hendren advised manufacturers to look to the export field more than they have in the past as a protection against a depression. If you don't look into the export field, you are passing up a good bet, said the speaker. Information regarding the export trade, business conditions, credit ratings, agents, both foreign and domestic, and everything necessary to exporting can be supplied by simply applying to the bureau in this way no manufacturer need to go into the export business blind. He may know just where the markets for his product are the best, who to sell through and just how much credit to extend. The export business, said Mr. Hendren, in conclusion, may mean the difference between profit and loss.

The speaker was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and Dr. Campbell and Agnew were the song leaders. Among the musical features of the meeting were a solo by John Richardson, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and a quartet number by Eben Learned, Henry J. LaFontaine, Frank R. Murdy and John Richardson.

Joseph N. Weymouth, former president of the club, was a guest at the meeting and spoke briefly, expressing his pleasure at returning to his home club. President Murdy appointed the following committee for Ladies' night: Walter E. Turner, chairman, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Charles A. Saxton, F. Russell Smith, Flint Brayton, Christopher Gallup, Herbert Hitchon and Edward Van Tassell.

FIREMEN WERE CALLED TO RESCUE A CAT

Two members of Engine No. 2 and Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan went to No. 238 Central avenue about 6.20 o'clock Wednesday evening to perform a task that is not in their line. A cat that had climbed up into a pear tree in a yard there had to be removed by force as it would not heed the supplicant callings of interested persons.

A ladder that was taken along was placed against the tree, the cat was gently lifted from its perch, where it had remained for two days, it is said, and dropped into a blanket by many willing hands. Back upon terra firma the cat made a beeline for its home where it soon forgot its recent trouble over a pan of milk.

BOY SCOUT LEADERS PLAN OVERNIGHT HIKE

The last session of the Scoutleaders' training course will be held Saturday at Camp Wakenah where the scoutleaders of Norwich will be initiated into the mysteries of trailing, tracking, cooking, map making, kudzing, etc. According to the committee on arrangements composed of Scoutmasters Lloyd Rathbun, William Collins and Deputy Commissioner William Wyman, activities will start even before the men reach camp, for "somewhere" near the camp, a tracking trail will start for treasure, which of course will be somewhere in the camp.

Scoutmasters Walter Weidman, William Collins and Scout Executive Sellman will go to the camp in the morning and make preparations. The advance party plans to make a nature trail, build seven or eight model fires, and lay a tracking trail.

Scoutmasters and leaders plan to leave the city at 2 p. m. Upon arrival at camp via the trail, bunks for the night will be made up. Several methods of making blankets to keep master scout warm will be shown, and the committee intimates that the best bunk will receive an unusual prize, and that the worst bunk, well, the committee has asked that the details of what will happen to the worst bunk be kept secret.

The supper menu will consist of round steak, rolls, butter, apples and doughnuts. Scoutleaders will be asked to make special dishes such as a kabob, a steak broil on green sticks, a twist, a jam twist cake, an egg of chicken, a hunter's stew and other appetizing dishes.

After supper some of the men will go for a short stretch on the ice with skates, following which there will be a two hour campfire session around the fire place. This session will include songs, favorite campfire stunts and initiations, best stories to tell, sebuts, and refreshments. The men will turn in for an eight hour sleep and then up for the final two hour session of the course which will consist of cooking eggs and bacon and making griddle cakes. RICH-RUBIN BUILDING CANNOT REMAIN AS IT IS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—The city council held an adjourned meeting this evening and unanimously decided that it could not grant Rich & Rubin, manufacturers of beverages on Hamilton street, any permission to retain a building they have erected on that street which encroaches upon the highway some two feet. The matter was referred to the city manager and the director of law at the meeting Monday evening last, in response to an application from Messrs. Rich and Rubin for such relief as might legally and equitably be given. The report was in detail and gave the opinion of the director that the council was without any authority to give anyone permission to obstruct the highway, citing that the erection of the building in question was an obstruction of a permanent nature. Messrs. Rich and Rubin were given permission to erect a building but they extended its lines beyond the land they were the owners of. The report disclosed that the encroachment was of twenty-two inches. The director of law reported that the inspector of buildings was justified in ordering the removal of the brick building on the site, or so much of it as encroaches on the highway. In the evening that the structure is not removed the city may exercise its authority and remove it. Mr. Shea, owner of adjoining property, was stated to be opposed allowing the structure to remain as it is. The council gave the petitioner for relief permission to withdraw his application.

The police have not obtained any clues that might lead to the arrest of the person who gained entrance to the Thompson Motor company office, 289 Bank street, Monday night when $46 was stolen, undoubtedly by some one aware of the secret place of keeping the money and which is left nightly for the convenience of the clerk who opens the establishment for business. A young man formerly employed by the company and who, it is known, intended to leave the city, was arrested on suspicion of knowing something of the burglary, but when questioned at the detective bureau the suspected youth would not reveal anything that would incriminate him.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Those movie fans who went wild over Joan Crawford in "Our Dancing Daughters" and "Our Modern Maidens" have a brand new rave over her latest character and first all-talking role as "Bingo," the jungle-bred white girl in "Untamed," which opened to delighted audiences at the Broadway yesterday. This peppy little dynamo of constant action reaches the peak of her eventful career in this characterization of a fiery-tempered youngster, brought up by an indulgent father in the wilds of the Central American jungle. Ranging from grim drama to howling comedy, as the girl first loses her father through treachery, and then upsets the staid social circles with her mad abandon and reckless disregard of convention, the unusual story runs the gamut of emotion. Ernest Torrence, Robert Montgomery, Gwen Lee, Grace Cunard, Holmes Herbert, John Miljan, Gertrude Astor and a long cast lend their able support to the lovely Joan. The surrounding bill includes a screaming comedy "Dangerous Females," with Polly Moran and Marie Dressler, which is the comedy hit of the season, Burns and Allen in "Lambchops," Irene Franklin in a clever satire on days gone by, and Allen's Playlets, a distinct surprise in vitaphone presentations. The Fox movietone news is also shown. Tonight, Norwich will turn out en masse to find out who is to receive the handsome Grebe console radio to be presented some fortunate Broadway patron by the Hanover-Curland Co., in the most unique contest ever staged in this city.

Palace Theatre

Bill Small is known as the "Sap" to everybody in the little South Dakota town where he lives. All the time he is inventing, always on the edge of perfecting some marvelous idea yet never quite getting the thing finished. Here is one of the characters in the splendid comedy, "The Sap," which is now playing at the Palace theatre. Edward Everett Horton is the star of this piece. In fact he is "The Sap." Other members of the distinguished supporting cast are Alan Hale, Patsy Ruth Miller and Russell Simpson.

But there is another big feature on the Palace program too in addition to "The Sap" and shorter subjects. This is "The Careless Age," a modern romance starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young. Here is swift glamorous romance in which it is conclusively proven that youth is irrevocably attracted to youth, and that in old age there are no daisies to pick.

But to return to "The Sap." It is not until someone starts playing fast and loose with the funds of the local bank that the Sap gets his big chance to shine. He does some funny finagling himself, but all of a sudden disappears and it looks as if he has bolted with the cash. As a matter of fact he has done something which might not be considered strictly legal. The only difference here is that he gets away with it and when he comes back he's a hero. It is funny to see how nearly he came to being brought back in a Black Maria. Anyway, he becomes a bank president in the most amazing way you ever dreamed of, and of course from then on he is no longer "The Sap" but a big shot. It is all screamingly funny and very revealing of the way people act.

Starting Saturday, the Palace presents one of the superfine pictures of the year, bringing back Ronald Colman, the suave star of "Bulldog Drummond," in a new classic of the screen, "Condemned." Beautiful Ann Harding, former stage star, is featured with Colman in this mad romance of the terrible Devil's Island.

Breed Theatre

Lenore Ulric, the celebrated Belasco star who makes her talkie debut in "Frozen Justice," which opened yesterday at the Breed, scores an emphatic hit. What makes her triumph even more significant is the complex character that she portrays, that of a half caste Alaskan belle, an unfaithful wife, an exotic, voluptuous beauty with a tempestuous fire-and-ice nature, a role which most actresses would find it difficult to portray but which, for the Belasco star, proves a very natural and easy one.

As "Talu," "Little Star of the North," as she is dubbed by the cafe proprietor, Miss Ulric brings not only a wealth of dramatic talent to the screen but proves herself to possess a very charming singing voice. The audience vigorously applauded her song, "The Right Kind of Man," last night.

Louis Wolheim gives an excellent portrayal of a hard boiled bruiser with the proverbial heart of gold; and Ullrich Haupt is a villain par excellence.

The Nome sequences of "Frozen Justice" are studded with comedy and pathos and delightful "old time songs" which admirably sweep the action into a climax of great intensity. A host of celebrated players have "bit" parts here; they include El Brendel, Tom Patricola, the Meyers Sisters, Alice Lake, Gertrude Astor, Warren Hymer and George MacFarlane, the baritone.

Breed Theatre

"The Cock-Eyed World," the Fox all talking movietone special production which opens Saturday at the Breed theatre, where it will play all week, is one of the most amusing pictures ever.

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe play the leading leatherneck roles with lovely Lily Damita as the chief cause of their arguments.

In other words, Lowe is again 'Sergeant Quirt' of 'What Price Glory' fame, his third role of a sergeant and yet no hope of becoming a captain.

"The Cock-Eyed World" was written by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, who wrote "What Price Glory." Raoul Walsh directed and also wrote the scenario while Billy K. Wells, author of numerous vaudeville and musical comedy successes, wrote the dialog.

Victor McLaglen is again the arch enemy of Lowe in the story. The entire production was made via Fox Movietone and is an all talker, which means that the public will have a real treat in actually hearing the quarrels of "those two leathernecks," whereas in "What Price Glory" much was left to the imagination.

Lovely Lily Damita is the feminine lead in this picture which is slated to open at the Breed theatre Saturday. Leilia Karnelly, Jean Bary, El Brendel and Joe Brown are also prominently cast.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer is Late.

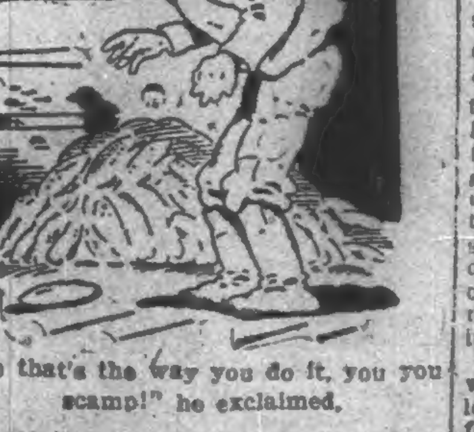
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The boastful are quite apt to find
A limber tongue doth dull the mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel was very much pleased with himself. He had outwitted Farmer Brown's Boy—not once or twice—but several times. He was having a lot of fun.

"Farmer Brown's Boy may be smart, but I am smarter," boasted Chatterer to himself. "I wonder why he should have thought he could catch me in that trap. He knows well enough that I know all about traps of that kind. I suppose he thought I would have forgotten. If he thinks he can keep me out of that corncrib he is mistaken—greatly mistaken."

Of course, Farmer Brown's Boy soon discovered that he couldn't catch Chatterer. So then he decided to try another plan. He would find out how Chatterer got into that corncrib and then stop him. So he began getting up a little earlier in the morning in order to watch, but for several days he didn't get up early enough. Then came a morning when Chatterer overslept. Usually he was over at the corncrib at the very beginning of daylight. Usually the Black Shadows had not yet wholly disappeared when Chatterer started for that corncrib. This morning it was broad daylight.



"So that's the way you do it, you scamp!" he exclaimed.

"I don't know whether to go over there or not," thought Chatterer. "Of course, I don't have to. I've got plenty to eat. I suppose it wouldn't do me any harm to keep away from there for one day."

He had just about made up his mind that this is what he would do, but foolishly ran over to Farm Brown's dooryard. No one was up in Farmer Brown's house. At least, that is what Chatterer thought. He looked over at the clothespost, from which a clothesline led over to a corner of the corncrib. That was his bridge, you know. It was by means of this clothesline that he reached the corncrib. He just couldn't resist the temptation. He darted across the yard, climbed the clothespost and scampered along the clothesline over to the corncrib.

Now, it so happened that Farmer Brown's Boy was getting up a little extra early that morning. He looked out of the window just as Chatterer was half way across the clothesline. He saw Chatterer and instantly he understood how it was that Chatterer could get into the corncrib. He chuckled aloud.

"So that's the way you do it, you scamp!" he exclaimed. "I guess you deserve all the corn you've had. It certainly was stupid of me not to think of that clothesline. Here I've looked at it every day and never once thought that you might be using it for a bridge. Well, you'd better make the most of today, for tomorrow morning there'll be no bridge there. I certainly am glad to have solved the mystery of how you were getting into that corncrib. Like most mysteries, it is no mystery at all now that I understand it."

Meanwhile Chatterer was busily at work inside the corncrib, without the least suspicion that his secret had been found out. So when later Farmer Brown's Boy came to get the corn to feed the hens, Chatterer watched him from a hiding place and his eyes snapped and he was filled with satisfaction because he was so smart and was fooling Farmer Brown's Boy. He didn't even wonder what it was that Farmer Brown's Boy was chuckling about.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

Rev. D. Lee, Portsmouth, N. H., says, "Come or write to 101 Crescent Way and I will tell you how in a short time the bladder irritation was relieved by Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Lee and Osgood Co.

While proceeding down the Watch Hill road at Thompson's corners the operator looked up East avenue, he said, and lost control of the automobile, which went down a four-foot embankment, crossed an open lot and came to a stop in a brook trench. At my call, the organizations have furnished refreshments and entertainment on such occasions as Church Night, Christmas season, Watch Night service and annual meeting—A most encouraging feature of our work is the increased activity of our young people in the work of the church—The Christian Americanization work carried on by Miss Beebe, Mrs. Packer, Mrs. Richmond and John Paton is showing most encouraging results. The financial situation of the church is also a cause for gratitude—The pastor has made 245 calls during the year, 108 of these being sick calls. Besides this he has kept in touch with sick members by telephone when it was inadvisable to make a personal call. We have tried to look after those in need. Some needed spiritual comfort, some needed mental help and some material aid. A number of families have been helped along material lines. We received nine new members last year, five by baptism. This year is the 1900th anniversary of Pentecost, the birth of the Christian church, when 3,000 were converted in a single day. The pastor is anxious to render the largest possible service to the community through the church. To this end he requests the fullest cooperation on the part of the members of the church—He expects the members to call upon him to perform the ministries of the church upon the various occasions when the church is needed in the family and the home." NOANK

KINDNESS TO A SKUNK IS ALWAYS THE BEST POLICY

Amos Strongheart, in his auto was coming from a dance in Plainfield recently and had a load of jazz steps aboard. So driving into the village at an early hour in the morning, he got on Terrance street. In the middle of the road was an animal the color of a cat but large, sitting there as if he was doing traffic duty. Driver Strongheart said, "What is that?" The closer they got William Crowell said, "That is a skunk and we can't get by! If we do our ash car will have to be buried." So the dancers were stuck.

The skunk would not leave the road. He sure was a monster. He was worth plenty for he would make a good neckpiece for some lady. None of the men would get out and kill the mean skunk that was making them lose their sleep. It was 3:30 by the hands on the watch of Flash McDonald. Some of the party were fishermen and had to leave the dock in another hour. By the looks they were going to be left at home until another day.

One fellow claimed he understood the skunk ways; he was Arthur Scott. Getting out of the car, he whistled to the pretty black kitten; but with its eyes toward West View it would not move. So he gave a little talk to Mr. Skunk but it was not the right kind of language. The animal of the unknown woods still sat doing duty like a city cop. For about 20 minutes Scott went through his signs and stunts to get that pet off the road. He knew if the skunk got scared, a new tailor-made suit would have to be on the list. He tried a piece of candy for bait, but it was no use. A skunk likes a cracker, but there was none among them.

Then, by luck, an auto showing new 1930 numbers, from a southern town, had to stop on account of the mean animal which would not let it go by. The members in the southern car had a cracker; so Skunk Tamer Scott got a piece of string with the cracker on the end and threw it at the black skunk. As the pet moved toward it another would pull. For a while the skunk would go a little way but caught onto the joke and gave the tamer the laugh he gave his playmates in the family of the woods. The party in back of them had got lost—was on their way to Massachusetts. Got off the road, being strangers to this part of North America.

Trainer Scott was doing his best to get rid of the silent policeman. He had to go home and change his clothes and beat it to a farmer several miles outside of the village and get the cows ready for the people's milk for their morning coffee. At last Scott gave up the job of removing the animal, so a southern maid from the warm states went right up to the pretty skunk and with a sweet voice that would win a sheik a home for life, said, "Well, Mr. Animal, would you please move and let us go by, for we got to go a long ways and are over three hours late now! And these poor working men have got to go out to make a dollar and you know work is not very plentiful in the United States and many men are on their last pair of shoes! Do you know we could kill you?" Then the pet's ears went up straight like a West Point soldier's shoulders would on the drill field. "We could sell your skin—it would look pretty on a girl's neck in the fall! But we have a heart, where you have none! Take pity on us and run to the woods or your hut!" Mr. Skunk got ready and with head hanging low, as though ashamed of himself, he walked off the road, and stayed in the gutter. The southern maid thanked him for the kind deed he had done so they could go on their way.

Flash McDonald told them the route to the Bay State and out of sight they went. It was 20 minutes of 5, before the car of Strongheart was put up in the garage; he was held up for an hour and ten minutes. The fishermen hurried to the dock on Riverside avenue as the lines on the boats were being made ready to cast on board. The captains were all smiles to see them, for it is a bad thing to go fishing alone and if anything happens to the skippers there is no one to help out. The captains wanted to know why their mates were late and the story of the skunk as a silent cop was told.

The men sure had a good laugh on their way out to the fishing ground to think an animal could use them so mean after a real evening in the mill town of Plainfield. Everyone had a good time where the music wouldn't let their feet kep still. Driver Strongheart said he has been behind a wheel for a long while, but never has been held up by a skunk before, one so headstrong he would not let them go by.

"The dance jumpers lost plenty of sleep, but the next night they all were under the blankets before the sun kissed the hills of Waterford good night. The dancers were not mad at the skunk for he sure made a lot of fun, seeing Arthur Scott trying to get the pet off the road. The skunk had the number of Mr. Scott, and his line of talk did not bother the animal a bit. Anyway, the car was saved, also everybody was happy. The story of the skunk was told to everybody.

It proved a good joke on Strongheart and his jazz hounds but they took it with a smile, saying "always be kind to a skunk and he will not hurt anyone."

PAUSE IN STOCK MARKET REGARDED AS LULL PRECEDING A VIOLENT AWAKENING

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Paralysis penetrated further in the stock market today. The day's trades aggregated only 1,638,330 shares, the smallest full session's business since August 13, 1928. The ticker tape stood still for minutes at a time.

Rarely has there been such a divergence of speculative opinion as there is in Wall street at present, and pending visible signs of a definite market trend, most traders prefer to express opinions rather than act on them. Experimental efforts on the part of both speculators for the rise and for the fall have gone unrewarded by definite results.

Some observers liken the present pause to the lull that precedes a storm, and predict that the market will soon have a violent awakening. Others, however, believe that business and industrial conditions will improve but gradually during the next two months, and that indecisive results of the current quarter will dampen speculative enthusiasm on either side of the market.

The day's news was mixed. Freight car loadings for Christmas week were reported as falling off sharply from the previous week, but showing only moderate declines from the corresponding weeks of 1926 and 1927. The weekly steel trade reviews pointed to the upturn in production that has appeared after two months of sharp curtailment, but Iron Age stated that further improvement is expected to be gradual.

Higher dividend rates were announced for Columbian Carbon and the J. C. Penney Co., but Zenith Radio omitted the payment due at this time, attesting the highly competitive conditions and unsatisfactory profits in the radio manufacturing industry.

Credit conditions remained easy. Call money again renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and dropped to 4, although the surplus of funds offered was not so large as yesterday. Time money was a little easier, with the longer maturities quoted at 4 3-4 per cent flat, against 4 3-4 to 5 yesterday. Foreign exchange rates continued to sag, and further talk of a reduction of the Bank of England rate was heard.

As an indication of the low ebb of speculatice activity, only a little more than 600 issues were traded on the stock exchange, approximately half of the issues listed. Price changes were narrow and indecisive.

Rails came into favor late in the session. Chesapeake and Ohio, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, Chicago Great Western preferred, Nickel Plate, and St. Louis Southwestern rose 2 to 4 points. Other shares closing higher included General Electric, General Refractories, Canada Dry, Indian Refining, and Western Union, up about 2 to 5 points. Some of the utilities were well bought. Pacific Lighting rose 3 points, and United Corp., was actively traded, closing fractionally higher.

Pools were said to be conducting experimental activities in a few of the lower priced issues. International Nickel and U. S. Pipe and Foundry were bid up about 2 points in large turnovers.

U. S. Steel closed a point lower, and shares losing 2 to 5 points included Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Auburn Auto, Bordens, International Business Machine, Lambert, Union Pacific, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Radio Keith, a strong spot yesterday, sagged a point.

Commodities were generally firmer. Wheat sold up nearly a cent on unfavorable weather reports from the southwest, and corn gained fractionally, reflecting bad weather in Illinois. The cotton market was extremely dull, but closed firm, reflecting a better tone in the Liverpool market. Coffee futures rallied a little, and refined sugar was advanced 1-10 cent to 5-15 cents a pound for fine granulated.

In the foreign exchanges, attention was focused on the Spanish peseta, which dropped about 1-2 cent to 12.50 cents, the lowest in several years. The decline was attributed to the political situation in Spain.

Sterling dropped about 1-4 cent to slightly under par, reflecting the prospect of a lower Bank of England rate. Cables were quoted at $4.87.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Trading in today's curb market was a drab affair with price changes irregular, and generally unimportant, and the volume of business around the smallest of any full session for about two years.

Penn-Ohio Edison and Southeastern Power issues showed moderate gains on buying influenced by the announcement of their merger with Commonwealth & Southern, but Allied Power & Light common reacted slightly. Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share and Niagara & Hudson Power showed only narrow fractional changes.

Blue Ridge and Shenandoah issues made only a slight response to the announcement of the retirement of additional preferred stock. Insull Utilities Investors fell back 1 3-4 points while Lehman Corporation and Goldman Sachs showed large fractional gains.

Except for a drop of 2 3-4 points in Illinois Pipe Line, there were no changes of importance in the petroleum group. The sharp increase in crude oil production last week was attributed largely to the temporary opening of Oklahoma wells for proration purposes. The natural gas issues were heavy.

Franklin Manufacturing broke 2 1-4 points to a new record low at 14 3-4 in further reflection of the omission of the quarterly dividend, but made up all of its loss before the close. Stutz and the Ford issues declined fractionally and Cord showed a slight gain.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—With premiums being asked on United States wheat ready for export, the shoe was on the other foot today regarding theoretical competition from Russia. Furthermore, instead of breadstuffs coming out of Russia to seek a market, that country was reported today as inquiring abroad for flour and also for wheat to seed. Under such circumstances, quotations on wheat future deliveries advanced readily in Chicago today with considerable buying due to sleet storms in Kansas and Missouri.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-4 a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4 to 5-8 advanced, oats 1-8 to 1-4 at 3-8 up.

Helping to restore prestige today to the buying side of the wheat market here were upturns in Liverpool quotations, together with general agreement of advices from all sources that Russia has little wheat to sell this season.

The gist of current information was that recent Russian sales of wheat to other countries were of scattered parcels which would be greatly inconvenient to move to the interior of Russia from Black Sea ports, and thus had to be disposed of by export. It was predicted in some quarters that Russia's total exports of wheat this year will not amount to more than 10,000 tons.

In sharp contrast with apparent dwindling away of the spectre of possible large Russian exports of wheat, late advices at hand here today told of Portugal seeking to purchase 47,000 tons of wheat, about 1,500,000 bushels. Meanwhile, Omaha prices today for No. 1 domestic hard winter wheat were declared to be on an export basis. In addition, all offers of No. 2 hard for export at the Gulf of Mexico were said to have been cleared up, unless a premium was paid of 1 cent a bushel over the price of May delivery. Actual new export business in North American wheat today was estimated at 600,000 bushels with numerous inquiries from overseas at figures near to a working arrangement.

Better shipping demand here for corn did a good deal to lift the corn market. Besides rural offerings of corn to arrive were scant, owing partly to adverse weather. Oats sympathised with upturns in wheat and corn.

Active buying for commission houses carried provisions higher. Reasons included an advance in hog values and also noted improvement of consumer demand both for lard and meats.

iers of the North marched forth to ubdue the rebellion.

Judge Read, anxious to afford any leasure possible for his aged relaive, told of putting in a modern radio. He tells that love in any of its disuises was almost abhorrent to his unt and that one day when she heard or the first time, over the radio, the ong, "A Precious Little Thing Called ove," she was in a mood to do violence to the machine. Remarking that here was nothing "precious" about it o her, she promptly shut off the set and would have nothing more to do vith it for hours. Judge Read expects o visit Jewett City again this sumner. He intends to have the old inn in Hancock open during the coming season, that tourists and friends may enefit by its ancient displays. On his isit here in the future, local people will meet and know with new interest he man who has regarded the eccenricities of a frail little woman, and he whim of her father, as a sacred rust for more than a generation.

The Woman's Mission circle of the Baptist church met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Gilbert. Sixteen were present. "The Challenge of the New Year" was the subject of the program prepared by Mrs. E. M. Gray. The "long arms of the church," which are city missions and Christian centers, are the answer to the "Challenge of the Cities." Mrs. G. H. Prior and Mrs. R. A. Wilbur told of phases of these departments. "The Challenge of the Lonely Places" is met by the colporter with his Bibles and ready sympathy, as he carries the message into places where even the missionaries sometimes have never been, by the Chapel car missionary and his wife, who carry the gospel to isolated communities via the railroads, and now the Chapel car auto which can go where railroads do not run. Mrs. Lewis Hewitt, Mrs. Francis Campbell, Mrs. Nathan Babcock and Mrs. S. F. Brown gave interesting events in the daily work of these evangelists.

"The Challenge of the Sick and Suffering" is answered by medical missionaries and nurses, who minister to their needs. Their constant cry is for more and better hospitals. Mrs. John McLean took the part of Dr. Mary Batcheler, a medical missionary to Bengal-Orissa, and Mrs. John Barry of Miss Esther Hockanson, a teacher-nurse at Ningpo hospital, China. "The Challenge of the Little Children" is met by Baptist kindergartens and nurseries. The workers among the children in the community centers in large cities find that "the most fertile place to plant a seed thought is in the heart of a child." Miss Belle Guy and Mrs. E. E. Gilbert read stories of workers and children.

"The Challenge of the Unredeemed" calls for the light in dark places and was beautifully expressed in the poem "Bring Us the Light" by Oxenham, read by Mrs. E. E. Scates, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Hewlitt and Miss Frances Bugbee assisted Mrs. Gilbert in serving refreshments.

DEER WEIGHING 285 LBS. KILLS HIMSELF AGAINST CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 8.—Representative Lionel E. Boucher and Miss Anna Russenas, having made a visit in Norwich Tuesday evening, were driving home in Mr. Boucher's big Nash sedan. As the machine swung through the long Round Hill curve, and as the roadside shrubbery came into the field of the headlights, a great deer was seen nibbling from the tops of the small bushes that grow along beside the wall. The emergency brakes were jammed on in a twinkling, but the animal made a great bound out into the road and in spite of a sharp twist of the wheel the heavy machine caught the big buck fairly amidships. The car was thrown to the right, off the shoulder of the highway, and stopped. Mr. Boucher, seeing that the deer was hard hit, grabbed a service hammer and jumped out, intending to put the unfortunate animal out of its misery. No such action was necessary, as with a great bound, death was immediate. With the aid of Miss Russenas, who doesn't balk at lifting a pound or even more, if occasion requires it, the animal was slung over the hood and tied fast to the mud guards. Wednesday morning the quarry was taken to the home of Game Warden Charles B. Palmer, who told the representative that it was his, and gave him instructions to dispose of it as he saw fit, but according to the statutes made and provided in such cases.

When the animal was skinned by a local taxidermist, it was found that its back was broken. A four-prong, 225-pound buck, and an exceptionally handsome specimen, the assemblyman intends to have his first game mounted as evidence that, this time, he got what he didn't go after.

FIRST MOLE OF NEW YEAR IS KILLED AT THE PARK

William (Terry) McGovern, foreman at Warden E. J. Jodoin's market, has evidence to prove that spring is in the offing. Wednesday forenoon, while driving by David Hale Fanning park, he noticed a peculiar-looking animal running along the walk and dodging under the nearby blue spruces. Terry jumped out and, being a fearless fellow, as his name implies, all barehanded he sprang upon his prey and captured it. It proved to be an adult star-nosed mole and in its appearance, running about in mid-winter, any local ground hog yarns are relegated to the discard. Last summer the park custodian was caused some considerable extra work about the lawn because of the ravages of tunneling moles. It is believed that under the influence of the warm sun of the last few days, Mr. Mole awakened and came out to see what it was all about, and to learn why his alarm clock had gone off three months ahead of time.

And then, along came Terry!—

Mrs. Ann E. Prior is confined to her bed at present, on account of the infirmities of age. Mrs. Prior is 89.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The General Electric company reported today that during 1929 orders received by it amounted to $445,802,319, an increase of 28 per cent over the orders for 1928, which amounted to $348,548,512.

J. O. Eaton, of Otis & Co., Cleveland and New York bankers, and chairman of the Eaton Axle & Spring Co., has been elected a director of the Cleveland Tractor Co.

Earnings of the Monroe Chemical Co., for 1929, including the Mary S. Goldman Co., acquired last August, are estimated by E. N. Monroe, president, to be in excess of $400,000, which would be equal to more than $2.30 a share on 126,000 shares of common stock.

Application to list additional common stock of the Borden company on the New York stock exchange revealed the fact that the company had acquired the Mitchell Dairy Co., of Bridgeport, Conn., and the Hall Ice Cream Co. of Glens Falls, N. Y.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Bond prices rose on easing money tendencies today. The advance, added to the improvement registered earlier in the week, carried securities of the highest grade close to their 1929 highs. Sales were the largest since before Christmas.

Rails led the advance, closely followed by the utility liens. United States governments were inclined to lag, with the bulk of the trading in Fourth Liberties and Treasury 4 1-4s, both of which made slender advances.

Dealers reported a livelier demand from small investors for bonds of the best ratings, and a fairly good proportion of the day's business came from this source. Interest charges on longer time loan maturities declined to 4 3-4 flat against recent quotations of 4 3-4 to 5, but inquiry was light. Call money repeated its Tuesday performance by renewing at 4 1-2 per cent and then dropping to 4. In the outside market a 3 1-2 per cent rate appeared.

Demand for the rails centered in the legal group, but was also felt among the secondary issues. Some of the stronger obligations were Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s gold 4s and Southwestern Division 5s, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul General 4 1-2s, Erie Refunding 5s, Soo Line 6s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Northern Pacific 6s, Union Pacific 5s and First 4s and the extensive listings of New York Central, Pennsylvania and New Haven.

Trading in the utilities was of average proportions. The firmer issues included Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, May, Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, Detroit Edison 5s, Laclede Gas 5s and New York Telephone General 4 1-2s. Industrials were dull. A rise of 1 1-4 in Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s provided one of the few features in this group. Shell Pipe Line 5s and Shell Union 5s made fractional improvement on fair buying.

The convertibles made a poor showing. More than half of the day's turnover in American Telephone 4 1-2s appeared in the first half hour and after an extremely narrow price movement the debentures were unchanged at the close. An unusual occurrence among the share feature bonds was the record of only one sale in International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s, involving a $1,000 bond. A few months ago this issue was trading to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars daily.

Foreign obligations were again stronger and moderately active. German 7s held firm on a substantial turnover. Brisbane City 5s advanced nearly 4 points, while numerous South American loans rose a point or more.

New bond offerings scheduled for tomorrow include a $7,500,000 issue of Butler Brothers serial debenture 5s, maturing from Feb. 1, 1932 to 1945, priced to yield 5.30 to 5.75 per cent.

POETRY

Riding In The Rumble

Riding in the rumble with
  The girl you love beside you;
Cupid flying close behind,
  And Fortune's wheel to guide you!
Where is Happiness so fleet—
  One joy that can outride you,
Riding in the rumble in the rain!

Her hand in yours is just as soft
  And fragrant as a flower.
You feel you are the ruler of
  Your world for just an hour.
The barbs of Fate have lost their sting.
  The weather has no power!
Riding in the rumble in the rain!

You do not feel the rain at all!
  Is that the wind complaining?
You sigh—the journey's ended now;
  The time for love is waning.
You help her out with such surprise!
  "Why, darling, it is raining!"
Riding in the rumble in the rain.

—Anne Campbell, in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Wintry Wood

I walked in wintry woods
One mild December day
When ember silence on the forest lay,
I trod its drowsy depths
As length'ning shadows fell;
Ground-pine and princess-feather
Lined the winding way;
There was no voice of bird,
No cricket chirping in the dell;
A hallowed hush hung o'er the wood
And tinged my spirit with its mystic spell;
The hemlocks bowed their crested heads
Above the leafy nooks where snow-birds
    play;
And pines, low-whispering,
Played with muted strings
Their solemn, old-world lay,
Then, as I topped the hill
The forest broke away;
Gleaming shone out the sun,
A hint of summer in its rays,
And lighting my twilight road
Drew heavenward my raptured gaze.

The Pennsylvania railroad went to work and restored Frank Sibert's $60 Christmas purse to him, though it had to have the Altoona (Pa.) yards searched and a coal car emptied to do it. Siebert, an employe of a coal company, received the purse as a Christmas gift from his wife. While helping to load a car of coal the purse dropped from his pocket into the car and was buried under coal. Before Siebert could do anything about it the car left Portage, Pa., for Altoona.

"COMING EVENTS
cast their shadows before"
(Thomas Campbell, 1777-1844)
LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES
"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Why let over-indulgence ruin the flattering curves that make the modern figure so seductive? Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the irresistible youthfulness of the modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BUT-BUT-I JUST CAN'T GET THE ANSWERS—GUESS I'M JUST DUMB—

SHIRES EXONERATED OF CHARGES OF "FIXED BOUT" BY ILLINOIS BODY

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Charles Arthur Shires, the great man, won another battle today—one of complete vindication.

The Illinois state athletic commission completely exonerated the babbling baseball-pugilist of charges of engaging in a "fixed" fight with Dangerous Dan Daly at the White City Arena Dec. 9, in which Shires knocked out his opponent in his first professional contest, in 21 seconds.

Daly, who claimed he took a "dive" for Shires, was suspended for life in Illinois, for making false affidavits to the commission in regard to his name, age, and various contests in which he appeared. The commissioners expressed the belief that Daly's statement to a Columbus, Ohio, newspaper, that he had been compelled to lay down to Shires, were as false as his statements to the Illinois commission, as to his name and age.

Daly, in his affidavit to the commission for a license to box, said his real name was Dan Daly, whereas, evidence produced at the hearing showed his name is James Gary and that he is only 19 years old, instead of 23, as he claimed.

General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the commission, in announcing the exoneration of Shires, and the suspension of Daly, declared the evidence presented had convinced the commissioners that the fight was an honest contest.

Other principals in the match also were absolved. They were James C. Mullen, the promoter; Eddie Meade of Cleveland, Daly's director of activities, and Nessie Blumenthal, Shires' manager. They all were declared innocent of any attempts to "fix" the fight.

The Great Shires, without a mark on his boyish face to show that he won a one round victory over Tony Faeth at St. Paul last night, broke into a long discourse upon why he happened to take up boxing. He was low financially and needed money he said.

Going through the usual formalities, General Clinnin asked Shires, as he stepped into the witness chair, his name.

"Arthur," was the answer in the respectful tone of a perfect witness.

"Just plain Arthur, or simple?" Gen. Clinnin asked.

Even the red-headed ballplayer broke into a smile as he hitched into a more comfortable position.

"Well, I guess I'm a little of both," he sheepishly answered.

Shires, in telling the commission of what he knew of the fight, declared with emphasis, that he never had taken part in anything dishonest in his life, never had asked for favors in any of his athletic endeavors, and that his knockout of Daly was absolutely on the level. He said he never had seen Daly until the afternoon of the fight, when they appeared at the commission offices for the weighing-in.

Blumenthal, Shires' manager, testified that in arranging for the match he had only asked Promoter Mullen to get an opponent with no more ring experience than Shires. He denied that any attempt had been made to intimidate Daly or that he had been asked to lay down.

Shires and his manager left tonight for Lansing, Mich., to appear before the Wolverine boxing commission tomorrow to clear themselves of charges that they attempted to frame a fight between Shires and a heavyweight named Battling Criss, at Detroit last week.

HARVARD NOT TO COMPETE IN BOXING THIS YEAR

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 8—(AP)—William J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, today said that the Crimson boxing team would not engage in any intercollegiate bouts during the coming season and that the ring sport would be confined to an intramural basis.

Bingham said that he had had no communication with G. V. V. Wolf, manager of the Yale boxing team regarding any bouts with a Harvard team.

SHARKEY AND SCOTT SIGN FOR MIAMI BOUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—The signatures of Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailorman, and Phil Scott, the tottering tower of London, were attached today by their managers to a contract calling for a 15-round bout in Miami, Florida, February 27.

Thus the ballyhoo for the second annual battle under the palms entered the second stage. After much dickering, searching for suitable opponents, speech-making by the principals, an agreement for Scott's services was reached last night between Madison Square Garden officials and the British heavyweight's representative, Jimmy Johnston. It was announced today that the gladiators will share fifty per cent of the net proceeds. Scott will receive but 20 per cent if the gate falls below $300,000.

The lanky Englishman, who won a disappointing victory over Otto Von Porat on a foul here several weeks ago, is resting in London. He will sail for New York on a fast boat January 14, leaving for Miami to start training shortly after his arrival here. Sharkey already has set up headquarters in the southern playground. The contracts signed today brought the heavyweight division a full step closer to a successor to Champion Gene Tunney, who retired from the ring in the summer of 1928. Both gladiators gave the garden an option on their services for the remainder of this year. The winner probably will be matched with Max Schmeling, the German Schlager, for the title next September in one of the big New York ball parks.

With the opponent definitely chosen for Sharkey who opened the southern series last winter by outpointing Young Stribling in the last match made by the late Tex Rickard, the "on to Miami" move began almost immediately. Frank Bruen, general manager of the garden, announced that he will leave Saturday for the south to put the finishing touches to the garden's new and permanent stadium in Miami. Several members of the garden will follow him south next week.

OWNER OF NEW ORLEANS BALL CLUB IS SUICIDE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8—(AP)—A. J. Heinemann, president and owner of the New Orleans Southern Association baseball club, shot himself fatally early tonight in his office at the local ball park that bears his name.

The baseball magnate had been in ill health for some time, friends asserted, and had been given to fits of despondency.

Coroner George F. Roeling pronounced the death a suicide.

Heinemann was 51 years old and was a prominent figure in the organized baseball field. Although he lost heavily in the recent stock market fluctuations, friends believed that his health, and not his financial affairs, induced his act.

OLSON'S SWEDES NOSE OUT PLAINFIELD BY ONE POINT IN FAST GAME 27 TO 26

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 8—Olson's Swedes proved just a bit too tough for the Plainfield Pros here tonight and nosed out the locals 27 to 26 in one of the fastest games ever seen on the local floor. The margin of victory was just one foul goal, each team having caged the same number of goals from the floor, nine each. The Swedes converted nine tries from the foul line while the Pros were able to convert but eight.

The game was fast from start to finish and the hard playing resulted in many fouls being called on both teams. At half time the Swedes were in the lead 18 to 14 but in the second half the Pros cut down the lead until but one point separated them at the final whistle. The left forwards of each team were the high scorers, Richardson getting 11 points for the Swedes and Kasper 10 for Plainfield.

In the preliminary game the Buddies took an easy victory from the Montville Aces 36 to 20. Next week the Pros clash with the Long Island Pros. The summary:

HARVARD-YALE BASEBALL SERIES TO BE WITHOUT COACHES

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 8—(AP)—Harvard has accepted Yale's invitation to play their annual baseball series this spring without the assistance of coaches, it was announced here today by the Yale Athletic association.

Yale and Princeton have entered into a similar agreement which will leave the control of the game entirely in the hands of the captains and players.

Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control on Yale University Athletic association said the agreements "are in full harmony with the general principle, long supported and advocated by Yale, of encouraging the initiative and self-reliance of the players themselves. The present agreements as to baseball are clearly in harmony with a broad principle which Yale regards as applicable to athletic sports generally."

An attempt was made in 1925 to place all Yale-Princeton-Harvard competitions upon such a basis, but before definite action could be taken the "Big Three" was dissolved by the break between Harvard and Princeton.

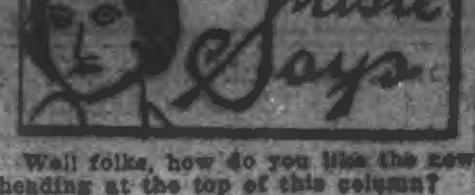
The present agreement was the result of an invitation extended by Princeton to the six-college baseball league, composed of Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Penn, Yale and Princeton, the latter two teams being new members this year to play their games without professional coaching. Yale and the others accepted, and the former in turn invited Harvard to play their series under a similar agreement.

During these games the coaches will be off the bench and will absolutely have no part in directing the team, leaving all decisions respecting strategy and change of players in the hands of captains.

BATTALINO-VERDE BOUT FEATURE IN STATE TONIGHT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 8—(AP)—Bat Battalino of Hartford, world's featherweight champion, makes his first professional appearance since winning his championship from Andre Routis last year at Hartford when he meets Phil Verde, Rochester, N. Y., here tomorrow night in a non-titular ten round fight. The champion not only will be making his first start as a champion, but he will be testing his reconstructed hands which were injured so badly in lifting the crown from Routis that he was forced to undergo two operations.

The champion, during his training for tomorrow night's fight, has given every indication that his hands are once more in perfect condition.



Well folks, how do you like the new heading at the top of this column?

I'll admit it's not so hot, but anyway I think you'll agree with me that it's an improvement over the head that has been running the past few days.

I'm going to let you in on a secret. I drew this present head myself. And it was drawn to please some one who wrote in telling me that she or he didn't like the other one. And I don't blame her, or him.

The writer sent a picture of a pretty little girl in a sun-bonnet and said that would make a good picture to head the column. Well, that's true but I'll be darned if I could draw a sun-bonnet, so that's out.

Thanks for the kind words and I'm glad somebody reads it and takes a little interest. But say folks, what's the use of me writing all this when I can just show you the letter. Here it is:

"Dear Susie:—

You know, (or I do), I don't like your new picture at all. The other one wasn't over much good, and this one is no good at all, to look at. You know, (or I do), it isn't just what you write that we profit by and remember, but the picture at top of column has its effect, hence this "I know" "you know" letter. I'll send a picture which will please everybody—'cause it's old fashioned, and good to look at, and you can just imagine what she is saying.— There is charm to the words "old fashioned" when we remember, "There's nothing new under the sun." Even if there are changes, life is about the same, after all. In olden days when we wanted extra pleasure and more of it, we put on a few extra plates on the table, and now we buy a few extra movie tickets, etc., etc. We profit by what you say, Susie. We like you most everyday, Susie. But for our sakes and yours as well, get a picture that looks quite less like—the dickens."

Can you see me blush, huh?

BRAVES TO PLAY 28 GAMES ON SOUTHERN TRIP

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Boston Braves will play 28 exhibition games on this year's southern training trip, club owners announced today. Seven of these games will be with the Yankees, six with the Athletics, five with the Senators and two with the Red Sox. Other clubs on the spring schedule include Brooklyn, St. Louis, Cardinals, Detroit, Jacksonville and Chattanooga.

President Emil Fuchs said that the first squad, consisting of batterymen, would start practice at the Braves camp at St. Petersburg, Florida, on Feb. 24, and that the rest of the candidates would get under way on March 1.

At the same time Fuchs announced that he had taken advantage of a new working agreement with the Newark club to send Tris Speaker, its new manager, three players on option. They were Louis Leggett, who caught 28 games for the Braves last season; George Peery, a pitcher, who worked in nine games during the 1929 campaign, and Clayland Touchstone, a recruit hurler with the Providence club last season.

BABE RUTH MAKING READY TO GO SOUTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Babe Ruth spent today spending money instead of trying to get more. The big Yankee home run hitter, after leaving his minimum terms of $85,000 on the desk of the Yankee club officials, devoted today to shopping preparatory to going south Saturday.

The slugger will go to St. Petersburg and Miami before starting active baseball training. His plans, he said, call for golf and more golf.

Ruth declared his demand for a three-year contract at $85,000 annually was serious and he expected to get it. Yankee officials repeated previous statements that they were not signing baseball players to three-year contracts now and had offered Ruth their limit, $75,000 a year for two years.

ARTIE NEHF RETIRES FROM BASEBALL

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 8—(AP)—William Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, today announced the retirement of Art Nehf, veteran southpaw pitcher.

Nehf who has made his winter home here since 1925, has accepted a position with hotel interests of William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Cubs.

The veteran southpaw began his baseball career with the Terre Haute, Ind., high school team. He entered professional baseball in the Copper League of Michigan after graduation from Rose Polytechnic Institute, and blasted his way into the majors—with the Boston Braves—in three years.

In 1916, the New York Giants paid $55,000 and 5 players for him. He wore a Giant uniform for ten years. In the 1921 world's series he hung up a record that still stands—three games pitched with only 12 hits allowed. In the same year he pitched a 21 inning game against Pittsburgh, holding the Pirates scoreless until the 21st inning, only to lose by a 3 to 0 score.

Nehf joined the Cubs late in 1926.

The team to represent Norwich is consisted of Academy players whom Coach Demarest of the Y is keeping in shape for next year's basketball team at the local high school.

Coach Demarest will send four of his first team squad into action and with the addition of Dickerman at center has a well balanced team.

In the preliminary game the Phi Delta's will play Baltic, this game starting at 8 p. m. and the feature game immediately following:

McGRAW'S WORRIES FOR NEXT SEASON CENTER ABOUT SECOND BASE POSITION

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—The biggest "if" in the pre-season baseball plans of the New York Giants hovers about second base. If Manager John J. McGraw knew that this position would be well cared for in 1930, most of his worries would be over before they start.

The other infield positions are in the capable hands of Bill Terry, Travis Jackson and Freddie Lindstrom. Andy Reese, regarded last spring as a likely successor to a long line of great Giant second basemen, was a casualty and unable to show to advantage on account of a bad foot. Eddie Marshall, likely infielder, was sent away for experience and got it in the Eastern league. A two-fisted fight may be waged at the training camp between Reese and Marshall for the job.

Eddie Farrell, who has had plenty of experience, will make a bid and Dave Bancroft, who will be a player as well as a coach, can perform in a pinch. Pat Crawford, reserve first baseman, third baseman and pinch hitter, again will await emergencies.

Eight outfielders will report at San Antonio, Melvin Ott, the boy wonder, being the stand out. Fred Leach, Charlie Fullis and Ed Roush are among the 1929 forces re-enlisted and George Fisher, Sam Leslie, Art Veltman and Ray Fitzgerald will try to show enough to displace the veterans. Leslie, formerly a Southern association and Southeastern league first baseman, will become an outfielder under tutelage of Giant experts. It is understood that he needs no lessons in hitting.

The McGraw team had plenty of pitchers last season but unfortunately some of them could not pitch. The two star lefthanders, Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell will be back and so will Larry Benton, sensational righthander of 1928 who could not get started in 1929. Freddie Fitzsimmons, the fielding star, Joe Genewich, John Scott, and Ralph Judd will be back. Among the new men Leroy Parmelee, Ray Lucas and Herk Pruett are known to be highly regarded. Pruett knows his way about both major leagues have worked his lefthanded wizardry for the Browns in the American and the Phillies in the National. Wallie Brush, a Florida youngster with more stuff than he knows what to do with, James Tennant, Joe Heving, Fawley and Puttman are other pitchers to be inspected.

Three of the four catchers on the roster are named Francis, so the Franks are sure to be in a majority with Bob O'Farrell, their only rival. Frank Hogan has nothing to worry about but his weight. Frank Healey and Frank Lavegue are willing to learn.

NO LIMIT TO NUMBER OF ROUNDS AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8—(AP)—The Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott fight, scheduled for Miami February 27, may run any number of rounds Madison Square Garden officials desire, without running afoul of Florida state boxing laws or Miami boxing commission rules.

That was the statement today of Louis MacReynolds, chairman of the local boxing commission.

MacReynolds was advised that articles had been signed in New York for a 15-round fight between the two heavyweight championship contenders, if Florida laws would permit that number of rounds.

The first "Battle of the Palms" staged by Madison Square Garden on February 27, 1929, was a ten-round affair between Sharkey and Young Stribling. Fights in Florida arenas have customarily been for ten rounds, although some twelve stanza contests have been held here.

"Nothing in the state law limits the number of rounds to ten, or to any other number," MacReynolds said. "We have a local ruling here, for use in connection with younger and smaller fighters, which limits fights to ten three-minute rounds or fifteen two-minute rounds, but that rule would not apply to the coming heavyweight fight."

Increase of seating facilities in Madison Square Garden's winter stadium here is under way, with a capacity of 50,000 as the goal. The arena was moved here after the Sharkey-Stribling fight in Miami Beach last year.

Sharkey said tonight he was glad the fight had been arranged, but that he had known but little about the conference in New York. He came to Miami Beach last Sunday night with his family on a vacation trip, believing he said, that there would be no fight here February 27 in light of his refusal to fight Tuffy Griffiths.

"It makes no difference to me whether the go is for ten or 15 rounds," he said. "There's only five rounds difference."

The sailor said he would not make plans for his training until he hears from Johnny Buckley, his manager.

"I'm ready to start training anytime," Sharkey said. "I expect that I will start around the first of the week, and imagine that the camp will be set up at Miami Beach."

GARY INSISTS FIGHT WAS FAKED; TELLS MORE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 8—(AP)—Jim Gary, 19-year old Columbus boxer who insists he faked the knockout he received in his fight with Arthur (the great) Shires in Chicago recently returned tonight from Cleveland and said he was the most surprised person in town when he learned he had been suspended from Illinois rings for life.

Gary said Eddie Edwards, agent of Eddie Meade, Cleveland promoter who managed his corner during the Shires fight, came to Columbus Monday and took him and Mrs. Gary to Cleveland for a "conference," giving him money and entertaining him there until tonight. Gary said Edwards told him it "would not be necessary" for him to go to Chicago to appear before the Illinois state athletic commission in its investigation of the fight in which Gary said he "took a dive" on the orders of Meade and Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter of the bout. Meade was in Chicago while Gary was in Cleveland.

The local boy, who has been boxing for two years in Ohio and West Virginia, says he was given the name of "Dangerous Dan Daly" by Meade on the eve of the bout.

Gary tonight charged for the first time that Mullen and Shires knew of the bout being "fixed" and that Meade and Mullen congratulated him on his acting when he was "knocked out," saying that "John Barrymore couldn't have done it better."

Gary said he did not see the telegram sent him by the Illinois commission asking him to appear and tell his story because "Edwards took it before I could read it and put it in his pocket."

"Only wish I had another chance to go before the commission," Gary said.

EQUALS WORLD'S RECORD RUN IN BEATING REISELT

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Equalling the world's high run tournament record of 17 Gus Copulos of Detroit tonight tossed the national three cushion billiard tournament into a three-way tie as he defeated Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 48 in 45 innings. Reiselt's defeat threw him into a deadlock with Champion Johnny Layton and Augie Kieckhefer, each of whom have dropped one game.

"Steamboat" Flanagan Is Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Charles J. Flanagan, widely known by baseball fans as "Steamboat," died here today of tuberculosis. He played with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league several years. He joined the San Francisco police department in 1922, retiring on a pension in 1928.

KERRIGAN AND LONG TIE FOR MEDAL IN L. A. OPEN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8—(AP)—In 18 hole tests marked by few par or near par figures, 86 golfers won their way through the qualifying rounds today of the $10,000 Los Angeles open championship. Their names were added to the list of 43 contestants whose low scores last year in the United States open and the Los Angeles open exempted them from the qualifying trials.

Tom Kerrigan, of New York, and Harold Long of Denver posted total scores of 140 to tie for medal honors. With few exceptions, other scores mounted to the class of ordinary golf.

Favorites mostly came through as expected although several strong golfers failed to make the grade. Included in the list of non-qualifiers were Larry Nabholtz of Houston, Texas; Clarence Hubby of Waco, Texas, and Fred McLeod of Washington, first round, touring the Lakeside course in 87, seventeen over par. Nabholtz and Hubby faltered in the final round.

Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., a former national open titleholder, played steady golf to chalk up 71-72—143 for the Lakeside course, while William "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn of New York, another first liner, went around the Rancho course in 73-71—144.

Because of the entry list of more than 300, qualifying rounds were held over seven courses with the low eleven and ties moving into the preferred class.

WILL REPORT R. R. SIGNAL FAILURE TO PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

First Selectman William E. Murray is proposing to write to the public utilities commission of the state with a complaint as to the operation of the new electric railroad signal at the Eighth street crossing on the Norwich & Worcester branch of the New Haven road, which has already failed to work twice in the short time since it was put in to replace a flagman at the crossing. In both cases, vehicles were crossing the tracks with a train approaching, but the electric signal was showing "safe." The new signal was put into operation on Jan. 1.

The first instance was when a street department truck was about to cross the tracks, and although a train was within 15 feet of the crossing, there was no warning given by the electric signal. The train was moving slowly so that the truck was not hit.

The second time was a close shave for a sedan of the public health department, which one of the public health nurses was driving down the steep grade to cross the tracks Monday afternoon about 1:30. As there was no signal of a train coming, she drove across and had just cleared the tracks when a south-bound train, No. 783, came by.

The railroad officials got a repair man here when they were notified that the signal wasn't working, and in the meantime had a man posted at the crossing to look out for traffic over it.

The automatic electric signal, which is operated by the approach of a train, was put in at the crossing by permission of the public utilities commission, over the protest of the city and town authorities.

BUSH SENTENCED IN PROVIDENCE FOR BIGAMY

Anthony J. Bush, alias Buschman, former sailor stationed at the submarine base at Groton, and resident of New London, was sentenced to two years in the Rhode Island state prison on Wednesday morning in court at Providence when he was found guilty on a charge of bigamy. He offered no defense beyond saying that he loved his first wife, but that his second wife married him only for a meal ticket.

Bush was arrested in Baltimore on information furnished by the New London police who were seeking him on a charge of non-support preferred by one of his wives. After he was arrested the New London authorities learned that he was wanted in Providence for bigamy and this being the more serious offense was turned over to the Providence police.

According to the testimony in court he was married to Mary Bush at Norwich, Feb. 7, 1927, and to Mabel Johnson Labelle in Providence, Nov. 23, 1927. He claimed he did not remember much about the second ceremony.

The marriage records here show that Anthony J. Bush, 24, was married to Mary Banas, 23, on Feb 7, 1927, by Rev. S. A. Iciek. The bride's home was at 158 Sachem street and the bridegroom gave his home in Baltimore.

WOULD FORECLOSE FOR FAIRGROUNDS BONDHOLDERS

Charles D. Greenman, who is trustee for those holding $25,000 in bonds of the New London County Agricultural society, which cover on the fairgrounds property at East Great Plain, has brought an application on the superior court for permission to sue Gilbert S. Raymond, receiver of the agricultural society, in order to foreclose the mortgage that secures the bonds. The application has been filed with John H. Walker, clerk of the court, by Andrew B. Davies, counsel for Trustee Greenman. A hearing on the application has been set for the superior court short calendar session here Friday.

The mortgage as security for the $25,000 in bonds was given June 1, 1922, covering on land, buildings and structures on the tract. In the application made by the attorney for the trustee reasons given for desiring foreclosure of the mortgage are that the society is involved in litigation, which is of long standing and it will not be terminated for a long period of time; the interest on said bonds, all of which are unpaid and outstanding, is more than a year overdue; the principal of all of said bonds, by reason of default in the payment of said interest, has been due and payable for more than ten months; certain of the holders of said bonds are demanding of said Greenman, as such trustee, that immediate action be taken toward the foreclosure of said mortgage and the sale of said real estate and the application of the proceeds toward the payment of said bonds; said buildings and structures are rapidly deteriorating in value, and great difficulty is had in insuring said buildings and structures and keeping the same insured.

The fairgrounds property is already involved in litigation because of difficulties arising after Receiver Raymond sold the property by auction on May 1st last. At the auction George H. and Francis Gilman bought the property on their bid of $15,750 on which they paid $2,000 down. When they subsequently declined to complete the purchase by paying the balance, Receiver Raymond sued them in the superior court and obtained a judgment for $14,025. Their refusal to pay was on the grounds that the receiver could not give a good marketable title to the property.

MAKING BIG CHANGE IN NIANTIC-CHESTERFIELD ROAD

One of the big New London county road improvements upon which work is now proceeding is the road from Niantic towards Chesterfield.

Starting from a point on Route 1 at Flanders known as the Kelley place the new Chesterfield road cuts out all the old hilly curves and runs north in as straight line as possible to meet the Hartford-New London pike.

The first noted improvement from the Flanders end is at the foot of a steep hill near what is known as the Deacon Ezra Moore place. The road passes east of this point 1,000 feet. Also it goes east of Davidson's reservoir for about 500 feet across the swamp until it meets the old road to Latimer's mill, passing west of this and leaving the mill 1,000 feet from the new road. Then it runs across the meadow to intersect with Hartford pike, coming out west of the blacksmith shop.

There have been three concrete bridges constructed and several viaducts of five feet cement tile for the flow of surplus water, from old reservoirs and through the swamps. The contractors are working along the road to replace old fences. Stone walls three feet thick at the base and two feet at top, four and one-half feet high add to the surroundings. The road bed has been rough graded about three-quarters of the way from Flanders end. The workmen are now grading the approaches to the bridges.

Nowhere on the whole road is there a grade of over six per cent which makes it about level throughout. The roadbed is 20 feet wide and will be surfaced with macadam when the ground settles in the spring. The construction company has purchased a ledge of rock and is setting up the crushers to keep the men working during the winter, so as to have the stone ready in the spring and not cause delay. It is expected to have the job finished by early July.

The commission has not decided about the Flanders intersection, so there is left 1,000 feet of road to be let under separate contract.

The commissioners are thinking of building an overhead structure above route 1 at this point, which would extend also 1,000 feet south on Niantic road.

The workmen have removed several ledges to cut down grade but the stone in them was very poor and could not be used for surfacing.

There are no men on duty at night and it is unsafe to travel over the road, as there are no lights except at each end. When this trunk line is completed it will save several miles coming from the north to Niantic and the beaches in that vicinity. It will also serve as short cut to Norwich, avoiding going through traffic in New London.

FINDS SEX QUESTIONNAIRE NOT SHOCKING TO STUDENTS

Decision of the Committee of the Association of University Professors On Controversy Over Sex Questionnaire at the University of Missouri Last Year—President Brooks and the Board of Curators Severely Censured For Disciplining Two Members of the Faculty "Because of Their Sanction" of the Questionnaire Circulated Among the Students—No Evidence That the Questionnaire Led to Sexual Immorality.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Stratton Duluth Brooks and the board of curators of the University of Missouri have been severely censured by a special committee of the Association of University Professors as a result of the controversy over a sex questionnaire at that institution last year.

The censure, announced tonight by the association, was returned after an investigation into the disciplining of two members of the university faculty "because of their sanction" of the questionnaire circulated among students.

The association said the inquiry had been undertaken at the request of President Brooks, many members of the faculty, and students in the courses of Professor Harmon O. Degraff— who was dismissed last April on account of the questionnaire. Professor Max F. Meyer was suspended.

The committee's conclusion, as revealed in a statement issued preliminary to publication in the February bulletin of the association, was:

"For the board of curators to decree the most severe punishment within its power, dismissal and suspension without pay, for this alleged 'offense,' (trivial, if any) is under the present circumstances a clear breach of the principles of freedom of teaching and research and security of tenure in the university."

Members of the committee of inquiry were Professors A. J. Carlson and L. L. Thurstone, of the University of Chicago; Percy Bordwell, of the University of Iowa; and J. H. Gray, of the American university at Washington.

Alluding to the actions against Degraff and Meyer as having been taken without notice to them "and without preferment of definite charges," the statement said the questionnaire had related to "the changing economic status of women, the sexual code and the moral ideas concerning the family." Both professors approved the questions and several hundred copies were distributed among students with instructions to answer anonymously.

"The charges made by the executive board of the curators against the professors were:

"1. That they (Meyer and Degraff) allowed a questionnaire to be circulated which tended to make students sexually immoral.

"2. That the questionnaire was shocking to students, especially to women students.

"3. That the questionnaire could not produce any scientifically valid conclusion nor any facts likely to be of substantial value.

"4. That the questionnaire 'tended to create the condition that it is alleged to correct.'

"After hearings held by the committee of the association these charges are declared to be ill-founded. In answer to the accusations, the report states in part:

"'There is little or no evidence that any student receiving the questionnaire was shocked or insulted by it. There is no evidence that the questionnaire led to sexual immorality or to decreased self-control in the matter of sex-behavior on the part of the students. Apparently, before the publicity, the questionnaire was taken by the students for what it purported to be, a scientific inquiry.

"'The evidence is in agreement on the point that the sex matters and sex problems brought up by the questionnaire are familiar or known not only to the students in the University of Missouri but practically to every high school graduate before entering the University of Missouri. x x x x Professor Degraff testified that as a student adviser he had been frequently consulted by students about the very issues that are raised in this questionnaire concerning the sex code and the moral ideals that are also involved in engagement and marriage. The students testified that these problems of the sex code of morals, engagement and marriage, are frequently discussed frankly, not only in the fraternity and sorority houses, but also by the girls with their boy friends.

"'These students do have ideals and convictions about the sexual code and they do discuss their ideals. These students have access to books and magazine articles by the hundreds that deal with the social institutions of betrothal, marriage, fidelity, birth control, divorce and other aspects of our sexual code. They see these problems discussed in current fiction, in the movies, and on the stage.

"'In view of these facts the committee finds no 'manifest social impropriety' as charged by the board, in the questionnaire. The committee denies the further objection of the board that 'the inquiry from its very nature could not produce any scientifically valid conclusions or any facts likely to be of substantial value.'"

ROME STILL CELEBRATING THE ROYAL WEDDING

ROME, Jan. 9—(AP)—A pageant representing a wedding procession of the Augustine Era tonight crowded the day's festivities in honor of the union of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium yesterday.

This pageant was preceded by a gigantic fireworks display from the historic Janiculum Hill, an eminence that is familiar to every schoolboy who has been forced to read MacAulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." The seven hills of the Eternal City and its historic bridges were lighted up by the display and the 800,000 residents of Rome, swelled by many visitors were attracted to the roof-tops to see the spectacle.

The royal wedding party viewed the fireworks from the balconies of the Quirinal palace after they had partaken there of a gala dinner. The square below the Quirinal was bathed in multi-colored lights and amid which the famous fountain played.

The royal newlyweds had a busy day. This morning they attended a grandiose military and aerial review at the Parioli parade ground. Huge crowds acclaimed them there.

In the afternoon the prince and his bride watched harness racing at the Villa Glori track. Afterwards they motored leisurely through the gardens of the Villa Humberto amidst the shrill cheers of children who were enjoying a school holiday there.

PROF. D. C. MacINTOSH OF YALE DENIED CITIZENSHIP

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 9.—(AP)— Because he refused to swear that he would bear arms in defense of the United States in any cause, Professor Douglas Clyde Macintosh, of the Yale Divinity school today was formally denied citizenship in an opinion filed in district court.

In his application made last June, Prof. Macintosh declined to subscribe to that part of the oath of allegiance committing himself to fight against a foreign or domestic enemy, basing his action upon the ground that his first allegiance was to the will of God.

He could not take up arms, he said, unless he felt the cause for so doing was morally justified.

The opinion was written by Judge Warren B. Burrows.

BRADY CHARGED WITH SENDING HOLIDAY BOMB

SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Leroy Brady, a 26-year old automobile mechanic, was charged with murder today as the sender of the gaily-wrapped bomb, which on New Year's day killed Naomi Hall Brady, the young bride of his brother.

Officials said tonight they intended to swear out additional warrants charging the mechanic with slaying Samuel Hall, 19 months old, and Dorothy Hall, four and one half years old, these were the brother and sister of the young bride who had crowded forward eagerly as the fatal package was opened. Both youngsters died in Washington hospitals from the injuries sustained in the explosion.

SNOWBOUND FAMILY REPORTED TO BE SAFE

STOCKTON, Calif., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Nightingale and their seven year old son, snowbound in the High Sierras at Niagara Creek since Saturday, are safe.

This word was telephoned to Sonora late today by Fred Merma and Jasper Meull, who made their way to the snowbound cabin on snow shoes.

Merma and Meull arrived at the cabin Wednesday and found the Nightingales enjoying their dinner from food found cached in a nearby cabin. They were all in good condition, and returned with Merma and Meull to Cow Creek on skiis. It was at Cow Creek that Merma was first able to telephone the news of the rescue. They will arrive at Long Bar, the snow line, some time tomorrow afternoon.

Rescue of the family ended a five-day search that called into play airplanes and the best ski men in the district.

INSURANCE FRAUD SCHEME DISCOVERED IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Police today announced that they believe they had thwarted an insurance fraud scheme with the discovery of a forged death certificate in the vital statistics files of the Brooklyn department of health bureau.

The certificate, bearing the name of James Hamil, 41, had been written in the files sometime last Sunday night. An investigation revealed that the name and address were fictitious and the physician, under whose name it had been registered, had been in Europe for a year.

An undertaker told police that a "well dressed man and woman," had asked him to get a transcript of the certificate but they failed to return.

A night watchman in the building has been suspended pending further investigation and police have notified insurance companies of the forgery.

WORST BLIZZARD OF WINTER IN MIDDLE WEST

KANSAS CITY, June 9—(AP)—The winter's worst blizzard which dumped record breaking snow fall over much of the middle west tonight moved slowly to the east and south, leaving in its wake zero temperatures and demoralized transportation. Six deaths were attributed to the cold.

A snowfall of approximately 15 inches in Kansas City was believed ended in swirling flurries. Lesser snowfall extended in all directions. Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas all felt the brunt of winter's attack.

Westward sub zero temperatures were reported in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado. In Winnipeg, Canada, the mercury dropped to 35 degrees below zero, the coldest since 1922. A snowstorm forced the second postponement of the army's proposed midwinter test flight of 22 planes from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Spokane, Washington, and return.

Deaths attributed to the storm were reported from Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado.

Kansas City, Kansas, public schools were ordered closed because of difficulty of pupils in reaching the buildings. Snowdrifts blocked entrances to buildings at Park college, Parkville, Mo., and classes were dismissed for the day.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS IN REPARATIONS CONFERENCE

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan. 9—(AP)—A talk described as highly satisfactory between the French and German delegates to the reparations conference, on the question of sanctions has brought an optimistic note into the sessions and has made it possible for the delegates to begin to count upon getting home before the end of next week.

Those who participated in the discussions were Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Minister Curtius and Minister of Economics Wirth, of Germany.

The French have not yet conceded the German demand that the protocol adopting the Young plan contain a clause similar to that in the German-American agreement to the effect that the creditors rely solely on the good faith of Germany for execution of the plan. They have, however, practically abandoned all claim to the right to resume military occupation of the Rhineland in case of a default by the Germans.

TWO TO FOUR YEAR TERM FOR THEFT FROM PERSON

WATERBURY, Jan. 9—(AP)—Saff Kowolanko, 41, Waterbury, was given a two to four year term in the state prison at Wethersfield this afternoon, when he was found guilty in superior court on a charge of theft from person. Mrs. Frances Gorosseko, 36, who was tried with Kowolanko and likewise found guilty, escaped with a suspended sentence of three months in jail. Judge Frederick M. Peasley, in commenting on the case expressed the opinion that Kowolanko had made a catspaw of the woman to use her hands to get $56 from Alexander Celesky, a farmer of Prospect.

Celesky claimed that he was in a store on Locust street on October 2, when the woman told Kowolanko that he had $55 in his pocket. He said that the woman took the money from his pocket while Kowolanko held his hands.

PREVENTED FROM SEEING MOE NEWMAN IN HOSPITAL

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9—(AP)—Director of Public Safety Schofield said today that he had not acted to prevent Boston authorities from seeing Moe Neuman under guard in a hospital, here, but that Neuman through his counsel had obtained a court order restraining the director, the district attorney and authorities of Massachusetts from seeing him while he remains in the hospital. The order was issued by Judge Lewis in common pleas court. Neuman is in the hospital recovering from bullet wounds received last December 28, when he was shot down here by gunmen.

Neuman was named by Irving M. Billings, Boston hotel clerk, as a man who was in a hotel there the day Samuel Reinstein was shot. Billings made the identification when he and two Boston detectives saw Neuman in the hospital here.

Rep. Harmony In The Senate Now Assured

Result of Rec[redacted]n of the Western [redacted]dents and the "Y[redacted]uard."

WASH[redacted] Jan. 9.—(AP)—Recognitio[redacted] western independents and [redacted]ng guard" in the new sen[redacted]ublican organization was assure[redacted]day and appeared to forecast a harmony meeting for the party's conference tomorrow.

There were rumblings of discontent among some of the old guard republicans against the appointments of Senators Lafollette, of Wisconsin, and Thomas, of Idaho, to the powerful finance committee, but the decision seemed to point the only way out of a threatened party dispute of far-reaching proportions.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, called a conference for tomorrow for ratification of the new organization worked out by Senator McNary of Oregon, and his committee on committees.

Senator Bingham of Connecticut, one of those who opposed Lafollette's appointment to the finance committee, today called at the white house. He said the senate's party row was not the purpose of his call. It was believed he expressed his views, however, to President Hoover.

Considerable interest was manifest in the make-up of some of the other major committees, principally the commerce committee which will be charged with drafting the inland waterways legislation. The assignments have not been made public but Senators Howell, Nebraska, and Allen, Kansas, are understood to have won the vacancies there.

Ohio, which is in controversy with Illinois on the issue of diversion from the Great Lakes, made an unsuccessful attempt to have Senator McCulloch succeed the late Senator Burton, of Ohio, on that committee.

FLOOD IN THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 9—(AP)—High water stages were assuming threatening proportions tonight as rain continued to swell streams in the lower Mississippi valley.

From Cairo, Ill., south, down the valley small streams had left their banks, the larger ones were nearing flood stage and the Mississippi was climbing too rapidly for the comfort of the flood-harassed people who live on its delta.

Cold showers continued over a large part of the valley tonight after record rainfall since Monday. A report that the Mississippi would reach 42 feet, three feet below flood stage at Cairo, gave rise to fear of flood stage here. There also was a report from Cairo that the Ohio was high and may push the Mississippi even nearer flood stage at Cairo.

At Hickman, Ky., farmers have moved their livestock from the low lands. In Arkansas, the Ouachita was flooding low lands as was the Black and St. Francis. In Mississippi, the cold water was driving stock from the bottom lands and threatening its levees.

STREETS AND HIGHWAY CHOKED WITH SNOW

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Hoary winter held carnival over the Great Lakes region today.

An endless shower of confetti drifted down upon the northern prairies, swirling over the lakes before a thirty miles wind. Streets and highways were choked with the drifts of the season's second great snowstorm. Aviation was dorman, trains ran behind schedule and motor traffic was crippled over a large area.

Sleet and ice weighed down telegraph lines and snapped off poles, interrupting communications along the southern edge of the storm belt. Farther south the tributaries of the Ohio and Mississippi were swollen with the melting snows and mid-winter rains.

DEATH OF INVENTOR OF THE STEEL HELMET

BOURNEMOUTH, England —(AP)—Alfred Bates, inventor of the steel helmet or "tin hat" as soldiers called it during the war, died here while bathing.

A member of a Halifax firm of art metal workers, Bates devised the steel helmet when casualty lists from flying shrapnel were heavy. The helmets probably saved millions of lives and came to be regarded with affection by the doughboys many of whom still keep them in their homes converted to various uses.

Changes Made In The U. S. Diplomatic Corps

Senate Promptly Confirmed Senator Sackett as Ambassador to Germany.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Further changes in the American diplomatic corps in Europe were formally announced today at the white house with the submission of three nominations to the senate.

Senator Frederic M. Sackett, of Kentucky was named ambassador to Germany, succeeding Jacob Gould Schurmann, resigned. Gilbert Baker Stockton, of Florida, was appointed minister to Austria; and Abraham C. Ratshesky, of Massachausetts, was nominated as minister to Czechoslovakia.

Subsequently the state department announced the retirement from the diplomatic corps of the present minister to Austria, Albert Henry Washburn, of Massachusetts, and the present minister to Czechoslovakia, Lewis Einstein of New York.

Prompt confirmation of the Sackett nomination was given by the senate, but the others were referred to the foreign relations committee in the usual course. After they have been confirmed, the ministers will confer with state department officials before leaving for their posts.

Another change in the Latin-American diplomatic service also was announced at the white house. Warren Delano Robbins being relieved of duty as minister to El Salvadore and assigned as director of ceremonies at the white house. He takes over the work heretofore performed by James C. Dunn, chief of the protocol division of the state department.

The white house announcement made no mention of a successor to Robbins and merely said that Dunn would perform other important work in the state department. No cause for the change was assigned.

Dunn generally was understood to have prepared the ruling made by Frank B. Kellogg as secretary of state that Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, did not—as official hostess for the vice president—rank the wives of ambassadors.

This ruling precipitated the now celebrated Gann controversy which finally was settled by Mrs. Gann being accorded by the diplomatic corps and the white house the rank which would be received by the wife of the vice president.

THREE MEN SWEPT OUT OF BOAT BY WAVE AND DROWNED

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)— Three men were drowned today after being swept out of their 40-foot motorboat by a wave while they were fishing off Edgemere, Queens.

The dead men were: John Hunziker, 50, and Max Keihert, 50, both of Queens, and Lawrence Irvine, 52, Brooklyn.

The accident happened when the engine was stalled after being drenched by a wave which struck the boat broadside. Hunziker, who was steering, was unable to head into the waves. A huge comber swept the three victims overboard.

A fourth occupant of the boat, John Riegel, 50, clung to the flag pole on the cabin and was rescued.

MRS. PARIS, AVIATRIX, KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

WOODBINE, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Neva Finley Paris, 36, of Great Neck, L. I., nationally known aviatrix, was killed near here today when her plane crashed into a marsh at the edge of the Satilla river. She was en route to Miami, Fla., to participate in an air derby there next week.

Mrs. Paris, who won fifth place in the women's national air derby last summer, had started from Great Neck last week to fly to Miami in short hops. She left Columbia, S. C., this morning and was within a few minutes flying distance of her next stop, Jacksonville, Fla., when her plane circled over Woodbine several times at an altitude of about 2,000 feet and then fell.

NO REPORT FROM LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—With the introduction in congress of a resolution demanding that it hold open hearings, the Hoover law enforcement commission continued tonight to maintain its silence on prohibition.

Despite an assertion on Monday by Chairman Wickersham that a statement would be forthcoming at the end of its session, which concluded late yesterday, members steadily declined to reveal the subject of discussion and no indication was given as to when a formal expression would be made.

BODY OF EDWARD WILLIAM BOK WILL BE PLACED IN CRYPT AT HIS SINGING TOWER

LAKE WALES, Florida, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Edward William Bok, who rose from a poor Dutch immigrant boy to a position of fame and wealth, died at his mountain lake home early today. He was 66.

The editor, author and philanthropist will be buried tomorrow at the foot of the great singing tower of bells he erected in the wilderness of a bird sanctuary near his winter home here.

A heart attack was the cause of death which came after only four days of illness. Mr. Bok died while specialists and relatives were rushing here from the east.

A special crypt at the base of the singing tower will receive the body tomorrow. The crypt built by Mr. Bok several years ago is situated before the north door of the tower which rises 204 feet above Iron mountain, itself the highest point in Florida.

Coming to this country at the age of 13, Mr. Bok became a messenger boy. He rose to success as a journalist, retiring only ten years ago from the editorship of the Ladies' Home Journal. He became widely known for his donation of a $100,000 fund for a plan by which the United States might cooperate with other nations for the attainment and preservation of peace. He also was known for his autobiography, "The Americanization of Edward Bok."

In Philadelphia, Mr. Bok had headed many welfare movements. He was an art and music patron and set up a $10,000 annual award for the man or woman who was considered to have performed the best act for the city.

In building the singing tower with its carillon of 71 bells here the philanthropist said he gave it as a gift to America for the success this country had brought to him.

Mr. Bok had spent much of his time in Florida since retiring from the editorship of the Ladies' Home Journal. He lived quietly in a stucco house which was connected with the bird sanctuary and tower by a winding road of rock.

HOOVER SENDS MESSAGE TO MRS. EDWARD W. BOK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover today extended his sympathy to Mrs. Edward W. Bok for the death of her husband.

His message read:

"Mrs. Hoover joins me in extending deepest sympathy to you and your children in the passing of Mr. Bok. The nation has lost a most distinguished and useful citizen whose life must ever be an inspiration to its youth.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

U. S. DISARMAMENT ENVOYS SAIL ON MISSION OF PEACE

Delegates to the Naval Arms Limitation Conference in London Expressed High Hopes of Success—Sailed Yesterday Afternoon Aboard the George Washington—Secretary Stimson Stated That the Delegates Had Received Everywhere Expressions of Good Will and Hopefulness.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Jan. 9—(AP)—Another American expeditionary force, the purpose of this one the promotion of peace, sailed today from the Hoboken piers where the first A. E. F. put out for Europe and war almost 13 year ago.

This second expeditionary force was the American delegation to the naval arms limitation conference in London of the five great naval powers of the world. The United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

Headed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and including Secretary of the Navy Francis Adams, Senators David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, and Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, the delegation sailed expressing high hopes for the success of their mission.

"We have received everywhere expressions of good will and hopefulness for our success," Secretary Stimson said as he boarded the George Washington, on which they will make the sea journey. "This has been great encouragement and we start out with high hopes of being able to accomplish the successful result of our mission."

The members of the delegation, their wives and secretaries, began gathering aboard the George Washington shortly after noon today but it was 3:25 before the last gangplank was pulled to the pier and the big liner, which carried President Woodrow Wilson and the 1918 peace party to Brest en route to Versailles, slid out into the Hudson river and headed down river for the open sea and England.

Signal pennants flying from her masts and rigging—in full dress to be nautical—the George Washington met a shrill salute from river craft as she bellowed a warning and backed slowly out into midstream. Her signals drowned out the goodbye from the hundreds of persons who lined the upper deck of Pier 4.

Aboard the ship before she sailed all was confusion. Each arriving party was met by a swarm of photographers and reporters and friends and relatives of the ninety-odd members of the official party and the more than 200 other passengers, including the newspaper men en route to the parleys, of whom there were a score or more.

Department of justice agents guarded the passage-ways and doors to the cabins of the five major delegates.

Among the visitors was Major General Hanson B. Ely, in command of this district, who paid his respects to Mr. Stimson and Mr. Adams.

There was no part of the ship especially set aside for the delegation, but they were scattered throughout the first class section.

The two members of President Hoover's cabinet occupied what are known as the presidential suites on the main deck.

Others of the official party, which includes Rear Admirals W. V. Pratt, H. E. Yarnell, A. J. Hepburn and Hilary P. Jones, J. Theodore Marriner, chief of the western division of the state department, Geoge Rublee, advisor to Ambassador Morrow, and a host of other lesser officers and government officials were scattered through the suites and cabins of the three first class decks.

Secretary Stimson, Ambassador Morrow and Senators Reed and Robinson came to New York ahead of the official party and arrived at the ship at different times.

The main party from Washington, headed by Secretary Adams, made the trip from the National capital in a special train to Jersey City whence they were brought to the United States Line piers in automobiles and with a police motorcycle escort.

Two carloads of documents and baggage preceded them and were stored aboard the ship before their arrival.

A squad of picked marines, each wearing on his arm the insignia of a sergeant, went aboard shortly before the George Washington sailed and patrolled the deck outside the cabins of Secretaries Stimson and Adams. They were the only uniformed guard of the delegation.

FRANCE REJECTS ITALY'S NAVY PARITY PROPOSAL

ROME, Jan. 9—(AP)—The Franco-Italian negotiations for a preliminary naval understanding before the opening of the five power disarmament conference in London, came to a standstill today with the announcement that France had rejected Italy's proposal for naval parity between the two countries.

The Italian foreign office regarded the French reply as a rupture of the negotiations, which have been going on for many weeks. Italy's efforts to reach an agreement by negotiation on the question of parity, are considered to have failed.

It is now inferred here that Italy and France will go to the London conference without a prior understanding, unless Foreign Minister Briand, of France and Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, who will meet in Geneva shortly for the league council session, can achieve something by personal exchange of views.

QUESTIONED CONCERNING HIS ALLEGED KIDNAPING

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 9.—(AP)—West Allis and Milwaukee police tonight questioned Gilbert Gohres, son of a wealthy West Allis grocer, on his story of being kidnaped last night and held prisoner until today.

The 22-year-old self styled victim, however, was so nervous and his story of the trip from his home into adjoining Waukesha county so sketchy that officers found it difficult to assign a motive or find a clue to the abductors.

Young Gohres left home last night, telling his parents he was slightly ill and would return as soon as he got his car, parked in front of the grocery store he and his father operate.

His parents became worried when he failed to return. His mother heard a voice in front of the house. She opened the window and a gruff voice cried: "There's a letter for you in the mail box."

She ran to the front porch and found a long letter giving instructions on where and how to take $10,000 ransom money.

The letter was in her son's handwriting and informed her that he was writing it under duress. The letter warned repeatedly that his life and that of his mother would be imperilled if police were notified.

THREE MEMBERS OF THE HUCKINS FAMILY INDICTED

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Elmer S. Huckins his wife Amelia, and their son, George E. Huckins, were charged with obtaining money under false pretense in indictments returned by the Linn county grand jury today.

While the indictments against the father and son were similar to those contained in true informations filed against them several weeks ago by County Attorney Carl Hendrikson, the indictment of Mrs. Huckins came as a surprise. Her name was not mentioned in previous charges, although she had been made defendant in two suits filed on behalf of four investors in the Huckins' mysterious 26 to 52 per cent dividend business, seeking recovery of $73,350.

Warrants for the arrest of the father and son were issued after the filing of the county attorney's true informations but no such warrant was issued for the wife and mother.

Bond on the grand jury indictments was fixed at $5,000 for each.

TO PRESENT CONFESSION OF MURDER TO GRAND JURY

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 9.—(AP)— The confession obtained by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan from Arthur Brown, West Haven, that he killed Dominick Zito on November 12 for $15, will be presented to a grand jury probably on January 21.

Police said today that even if Brown, who is now serving a year's sentence in the Mercer county workhouse, Trenton, N. J., for the theft of an automobile, cannot be returned here readily, the grand jury may hear the evidence and return an indictment if it sees fit to do so.

In the meanwhile, police pushed with all possible speed arrangements to have Brown brought to this city. The New Jersey authorities will be requested to re-open Brown's case, so that his sentence may either be shortened or lifted.

John V. Brown, father of the confessed slayer, today attributed his son's act to occasional insanity superinduced by intoxication. He said that he would aid in every way possible in his son's defense.

BRIDE AND GROOM FORGOT TO GET MARRIAGE LICENSE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A wedding ceremony was held up for almost a half hour this afternoon, when the bride and groom forgot to get the marriage license which would permit them to go through with the ceremony. A last minute dash for the license, which should be applied for last week, finally paved the way to the marriage.

Joseph Demeko, Jr., 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Demeko, and Margaret Takacs, 18, were all set to go to the church shortly before three o'clock when the question of the marriage license was brought up.

The bride-to-be, according to reports, was to have reported at the bureau of vital statistics in the Welfare building on Wednesday, but she, believing that the groom had gone for it, did not get it, and the incident was forgotten until almost time for the ceremony.

VISITORS MUCH PLEASED WITH WILLIMANTIC EXPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—Many of the hundreds of visitors at the fifth annual Willimantic exposition now underway at the state armory under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association, rank the exposition second only to the Boston show in the quality of its poultry department.

Today, the second of the four-day run of the exposition, again drew a great crowd and gave assurance of the success of the show which is to close Saturday evening. The armory is open daily from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m.

Judging in the productive poultry will be held Friday and will be in charge of Professor David E. Warner of the Connecticut Agricultural college, assisted by students. Dogs will also be judged Friday.

Much interest is manifest in the merchandise exhibits of the Willimantic retail houses as well as that of a number of out-of-town concerns, the latter being mainly of feeds and poultry appliances.

Among the feature attractions the peacock and pheasants, sporting beautiful plumage, command much attention. Other features that are of special interest include the turkhens, the Egyptian geese which boast of a permanent wave in their feathers, the flapper chickens with bobbed hair, Japanese chickens that are covered with silky hair instead of feathers, several varieties of pet games and Manager Cavanaugh's huge buff cochins that are housed in a model poultry plant.

LOCAL MAN FINED $100 AND COSTS ON LIQUOR COUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—At the session of police court this morning Gedeon Henry of 311 Main street, was fined $100 and costs when found guilty of selling liquor. In view of the large costs in the case, Judge Frank H. Foss said that he would remit $50 of the fine on condition that immediate settlement of the balance was made. Through Attorney S. B. Harvey, Henry gave notice of an appeal to the superior court but before the adjournment of court paid the assessment which amounted to $80.65.

The specific charge was that Henry had sold two bottles of beer to Mrs. Marie Bellerose of 47 Ives street. Mrs. Bellerose testified to purchasing the beer from Henry at the latter's home for 50 cents. Upon leaving the house she handed the two bottles to Officer Joseph Lachappelle of the police department. She said that she was induced to "get the goods" on Henry because her husband was in the habit of going to the Henry residence and getting intoxicated. She told of warning Henry as early as last June to stop selling beer to her husband. After receiving the two bottles from Mrs. Bellerose Officer Lachappelle with Officer Joseph Lariviere and County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler raided the Henry home and seized 45 bottles of beer which were analyzed and proven to be of sufficient alcoholic content for prosecution. Officer Lachappelle testified as to the raid and receiving the bottles from Mrs. Bellerose.

Henry said that Mrs. Bellerose did not buy the beer but that he had given her the two bottles when she told him that she wanted it for company at her home. Lucien Bedard, Mrs. Henry and Albert Bedard, the latter of Hartford, testified that they were in the Henry home and that Mrs. Bellerose did not purchase the beer.

During the session of court Andrew Ogozalek, 31, of 132 Main street, was charged with reckless driving. He pleaded not guilty but was adjudged otherwise and Judge Foss imposed a fine of $25 and costs on an amended charge of speeding. The arrest was made by Officer Roderick Lariviere after a car operated by Ogozalek nearly collided with the police department sedan operated by Officer Lariviere this morning at the junction of Church and Main streets. The police car was entering Church street as a delivery car driven by the accused was going east on Main. Officer Lariviere, who estimated Ogozalek's speed at between 35 and 40 miles an hour, turned the police sedan sharply to the left and succeeded in avoiding a collision. Ogozalek continued down Union street and was followed by Officer Lariviere who made the arrest near Clark street.

DR. WORKS SPEAKER AT THE EXPOSITION BANQUET

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—That the future of the Connecticut Agricultural college rests with the people of the state was stressed this evening by Dr. George Alan Works, president of the state college in speaking before the annual banquet of the Windham County Poultry association, held at the Nathan Hale hotel. Dr. Works explained the functions of the state college in teaching the youth of the state and disseminating agricultural information to farmers by means of the extension service and the investigational work conducted by the experiment station. The control of the Connecticut Agricultural college is in the hands of the people, stated Dr. Works. By legislative action and by acts of the board of trustees who interpret the ideas of the people as to what the institution shall be, the staff is in position to carry out the state's dictates with the resources provided by the public.

In addition one of the duties of the staff is to point out the ways that the institution can best serve Connecticut people. At the state college there are 540 students, of which about 100 are enrolled in the regular four-year agricultural course. The majority of this 100 students do not go into farming but go into a wide range of ativities, such as teaching, extension work and business.

In the preparation of students for the life they are to lead after they are to leave college, Dr. Works urged the institution of more liberal courses, such as economics, sociology, history, foreign languages and similar courses, which will serve to give the individual a different outlook on life than that secured through specialization. About 65 per cent of the students of Connecticut, according to Dr. Works, go out of the state for a higher education because they are unable to get educational opportunities, such as they desire in this state. Dr. Works urged the people to consider this fact and attempt to provide the educational facilities lacking.

The time has past when the farmer is living for himself, stated Dr. Works. The farmer has become a citizen of the world, which was not true 25 years ago. He must be provided with such facilities as to give him a broader outlook on life and it is through the educational institutions that this can be done. Daniel D. Cavanaugh of North Windham acted as toastmaster this evening.

Other speakers included Prof. David Warner, of the Connecticut Agricultural college and Philip Rich, manager of the poultry show of the Eastern States Exposition.

Following the banquet at the hotel the poultrymen viewed the exhibits of birds in the state armory on Pleasant street.

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DANIELSON

G. B. FERGUSON, 97, DIES AT HOUSE IN WAUREGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 9.—George B. Ferguson, for years a resident of Danielson, died this morning after an illness of two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson in Wauregan. He was 97 years of age. During the years he lived in Danielson he was resident on Reynolds street. He was a member of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson.

Mr. Ferguson was a native of Salem, Mass., and was born Sept. 25, 1832. In that city, on his birthday in 1861, he was married to Miss Adeline Emerson, also of Salem. Mr. Ferguson had been retired from active work for many years, but as an engineer he had worked for a long period in Salem, New York and Boston. Following Mrs. Ferguson's death, he went to Wauregan, in 1921, to make his home with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson being his daughter. In addition to Mrs. Johnson, he leaves four grandchildren residing hereabouts, Philip Johnson of Hartford, Lawrence Johnson of Philadelphia, Mrs. Sidney P. Marland of Danielson, Miss Olive Johnson of Hartford. There are seven other grandchildren in California, their father being the son of the deceased, George Arthur Ferguson, who died in India in 1921. Mr. Ferguson also leaves three great-grandchildren.

Incident to a case tried in the town court of Killingly this afternoon, as told elsewhere in this column, Attorney Harry E. Back, attorney for the accused young man, advocated the arrest of young girls to clear up an immoral and unsavory condition that he represented exists here, and for which there is very good reason to believe is true. There is the prospect that Danielson will see a moral crusade in the near future. It has been hinted at for a long time, but has not materialized as yet.

Danielson evidently has a person of peculiar bent whose specialty is going over to Providence occasionally to steal an automobile, drive it back into this town and abandon it in some isolated place in or outside the borough limits, usually in some cart path in a wooded section. Another such car, stolen in Providence Jan. 2, was found by state officers this morning in woodland territory near where Fall brook crosses the Green Hollow road, just south of the borough. Indications are that the car had been driven into the cart path a sufficient distance so that it would not be visible from the road on the day that it was stolen. Some months ago another Rhode Island car similarly abandoned was found in a cart path near the Old Furnace, about two miles to the east of the borough. Still another Rhode Island car also was found abandoned in similar isolated territory a few months ago. State officers are checking up on the case and hoping they may learn the identity of the person who steals a car to get a ride home from the Rhode Island capital.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Regina Baril

At her home in Wauregan during last night the death of Mrs. Regina Baril, 76, occurred. Mrs. Baril, a native of Canada, was the widow of Maxime Baril, who died in 1926. The family has been resident in Wauregan for about 25 years. Mrs. Baril is survived by five children, Regin and Virgil of Wauregan, Alphonse of Baltic, Zepherin of New Bedford and Mrs. Omer Ducharme, who lives in Canada.

W. E. Parker, chairman of Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross, has received from Vice-Chairman James L. Fieser of the national headquarters at Washington, D. C., an honor flag and a communication in which it is set forth that the splendid work done here during the annual roll call in November is greatly appreciated, the membership exceeding the goal set for the local chapter to secure this year. The letter requests that Mr. Parker express to the roll call workers that national organization's appreciation of the fine cooperation given here.

When the Danielson Building and Loan association holds its annual meeting, an amendment to the constitution and by-laws will be proposed so that the 30th series of shares will be issued without a subscription fee charge. On past series there has been a subscription fee of 25 cents a share, and will be on future ones. It is proposed to change the by-laws so that no person shall hold more than 15 unpledged shares in any one series, but the number of pledged shares is to be governed by the amount of the loan granted any borrower.

These changes are proposed incident to the inauguration of the campaign to sell 5,000 shares, that Danielson may enter upon a home building campaign in comprehensive manner. The association is to loan money to home builders at 5 1-2 per cent per annum, and will loan as high as 75 per cent of the valuation of property in some instances. Loans can be obtained on houses in course of construction, provided the plans and specifications are submitted to and approved by a committee of the Building and Loan association.

Observers of the New England Transportation Co. trucks now operating north and south through this territory have noted the frequency with which these vehicles are being run and the large loads of freight and express matter they are carrying. Naturally, there has been a very considerable increase in the amount of matter these trucks are moving this week, due to the removal of the boat trains in some measure.

Dr. and Mrs. Cecil R. Garvin are to remove from Dayville to Danielson in the near future. Dr. Garvin has been practicing in Dayville since coming to this town.

On complaint of a local young woman, 15 years of age, Alphonse Corce, a young man of Thornton, R. I., was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this afternoon to face a charge of seduction and one other charge growing out of his alleged illicit relations with the girl. After hearing what those who testified had to say in connection with the matter, the court found Corce not guilty of seduction and guilty on the second count, imposing a fine of $50 and costs. Corce, who was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back, took an appeal. A few months ago Corce was before the Killingly town court on similar charges in a case in which another local girl was the complainant.

This is one of the important nights of the year at the Westfield Congregational church. It so happened that the monthly Church Family Night was made the occasion for the annual meeting of the church, to hear reports, elect officers and committees for the ensuing year and to enjoy the program arranged for the evening. The reports showed that 1929 was a successful year for the church, and the forecast is for an equally successful one in 1930.

A checkup is to be made, incident to Danielson's home-building campaign as to how many people now paying rent to property owners here, or who, not being residents here, are interested sufficiently to say that they would like to have a home of their own under the proposal that will be made to them by the Danielson Building and Loan association. Having some money to start with, numbers of families here may have a new home, built as they would like to have it, and may pay for it much the same as they pay rent—so much per month for just a little more than 12 years, when they would become outright owners. This angle of the home-building campaign is one that those forwarding the building program would like to know about.

PUTNAM

YALE TO HAVE EXPERIMENTAL STATION AT NO. ASHFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 9.—It was learned today that officials of Yale university, New Haven, have started negotiations with the management of the Myers farm in North Ashford where extensive forestration and planting operations are conducted, for the taking over of a part of the acreage which will be conducted by the university as a forestration experimental station. The deal has not been fully consummated at this time, but it is expected that plans for the property transfer will be made at an early date.

Patrolman and Mrs. Benoni Durand of Church street celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home today by entertaining a few guests at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Durand will be hosts at a gathering to be held Saturday evening for an informal celebration of this event. Mrs. Durand, who before her marriage was Miss Anna Kelli of this city, and Patrolman Durand were united in marriage on Jan. 9, 1905, at St. Mary's church by the late pastor, Rev. Father Van Den Noort, who died two years ago at his home in Holland. Officer Durand is a popular member of the local police department and is widely known in eastern Connecticut police circles. He is the father of four children, Mrs. Thomas Bellerose of Livery street, Misses Bernadette and Anita and Gerard Durand, the latter at home.

Reminiscent of the early days of automobiling that is attracting a great amount of interest is a photograph of a Knox horseless carriage which was owned by James B. Tatem of Center street. The tin-type reposes in Mr. Tatem's office on Front street and for those who recall the advent of the motor age in this city serves as a topic of many a conversation, the subject of which is the days of yore. When commenting on the photo, Mr Tatem said last evening that the Knox carriage was the first automobile to chug its way about the city.

Two pickerel, tipping the scales at the 40-ounce mark, were taken from the waters of Alexander's lake Tuesday by a fishing party composed of W. E. Maynard, Samuel Rich and Ernest Tetreault of this city. The trophies furnished a fisherman's ideal meal. As far as could be learned today the two prizes of the local party are the largest to be caught in those waters this season.

A Webster man was the first violator of the national prohibition act to be hailed before police court this year. He was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Sergeant Sponcey and Officer Durand of the local police on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct. In police court this morning, before Judge M. H. Geissler, he was found guilty and fined $1 and costs. The police blotters until today had been free of entries since Dec. 18, when two local boys were arrested on larceny charges.

Mayor Charles A. Richard has appointed standing committees of the various municipal departments for the ensuing two years. Those appointed were: Finance committee, Warren S. Ames, chairman, Eugene Migneault and Robert T. Chadwick; highways, Eugene Migneault, chairman, Warren S. Ames and Francis X. Vadnais; fire, Warren S. Ames, chairman, John M. Dean and David O. Breault; city property, David O. Breault, chairman, Eugene Berthiaume and Edward M. Duffy; rules and ordinances, Robert T Chadwick, chairman, John M. Dean and Eugene Berthiaume; police, John M. Dean, chairman, Eugene Migneault and Joseph Dubois; street lighting, Robert T. Chadwick, chairman, John M. Dean and Edward M. Duffy. By a vote of the council, Alderman-at-Large Warren S. Ames is president of the board of aldermen.

The strength of the Putnam fire department is contained in a complement of 45 men, but according to Chief Ralph E. Thurston the wearing apparel of the firemen has been reduced to such an extent that 20 members of the department are forced to provide their own equipment or do without when responding to an alarm. Chief Thurston discovered a shortage of 17 pairs of boots, 8 rubber coats, 12 pairs of mittens and some helmets when he took the inventory of the department recently. He has reported the matter to the fire committee with hopes that the supply will be replenished. When asked to account for the missing articles, Chief Thurston said in a jocular way, "I can't see how this equipment is missing at this time, the fishing season closed several months ago."

Before another month, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, managing head of the W. J. Bartlett store, will have retired from active business life after a continuous career of 36 years. Her announcement was made today. In commenting on her retirement, Mrs. Bartlett said that she wished to part with the responsibilities with which she has been burdened since the death of Mr. Bartlett three years ago. Mrs. Bartlett had always shown an interest in her husband's business, but upon his death she was forced to step in and conduct the affairs of the establishment.

The Bartlett store took its place in the city's business circles in 1894 when the late Walter J. Bartlett came to Putnam to visit his sisters, the late Miss Jeane Bartlett and Mrs. E. L. Simpson, now of New York. An acquaintanceship with Frank Brainard, then proprietor of a grocery store where the Bartlett store now stands, developed in a partnership. Mr. Brainard, grief stricken over the untimely death of his son, Ira Brainard, suffered the loss of his health and retired from business. Mr. Bartlett assumed control and conducted the business on an unsurpassable scale until his death, Jan. 2, 1927. It was at this time that Mrs. Bartlett took up the unfinished task of her husband, that in the course of events made her establishment the city's leading retail grocery store. Quality and service, the Bartlett's store slogan for almost a half century, is the secret of its success, Mrs. Bartlett said Monday.

James B. Tatem of Center street was in Manchester today on business.

Special Officer Frederick Dinsdale of the local police is to take examinations for appointment to the state police department on Jan. 23, it was learned today.

Miss Ruth Perry of Boston, daughter of Mrs. Edith Perry of Grove street, is to leave soon for Hollywood Beach, Fla., where she will accept a position.

Harry Wallen, newly appointed member of the police force, will assume his new duties for the first time on Monday evening, filling the vacancy created by the promotion of Sergeant Alpheric Sponcey.

Captain of Police A. A. Dubreuil was at his desk at police headquarters this morning, succeeding the late Captain William J. Jarvis, who died Dec. 23. Captain Dubreuil was appointed Monday evening at the first meeting of the common council.

Lucius P. Merriam and Capt. J. J. McGarry, city auditors, are presently engaged in examining the records and accounts of all municipal officers charged with the handling of monetary matters.

Icemen Anxious

The ice problem is beginning to loom up. Ponds are mostly open, with weeks of freezing weather needed, that the crop may be secured. Last year, after four separate promises being destroyed by warm rains and high temperature, the houses were all filled at the Dorrville fields with cutting completed the last week in January.

Fifty years ago, the Hopeville lyceum discussed and argued what the records of that date declare to have been the cause of heated debate, Resolved: That acquaintance with vice is necessary in order to be able to properly avoid it. Those who stood for the negative and were given the decision were Messrs. Roode, Kinney, Barber and Morse. The affirmative side was supported by Messrs. Tyler, Palmer, Phillips and Holmes. Only one of these eight men is alive today and he recalls the debate and incidents connected with it.

During Arremoney's January clearance sale they are featuring P. & N practical front corsets and corselets, nationally advertised. Values $8 and $9. Special prices $5 and $6.—adv.

TEMPERATURE RECORDS BROKEN BY JAN. 9TH FIGURES

Weather records have been carefully kept on the Ross farm for more than 100 years. Simon Brewster has the daily temperature readings for over a half century. No entries show anything like the performance of the weather for the last three days, in mid-winter; Tuesday 58, Wednesday 61 and Thursday at 12:30 the silver had climbed to 66. John O'Shea went about the streets barefooted, straw hats were out and children were playing at marbles on the sidewalks.

Mrs. Fred L. Swift and her daughter, Miss Hazel, of Norwich, were guests of Mrs. E. H. Hiscox Thursday.

At the annual meeting of the Baptist church, Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected: John E. Phillips, clerk (he has been elected to that office unanimously every year since January, 1892); Edwin M. Gray, treasurer; Arthur M. Brown, trustee for one year; Miss May Blake, collec-

THOSE APPALLING AUTO DEATHS

How the steadily increasing and appalling list of deaths from motor vehicle accidents can be allowed to continue without more effective measures being applied to check it is beyond comprehension. It can hardly be claimed that such a casualty list has the approval of the people in general and yet the number goes on increasing each year. We raise a great hue and cry because two or three persons are killed, when they might have prevented it by their own actions, but no mighty voice is raised against the thousands that are being sent into eternity by automobiles. That is, none is raised that has the effect of stopping the slaughter.

Out in Cincinnati there has been organized under the sponsorship of a municipal judge a volunteer traffic safety commission among the citizens for the purpose of trying to meet the situation in that city. In its discussion of the problem, recognition is given to the fact that there are certain ineffective and unreasonable ordinances, that legislation is needed to repeal these and substitute others, and that there is need of an intensive educational campaign and the stringent enforcement of laws which meet the situation.

The feeling that there should be more than ordinary attention paid to the flagrant and repeated violator of the safety measures will be regarded as sensible. Likewise it is felt that provision should be made for the permanent revocation of driving licenses when conditions demand it and the judge believes that there should be a statute definitely fixing guilt of manslaughter in automobile killings, while the hit-and-run drivers should be given to understand that they can expect stern treatment. The need for strong action on the part of the courts in case of drunken and reckless driving was emphasized.

Evidently it is felt out in Cincinnati that the time has come when automobile deaths must be regarded as something serious, but it cannot be expected that there will be much attention paid to it until the auto driver is convinced and the courts do their part in educating the drivers. And Cincinnati is not the only city where determined efforts for greater highway safety are greatly needed.

THE WASHINGTON REPORT

Near the end of last year startling stories were put forth regarding conditions in Washington. It was declared to be frightful, and there was a demand that something should be done about it immediately.

Naturally, if the national capital was reeking with crime and law violations it was time to find it out. Some of the stories were shown to be years old. Others were based upon conditions which had been revealed and the objectionable places closed. Nevertheless, it was a recital of conditions which indicated that there must be some fire where there was so much smoke. Politicians were involved in making the charges, some of them being anxious to arouse greater opposition to the administration, but it was a fair claim that if the seat of the national legislature was tolerating worse conditions than other cities of the country it was time to put an end to it.

It was a situation in which the dry question played a conspicuous part. The grand jury went into action on it. It called many witnesses, some of them having first made public declarations, and now after a study of the facts brought out it has made its report.

The grand jury doesn't uphold Washington as a model for the rest of the country. It admits that there are "numerous violations of the prohibition law" but it declares that conditions there are "certainly no worse and probably better than those existing in other sections of the United States."

The result of this investigation, this inquiry to get at the facts, this questioning of witnesses and talkers, is that Washington is not the crime-ridden and lawless city that has been claimed. Those who have had an opportunity to furnish the evidence to the jury have failed to win their case.

It is to be noted that the jury finds that there are violations of prohibition, but it points out that a good deal of it is "due no doubt to the lack of complete cooperation on the part of the public in general in the enforcement of the prohibition laws." That situation is one which seems to be prevalent in many other parts of the country.

OLD CHRISTMAS TREE USE

After the Christmas season is over there comes the problem of disposing of the Christmas tree. Almost every house has one, and all sorts of methods are used in getting rid of them. They will be found decorating the back yard, they can be seen surmounting the ash carts, they are deposited on the other fellow's property when chance permits, they are cut up for fire wood in certain instances or they are made the basis of bonfires in others. The fact is that in many instances the Christmas tree can be located for several seasons back if one desires to make a search.

Thus, when a new idea of disposing of the Christmas tree is advanced it cannot fail to interest, especially when there is an opportunity for putting it to some worthy use.

This year the suggestion has been made that two or three of the trees, depending upon the size, be assembled, tied together and stacked in the open or partly sheltered places as bird refuges. It can be appreciated that the Christmas tree branches serve to hold a large part of the snowfall and that the birds will welcome such protection, especially if the friends of the birds and other thoughtful persons see to it that bits of suet are tied to the branches or feeding boxes are placed under the trees or in the limbs.

Just at the present time when the ground is bare there is no need for this concern, but this is the time of year when it may be expected that the ground will be covered for varying periods, shutting off the feeding places and making such shelter places and feeding boxes most welcome to the feathered friends.

The idea may have been suggested by the use which the birds make of the pine trees under such conditions, but whatever is responsible for it there seems to be good reason for believing that it will be quite generally adopted. Even the children will be interested in doing such a desirable thing for the birds, and certainly there will be plenty of bird lovers who will immediately fall in with the idea. It will be most surprising if the birds do not show their appreciation of any such attention.

500 YEARS HENCE

Those who leave large or small sums to accumulate for posterity one or more centuries hence may have considered they were actually doing something for civilization, but many more are of the opinion that far greater benefits could have been obtained through the immediate employment of such funds in the bettering of present-day civilization. If civilization must wait for improvement until it is able to obtain the financial assistance from such a fund it may be in want many times before it is rescued.

An Oklahoma woman has left a fortune of $600,000 to be retained for a period of 500 years and kept at compound interest until such a time as it is estimated it will have reached a point which exceeds the present national wealth and then be spent on homes for crippled children, parks, playgrounds and used in aiding poor whites.

What is the situation going to be 500 years from now? Are there going to be any deserving whites? Will there be any call for homes for crippled children? Will interest be centered in parks and playgrounds, or will the people be devoting their interest to castles in the air, flying vehicles and undreamed-of developments?

It will, of course, be a pleasing and remunerative job for someone to look after such a fund for the next 500 years, and if the task could be kept in one family there might be several other foundations created in the meantime for the elimination of all poor and the establishment of an actual Utopia. What the situation may be 500 years from now may be judged by the change that has taken place in the last 500 years and the rapidity with which changes are being made in this day and generation. In 500 years civilization may have long since become perfect.

EDWARD W. BOK

An example of what can be accomplished by the young man who has the ambition and the right disposition is impressively disclosed in the life of Edward W. Bok. He wasn't born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth. He did not come of a family of affluence or influence. He was not even native born but came here as an immigrant, set to work at the humble task of messenger boy, displayed an interest in whatever he did, got interested in bigger and more important things and finally landed in the chair of the editor-in-chief of the Ladies' Home Journal.

It was his ability, his grasp of the situation, his demonstration of what could be accomplished, that scored for him. There was an opportunity for such a person as he proved himself to be and he made the most of it. He was willing to shoulder large tasks and large responsibilities. He got and held the attention of a great group of readers in this country and he left an impress upon the Journal that will not easily be removed. He, in fact, became a part of it with the marriage with the daughter of the great magazine publisher.

He was most influential in his writings, a philanthropist who has backed many a good cause and whose interest it was never hard to arouse in connection with worthy movements. Not only through his magazine but as a speaker he became a widely-known figure and to the nation, as well as to Pennsylvania and Philadelphia, his death means a distinct loss. The list of his benefactions is long and the record which he has made stands out most conspicuously as that of a successful man, one who had made the most of his opportunities and generously devoted them to the good of mankind.

EDITORIAL NOTES

January has already awakened an interest in the 1930 bathing suit.

There's nothing about a hot wave in January that is cheering to the iceman.

Every lapse on the part of winter is certain to mean that it will make up for it later on.

The man on the corner says: Are you thinking about opening your cottage at the seashore for the season?

The reputation of the senate is getting to be such that good men are not fascinated by the chance to become a member of it.

Mirrors are asked for West Point horsemen to show them how they look when riding. Is that preliminary to an order for compacts?

While ex-President Coolidge has declared against golf and a preference for walking, it doesn't mean that he is going to hoof it on his trip to Florida.

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN.

Ernestine sank down into the lawn chair, stretched her arms above her head and her legs out before her and sighed with comfort.

"It's funny," she commented, "how your ideas change. I used to think that it would be the grandest thing on earth if my mother and Enright's mother got acquainted and were good friends because it seems to me when two families are congenial it is very nice—especially if the girl knows the boy—well, you know what I mean!

"So when my mother and Enright's played bridge at the same table all one afternoon I was terribly excited. Enright told me the next day at school that his mother thought mine was lovely and I told him that my mother had said she was so much impressed with his mother.

"And then he said that his folks had a habit when they liked people of inviting them to come over for Sunday night tea and of course if they did that they would include me. Right away we began planning what we could do. It seemed perfectly providential the way it was working out and we were so absorbed in getting things arranged.

"You see, Enright's people have a place right on the edge of a small river and he has a canoe. And they have riding horses and a four-hole golf course and everything. You can see the possibilities. The unfortunate thing was that I bubbled over about it when the invitation did come and mother went right up in the air.

"She said I was old enough to behave like a lady when invited out and that the least I could do for my hostess was to act as though I were having a good time doing the things she intended me to do rather than running off with her son for the outdoors. It's the funniest thing—my family always are pointing out that I am old enough to behave myself but not nearly old enough to use my own judgment about affairs.

"I suppose she thought Enright and I would have a perfectly good time sitting listening to our fathers talk stocks and bears and wildcats and our mothers tell about how hard it is to get a really good cook these days. It really is better not to argue with mother, just to let her get distracted doing something else. I find that we girls really have a broader outlook and can see things on both sides while parents are perfectly fierce the way they stick to one point of view.

"So after my family and I arrived Enright and I hung around politely quite a time, maybe fifteen minutes—and then he gave me the high sign and we just naturally slid out a French door into the garden. We tried golf first—but my club slipped or something and after I had sent a ball plumb through a glass roof in the new hothouse we got kind of tired of the game and anyhow, Enright had snapped off the head of his driver.

"It was an old driver but he said that it was his father's pet and he seemed quite nervous about it. So I suggested that we go riding. It is always well to get a person's mind distracted from any worry, don't you think? There was nobody around the stables and while Enright was looking for a saddle I saw the duckiest horse with a star on his forehead and a very deceiving kind eye.

"So I untied it and led it out—and the minute it sniffed the open air what did it do but push me over with its hip and gallop straight through the peony bed with the most horrible results. It looked as though a Kansas cyclone had mowed down a jungle.

"Enright said it was still light enough for a grand canoe ride. I think it is so romantic just to trail your hand in the water as you float along so I was trailing mine—and I hit a snag of some sort. The next thing I knew we were overboard in water up to our necks. We seemed to be standing on a hump in the river bed and Enright yelled to hang onto the snag and not to move for my life because he had heard the water was ten feet deep and he wouldn't take the responsibility of swimming in with me.

"So we stood there. It was about 8 o'clock when they found us and they seemed terrifically mad. When they asked why we didn't come ashore we said we didn't dare—and then Enright's father shouted that the river wasn't more than three feet deep anywhere. So we walked in."

Ernestine frowned reminiscently. "You really don't enjoy a supper much when you're dripping wet," she mourned. "And anyhow, the supper was all dried up and hot and cold where it shouldn't have been by the time we got to it. I guess maybe it is just as well if your mothers don't know each other!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—If memory serves, President Hoover's message to congress outlined some eight projected new commissions he had in mind.

They were all in addition to existing machinery, like the law enforcement body, set up since Mr. Hoover came into office. The first of the new lot to reach a stage of legislative activity was the Haitian matter.

Now, if you look over the doings in the interior department by that other noted Stanfordite, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, since he became secretary, you notice quite formidable numbers of departmental commissions, and the like created by him.

The long, slender ex-president of Stanford has had commissions, conferences, surveys or committees dealing with child welfare, public health, illiteracy, national education, reclamation economics, education in national parks, better homes, unification of pension and war relief activities, radio education and probably other subjects.

Two of A Kind.

Turn to President Hoover's own official biography as printed in the Congressional Directory. That means it is more or less an autobiography. You find it mentions his service on nearly a score of commissions, councils and committees as the outstanding points of his public career.

Quite clearly, these two old time college chums think much alike about the way to get things done. No doubt they mapped out fine programs of what they would do "if I were king" way back in those college days.

Hoover was a "soph" and Wilbur a "frosh" when they first met, due to the fact that one collected the other's laundry on commission as a means of paying his way through college.

Sophomores and freshmen are not generally supposed to find much in common; but these two did. And they talked, talked, talked, as is the way with collegians.

Now one is president and the other interior secretary. Without doubt the elaboration of the Hoover-Wilbur commission treatment for departmental, national and international problems is in line with what they have talked about all the nearly two-score years of their intimate friendship.

A Thought With Age.

The Bystander can bring direct evidence of this. When Dr. Wilbur was invited to address the governor's conference at Boise last July, he accepted although he knew he was likely to be heckled about his oil conservation policies. A friend of the Bystander's traveling with the secretary asked how he expected to deal with that situation.

"I'll talk to them so fast they won't have time to jump on me," Wilbur grinned.

"About what?"

"About transferring administration of public lands to the states in which the lands are located."

"But that's rather a startling proposal," the secretary's companion commented. "Have you talked it over with the president, by any chance?"

"Not recently," Dr. Wilbur said. "I did not need to. We've been talking about it for 35 years."

YOUR HEALTH

Plastic Surgery, the Net Sort.

By Dr. Joseph Safian, Plastic Surgeon
Beth David Hospital, New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A disfigured face is often the cause of extreme sensitiveness or dejection, akin to a feeling of shame, on the part of young people, and has been known to drive a girl into the company of undesirable associates because those who would have formed "her crowd" found it hard to accept her as a close friend.

This sort of tragedy is no longer necessary, for plastic surgery can correct the cause. It is immaterial whether the disfigurement has been produced by an accidental injury or whether it is the natural result of excessive growth of bone and cartilage resulting in a large prominent nose. It can be corrected by plastic surgeons so that normal harmony of the various features of the face is restored.

Plastic surgery had its crude beginning in the middle ages but made little progress until exclusion of germs and later complete asepsis became recognized as an essential factor in eliminating the greatest danger in surgery—infection.

The World war left in its wake thousands of young men whose faces had been shattered by shrapnel and who could not return to the peaceful pursuits of civil life without causing a feeling of horror and disgust among their fellowmen. The most skilful surgeons in the world were called upon to use their surgical knowledge and ingenuity to restore the shattered features of those brave soldiers who would otherwise be doomed to a life of seclusion. Great progress was made in improving the technique and evolving newer methods, until today, plastic surgery has attained the recognition of the medical profession as a specialized type of surgery, requiring artistic skill, besides thorough surgical training.

Almost any type of nasal deformity can be corrected by plastic surgeons without pain or danger of complications, providing the operations are performed in a regular hospital and under proper surgical conditions. Incompetent treatment is worse than none at all, but the most reliable surgeons are usually on the staff of a regular hospital and are known, by reputation, by your family doctor. And they, although few in number, are "working wonders" for the victims of facial disfigurement.

The Indignation of Chatterer.

How much depends on point of view!
What's right to me is wrong to you.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

It was just after dark that Farmer Brown's Boy took down the clothesline between the clothespost and a corner of the corncrib. His eyes twinkled. Yes, sir, his eyes twinkled as he took down that clothesline. He knew that Chatterer the Red Squirrel had by this time gone to bed, so would know nothing about the removal of that clothesline until morning.

"I wonder what the little scamp will say tomorrow when he discovers that his bridge has disappeared," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "Probably he will say plenty. I think I'll have to be around tomorrow morning when Chatterer makes the discovery. He's been using this bridge for some time. I don't suppose it has entered his funny little head that anything is likely to happen to this bridge."

But after a bit Sammy grew tired and flew away

So the next morning Farmer Brown's Boy got up extra early. He was up at break of day, peeping out of a window from which he could watch the clothespost nearest to the corncrib. He didn't have to wait long. He saw a lively small figure come darting across the yard and scurry up to the top of the clothespost. It was Chatterer. Then Farmer Brown's Boy laughed aloud. On the top of the clothespost Chatterer stopped abruptly. For a long minute he stood there quite motionless. He had discovered that something was wrong. Then he began to frantically run around on all sides of that clothespost and up and down it. He was looking for his bridge. He was looking for the clothesline which had been his bridge across to the corncrib.

Not finding it, Chatterer finally climbed to the top of the clothespost and began to scold. My, my, my, how his tongue flew! He didn't care who heard him. He was in such a rage that his tongue fairly tripped over itself. Of course, he didn't know who had taken the clothesline away, so he didn't know who to blame. That made no difference. He jerked his tail until Farmer Brown's Boy began to wonder if that tail wouldn't ache for the rest of the day. And every time he jerked his tail, he said something unpleasant about the one who had taken away his bridge. He made such a racket that presently Sammy Jay came over to see what it was all about. Then Sammy, seeing no mutual enemy and not knowing the cause of Chatterer's lost temper, began to make fun of Chatterer and call him names, as Sammy dearly loves to do. Of course, this didn't improve Chatterer's temper at all. But after a bit Sammy grew tired and flew away.

Presently Black Pussy the Cat came out of the barn where she had spent the night. You know, there is a little doorway left especially for Black Pussy, so that she can go in and out of the barn as she pleases. Black Pussy was hardly full awake. She stretched and yawned and began to sharpen her claws on a piece of wood that lay nearby. Then she became aware of the noise Chatterer was making. He hadn't seen her at all. Black Pussy's tail began to twitch. She crouched close to the ground and began to creep toward that clothespost. Presently she reached the foot of it. Even then Chatterer did not see her. He was blinded to everything by his rage.

Now, Black Pussy can climb when she has to. It really wasn't very much of a climb to the top of that clothespost. Black Pussy made a quick scramble of it. Chatterer's scolding stopped abruptly. He looked over the edge of the post to discover Black Pussy almost to him. He didn't hesitate a second. He made a flying leap out into the air right over Black Pussy's head. And when he struck the ground he scampered for the nearest tree and was safely up it before Black Pussy had decided what to do. There Chatterer's tongue began to go again, but this time his anger was directed at Black Pussy.

GEOGRAPHERS MEET TO HEAR NEW IDEAS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 9—(AP)—The "new geography" is to receive serious attention when the Association of American Geographers convenes at Ohio State university December 30, for its annual three-day meeting.

Geography as a science has long since broken the bonds that held it to a treatment of boundaries and topography.

It has extended into fields of commerce and trade until today climate, habits of peoples in all parts of the world, interpretations of environment and the relation to nations and races of the lands they inhabit are important factors in determining the feasibility of trade between nations.

This phase is to be discussed by Miss Helen Strong, geographer in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce at Washington. Miss Strong will explain why large loan companies, before approving loans to foreign countries and corporations, make a study of the geographical possibilities of the thing for which the money is desired. Such concerns now employ expert geographers.

W. L. G. Joerg, of the American Geographic society is to discuss the significance of the Antarctic expedition in 1819 of Fabian Gottlieb von Bellingshausen, the Russian explorer, who in that year was assigned by the Emperor Alexander to the command of an exploring expedition to the south polar regions.

He traversed the Antarctic circle, and later penetrated to latitude 70 degrees, south; where he discovered and named Peter island and Alexander land. His discussion probably will lead to a reference of the Byrd expedition.

Make the World a Little Better

Make the world a little better!
  As you journey day by day
Share some blessing with another—
  Lift some stone from out the way;
Speak a word of consolation
  To some mirthless misanthrope;
Heal some hurt or soothe some sorrow—
  If you have not gold—give hope!

Make the world a little better!
  As you mingle in the throng
Spare a tear for him that sorrows—
  Cheer the weary with a song.
Should you overtake a pilgrim,
  Fainting on the sterile slope,
Wake his failing courage somehow—
  If you have not gold—give hope!

Make the world a little better!
  All the while you bide therein;
Break some captive's galling fetter,
  Lift some sinking heart from sin.
All of human resolution
  Men require if they would cope
With life's grief and disillusion—
  If you have not gold—give hope!

ROBT. S. ROSS CONTINUES BIG WORK AT SCHENECTADY

Of a former Norwich Y. M. C. A. general secretary, the Schenectady, N. Y., Union-Star of Monday said:

Speaking at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Zonta club at the Hotel Van Curler today, Robert S. Ross, in charge of the Americanization project of the General Electric company, gave a talk on the work of his organization in Americanizing the various groups of foreign born with whom they had established contact.

In speaking of the work of the General Electric company's Americanization unit, Mr. Ross said that 1,724 employes have been assisted to full U. S. citizenship since the unit was organized and that 2,500 others have been helped in the preliminary steps and have made their declaration of intention.

"For many years the General Electric company has maintained an Americanization office in the Schenectady works to assist its employes from other countries who desire to become citizens of these United States.

"Those who have come from non-English speaking nations have also been furnished with courses of study in the English language and information about the government and institutions of this country."

There are four courses of study and all the teachers are volunteers.

"The opportunities for service in the Schenectady plant are extensive because of the number of foreign born themselves, also on account of relatives still on the other side who are desirous of coming to America. Fully 7,000 people or about 30 per cent of the employes in the Schenectady General Electric company were born in other countries. Of this total, 60 per cent have become citizens of the United States.

"The present number of aliens is divided into several main groups. Ten per cent are from Germany, 20 per cent from English-speaking countries, 30 per cent from Poland, and 35 per cent from Italy. Other countries, each of which is represented by more than 50 employes, are Austria, Spain and Russia. The total number of different countries where employes were born is 40. More than half of the aliens, however, have taken the first steps in the process of naturalization and are waiting the required time to petition for final papers."

NOLLES ON CHARGES OF LIQUOR TRANSPORTATION

Absolute nolles were entered in the cases of Paul Anthony and Charles Sabara, both of Thames street, charged with transportation of liquor, when they were presented in the city court Thursday morning. Judge Arthur F. Libby made the decision in favor of the accused as he felt that the contraband in their possession at the time of their arrest was for their personal use only. The two men were arrested on Christmas eve by State Police Officer John Smith of the Groton barracks as they were about to leave the Sabara residence in Anthony's machine. In the car was found four gallons of anisette, concealed in a fruit basket.

According to the testimony given by Anthony the liquor had been bought for $30 by Sabara, at his request, from a man who drove a Rhode Island registered machine. The liquor, secreted in a fruit basket, was left at the home of Sabara by the Rhode Island man, the name of whom neither of them knew. The contraband was to have been served at a Christmas party to be given by Anthony at his home. As a result of the seizure, 40 of his friends, who came from Newport, Fall River, Jewett City and other places, had to go without their liquor. Several witnesses also testified as to the excellent character of Anthony.

WITNESSES IN ARSON TRIAL CLAIM STRONG KEROSENE ODOR IN BUILDING

Paul Salamucha, owner of Union hall building on the corner of Sixth and North Main streets, went on trial here Thursday morning in the criminal superior court before Judge C. L. Avery on the charge of setting fire to the building on the night of June 17, 1929. The fire was discovered about 15 minutes before midnight and was under the stage in the hall on the third floor of the building. It was extinguished by the firemen before it had done any great damage.

When court adjourned for the day at 5 o'clock in the afternoon to take up the trial again this (Friday) morning after the short calendar session, all the evidence for the state was in, except as to showing the amount of insurance carried, mortgage on the property, taxes and interest due. It was understood that these would be shown by stipulation between State Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Attorneys G. C. Morgan and T. J. Kelly, counsel for Salamucha.

The state's claim is that Salamucha set fire to the place by the use of kerosene, scattering it under the stage. The line of cross-examination of witnesses indicated that the defense would attempt to show that the fire was probably started by cigarettes that might have dropped through a hole in the stage floor and set fire to an old drop curtain and a screen that were in the space under the stage.

The court room benches were filled with spectators when the trial opened with State Attorney Brown calling Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher to the stand to explain a plan of the third floor of the Union hall building and seven photographs of the premises which he had taken a few days after the fire.

The civil engineer had a long session on the stand and was followed by George Toczko and Joe Sluzinski, who are partners in the grocery business at 207 Central avenue.

Salamucha in Alleyway

Toczko told of their going in their truck to look for Salamucha just after 11 o'clock, driving the truck to a point in front of Salamucha's boarding place at Central avenue and Fourth street. They blew the auto whistle several times but no one answered. Then Toczko got out and shouted through his hands up at the window. He got no answer and went around to the back door and saw something moving in the corner near the shed. "That you, Paul?" said Toczko. There was no answer. Then Toczko asked again, according to his testimony, and Salamucha came into the alley way, answering with a grunt.

"Don't you know there is a fire in Union hall?" was the question Toczko put to Salamucha, to which the accused man answered, "No." "We didn't talk much because Paul is a slow talker," the witness testified. While they were there together Sergt. Delaney came and took Salamucha away.

Sluzinski gave testimony corroborating his partner about looking for Salamucha. He drove the truck away before Salamucha appeared to Toczko in the alley way.

Joseph Marciniak of Hallville, a weaver in the mill there, whose daughter was married in Union hall on the day of the fire, testified that he was at the hall from 6 in the morning to 11:30 in the evening. Only Paul Salamucha was there when he left, Paul being on the second floor at that time. The witness said Paul wasn't drunk.

On cross-examination, Attorney Morgan tried to find out what the liquid refreshments were at the wedding. The witness said they were soft drinks. When he left the building, he went by automobile and was accompanied by members of his family.

Julian Marciniak, son of the preceding witness, a spinner in the Hallville mill, said he was at the wedding reception and went out of the building about 10 o'clock, staying around outside talking, and went home with his father about 11:30. He went home with his father at 11:30 and hadn't seen anything of a fire there.

Attorney Morgan asked the witness if he had seen anyone smoking in the hall, but the witness said the smoking was on the second floor where the refreshments were served but he saw none in the dance hall on the third floor.

Capt. Blackburn Testifies

Capt. John E. Blackburn of the Norwich fire department, who is attached to Engine No. 2 at the Greeneville fire station, testified that the alarm for the Union hall fire was received at 11:46 p. m. The reflection through the glass on the top floor showed that this was all ablaze. He told of locating the fire under the stage on the dance hall floor. The witness gave it as his opinion that the fire started under the stage. There was a heavy odor of kerosene in the smoke that rolled out when the firemen first broke open the door to get into the building. In cans under the stage, which were found to have water in them after the fire, there was the odor of kerosene.

Captain Blackburn identified a blackened tin can which was shown him as being one that was passed up to him through the trap door of the stage and contained water with the odor of kerosene. The fireman said he judged the fire had been going 15 minutes, judging from the amount of charring to the timbers. He said the way the fire crept along under the stage caused him to believe this under part had been saturated with kerosene.

On cross-examination, Attorney Morgan brought out that at 3:52 in the afternoon, the Greeneville station had been called for a fire on the roof of the building adjoining Union hall. Captain Blackburn attributed this fire to cigarette butts thrown from the Union hall building.

Attorney Morgan inquired of the witness particularly as to the existence of a post hole through the stage floor at a point over the seat of the fire. Captain Blackburn said he saw no such hole but there were eye-bolt holes in the floor of the stage.

Gave the Alarm

Edward J. Nevins of 28 Golden street, who runs a news store across the street from Union hall, said he locked up on the night of the fire at 11:30 on the night of the fire and was with John Gromko when they saw the fire in the hall at 11:45, and he gave the alarm at the fire station and to Sergt. Matthew Delaney at the Greeneville police station.

John Gromko, who runs a meat and grocery store in Poquetanuck, said he saw Salamucha close the Union hall building, lock the doors and walk off home about 11:30 on the night of the fire. About 15 minutes after Salamucha left, Gromko said he saw the fire.

To Attorney Morgan on cross-examination, Gromko said he saw people smoking cigarettes in the dance hall at the wedding. When Salamucha left the building, he walked off in an unhurried manner, the witness said.

Joseph Gromko of Hallville testified that he attended the Marciniak wedding for a short time in the evening. He corroborated his brother's testimony about seeing Salamucha lock up the Union hall building and seeing the flames afterwards.

To Attorney Morgan, the witness said he saw people smoking in the dance hall but couldn't recall whether the musicians, who were on the stage, smoked.

Found Salamucha at Alleyway

Sergt. Matthew J. Delaney of the Norwich police force testified that it was at 16 minutes to 12, at the Greeneville fire station, he heard someone call out "Pull the alarm."

The sergeant testified to going to look for Salamucha after the fire, at the request of the fire chief. He found Salamucha coming out of the alleyway at Salamuchas' house with Toczko. This was about 12:15. The sergeant placed Salamucha under arrest about three hours later.

Found Blackened Tin Can

Forest T. Lewis, a member of the Norwich fire department, identified the blackened tin can which he found under the Union hall stage with water and the kerosene odor in it. The kerosene odor was very strong at the fire he said. He got the kerosene odor on the wood and a piece of a curtain under the stage.

Deputy Fire Chief Dennis J. Brennan testified to his response to the fire alarm and the methods used in fighting the fire and told of Captain Blackburn giving to him the can with the smell of kerosene on the water in the can. There was a strong odor of kerosene in the smoke.

Attorney Morgan asked the witness whether the odor might not have come from a drop curtain under the stage and some old paint cans which the fire had reached. The witness said it was a different smell from turpentine.

Secured Charred Pieces

Chief Henry R. Taft of the Norwich fire department told of arriving at the fire within six minutes after receiving the alarm at his home. He told of what was done and of the finding of the can containing about a quart of liquid which was water and kerosene. Charred pieces of wood, mortar and cardboard, all with strong odor of kerosene, were secured at the fire.

Chief Taft testified to questioning Salamucha later, but Salamucha had little to say. About 12:30, Salamucha was brought to police headquarters for questioning by Capt. Thomas Murphy, but didn't have much to say. All the burned area was to the south of the trap door and there was no burning on top of the stage, the fire chief declared.

Questioned Salamucha

Capt. Thomas Murphy of the Norwich police department who was on duty at headquarters the night of the fire, testified to examining Salamucha at headquarters. According to the witness, Salamucha told him he was in the yard because he had forgotten his keys and was going back to the hall after them and had been throwing stones at the window to wake up the people so he could get in.

Sergeant Delaney was recalled to the stand and told of going back to Salamucha's boarding place, on orders from Captain Murphy to see how long it would take to get a response there. He said a dog barked and a woman put her head out of the window at once when he knocked.

Investigated Place of Fire

County Investigator William Lewis, attached to the prosecuting attorney's office, told of emptying the liquid from the blackened tin can and putting it into a glass jar. Both the tin can and the jar with the liquid in it were put in as exhibits. The liquid smells strongly of kerosene now, the witness said, and described making investigation at the scene of the fire and securing pieces of plaster and charred pieces of wood containing the odor of kerosene. These were put in jars which were introduced as exhibits. The witness said the rear wall under the stage was saturated with kerosene.

Officer James B. Ryan of the Norwich police department said he saw Salamucha at 11 o'clock in the Union hall building, eating a hot dog. The officer was on duty at the building during the evening from 7 to 11:20 o'clock. He saw no smoking in the dance hall.

Mrs. Anna Miaszejewski of 201 Central avenue, at whose home Salamucha had boarded for the last nine years, testified that she didn't know anything about the fire until Sergeant Delaney knocked on the door. She said she hadn't heard any automobile horn or anyone throw stones at the windows.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Miaszejewski admitted that Salamucha had sometimes waked her by throwing stones at the window.

APPEALS LOCATION OF POLE IN ROBBINS COURT

Appeal to the public utilities commission of the state has been taken by William J. and Nellie Haggerty, residents on Robbins court, in protest over the relocation of electric light poles in the court by the Norwich gas and electric department.

The appeal asks for a rehearing and review of the facts regarding the electric light poles in Robbins court. Recently the gas and electrical commissioners held a hearing relative to relocating three poles on Robbins court, after John Wilson had requested the department to remove the pole from his property on the grounds that it obstructed his driveway to his garage.

By the relocation made, the gas and electric department planned to locate one of the poles in the curb line of the street opposite the corner of property of William J. and Nellie C. Haggerty and property of Asa and Annie Holland, which caused the protest from Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty.

BUSHINGER BOUND OVER IN COLCHESTER COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 9.—Samuel Bushinger, alias "Sammy the Jew," of Newark, N. J., said to be the leader of the gang of thieves who stole the automobiles and a large quantity of dresses from local establishments June 15 last, was presented before Justice of the Peace Charles F. Brown and Grand Juror Myron R. Abel in a session of the local justice court held at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon. He pleaded guilty to four counts of theft and burglary and was bound over by Judge Brown to the criminal superior court now in session before Judge Christopher L. Avery at Norwich. Pending raising of $15,000 bonds, he was taken by Officer W. E. MacKenzie of Groton barracks to the Norwich jail. It is understood that he will be presented before Judge Avery early next week.

The four counts to which Bushinger pleaded guilty were: Breaking and entering the Hyman London garage; theft of a 1926 Hudson brougham from the London garage; breaking and entering the Cohen Bros. dress factory, and theft of nearly 1,000 dresses and 3,000 yards of piece goods from the Cohen Bros. factory. He, however, pleaded not guilty to theft of the new Dodge sport coupe from the Arthur H. Chapman garage.

Investigation has brought out the fact that, prior to the date of the thefts, Bushinger had boarded for several days at the Lapping summer hotel on upper North Main street. A few days before the crime was committed, he, in company with a woman, had visited the Cohen Bros. dress factory under the pretense of purchasing dresses.

Bushinger is understood to be the last of the gang to be captured, his arrest and that of Louis Russo, also of Newark, being the result of much clever sleuthing by State Policemen Busch and MacKenzie of Groton barracks. They wormed their way into the secrets of the underworld in Newark by posing there as gunmen, finally securing the information that led to the arrest of the two men, Russo being arrested in Newark about two months ago and Bushinger about a week ago in Philadelphia. Russo was sentenced last Tuesday afternoon by Judge C. L. Avery in the criminal superior court at Norwich, to from 2 to 5 years in state prison for the part he took in the theft of the automobiles and dress goods.

STATE STILL TRYING TO GET M'COOK LAND

Negotiations between the state tuberculosis commission and the heirs of the late Eliza S. McCook are today no closer to the proposed acquisition by the state of approximately five and one-half acres of land having a shore frontage of 382 feet at Crescent Beach, for the purpose of erecting a new building for tubercular children at seaside, than before.

The tuberculosis commission at its meeting on Monday considered a communication from Hugh M. Alcorn, of counsel for the McCook heirs, in which no definite reply was made as to whether the heirs are willing to sell the land, said to be needed by the state for the new building, but in which a renewal is made of the offer to deed to the state 60 feet of the shore property. The commission, through Colonel Colonel Charles H. Allen, made public on Tuesday the correspondence which has passed during the last two months in the latest effort by the state to obtain the property through purchase if possible.

On Nov. 26 the state commission wrote to Attorney Alcorn inquiring if the McCook heirs would sell a certain described tract of land.

Expresses McCook Attitude.

On December 4, a communication signed by Attorneys Hugh M. Alcorn and Charles Welles Gross, was forwarded to Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the commission, as follows: "Our clients of the McCook family have expressed from the outset, and therefore, we feel ourselves authorized to confirm on their behalf their readiness to carry out the agreement concluded with your commission in the spring of 1923 to convey sixty feet of land next adjoining your sanitarium in accordance with your proposal made at that time. In that letter, you will recall, you requested a conveyance of 'the small section of their property, approximately fifty feet wide that adjoins the Seaside and that lies west of the ravine on the McCook property,' committing yourselves 'to refrain from attempting by any condemnation proceedings or other forcible measure from securing for the state this or any other portion of the McCook property.'

"Whether or not our clients would not be willing to conclude another agreement with your commission, we are unable to say. The heirs are widely scattered and it would require some time and effort to communicate with all of them on the subject.

"During the last seven years the McCooks have been subjected to a line of pursuit in regard to this property which is clearly vexatious and unreasonable. They have had to contend, first with a move to take all of their property; next with a move to take about 200 feet of it; then an agreement was made with your commission to settle the controversy on the basis of sixty feet and this agreement was later repudiated; then followed a suit by your commission to condemn 200 feet, which the vote of your commission implies is ample for the needs of the state; then, while this suit was pending, the legislative act of 1925 was passed supplanting your commission by a special agent of the state and directing him to acquire five and one-half acres, carrying a beach frontage of about 390 feet; then came the withdrawal of the commission's suit; then came the suit by Mr. Brown under the act of 1925; then the agreement made with Mr. Brown by authority of the governor to settle the suit brought by him upon the basis of 140 feet, which agreement was likewise repudiated, but not by Mr. Brown; and now your letter asking the McCooks to sell five and one-half acres with a frontage on the beach of 382 feet.

"In short, we have had to deal with the legislature, with the governor, with your commission, with the attorney general, with the commissioner of finance and control, and with Mr. Brown, all the individuals mentioned presuming to speak with authority for the state. And now the McCooks find themselves again invited to deal with your commission and apparently, facing a third condemnation suit in case the negotiations you suggest fail.

"We speak of this because, in view of the history of this case incompletely outlined here, we feel that our clients are entitled to know definitely with whom they are to deal and whether or not the negotiations you have now initiated and all proceedings relating to this subject are henceforth to be conducted with your commission or with some one else, and whether these negotiations may be carried on by us without prejudice to the rights of our clients under the defenses reviewed by the supreme court in the case of State vs. McCook, 109 Conn., pages 639, 640, and particularly without prejudice in their rights under the agreements referred to. On these points we await your advices."

Letters Continue.

To which the commission under date of December 11, replied as follows: "In reply to the letter dated December 4, 1929, signed by Charles Welles Gross and yourself, we would say that this commission, as you undoubtedly know, is charged by law with the acquisition, maintenance and management for the state of its tuberculosis sanitoria.

"In our communication of November 26th addressed to you, we asked whether your clients, the heirs of the late Eliza S. McCook, would sell to the state of Connecticut the parcel of land described therein; this land would be used as an addition to the site for a new sanitarium to be built at Niantic.

"This commission is duly authorized to negotiate for the purchase of this land and is willing to pay a reasonable even a liberal price for it. We fully appreciate that all negotiations between the owners of this land and ourselves will be carried on without prejudice to the rights of either party."

Mr. Alcorn's latest reply was brief, and follows: "Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of the 10th instant. Your reply overlooks our continued willingness to deed sixty feet as contemplated in the agreement concluded with you in 1923. May we have your answer to this?"

POSTPONEMENT IS TAKEN IN SHAUGHNESSY CASE

In the case of James K. Shaughnessy, of Pomfret, which is before the criminal superior court on the charge of embezzlement, postponement till the May term of court was ordered by Judge C. L. Avery here Thursday morning. This recommendation was made by the state attorney who said he wished to have a civil matter in this connection cleared up first.

Shaughnessy is charged with embezzlement of funds from the Plant estate of which he was formerly head of the poultry department. He has a civil suit against the estate in which he seeks an accounting of profits.

Presented Caps To Sanatorium

A volunteer service is rendered the patients at Uncas-on-Thames by several New London women in the knitting of caps which are sent every year at Christmas time to the hospital.

Mrs. C. W. Brown, of Broad street, that city, who is in charge of the contributions, sent more than 200 caps made during the year to the sanatorium last Christmas. She has received a letter of appreciation from Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of the institution.

Radio to Greeneville Youth

The handsome Grebe console radio, valued at $244, which has been on exhibition at the Broadway theatre for the past month, was awarded Thursday evening before a house crowded to capacity, to Joseph O'Connell of 14 Durfey street, by the Hanover-Curland Co., donors of the magnificent gift.

Manager Fitz of the Broadway and Harry Rosenberg, representing the Hanover-Curland Co., had little Frances Bruckner, a sweet little lass of four, to assist them in making the award. Little Frances received a handsome box of candy from the theatre management in honor of her stage debut.

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

JOHNSON WILL TAKE ONLY SMALL SQUAD ON SOUTHERN TRAINING TRIP

(By William H. Doherty, Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Walter Johnson will take south this year the smallest squad of baseball players in the history of the Nationals and will rely largely on the youngsters in his attempt to make the team a pennant contender.

Last year Washington played through a sensational winning streak in spring exhibition games, only to flop miserably when the victories began to count in the records. Fifth place with a record of 71 won and 81 lost was the final standing, despite the .600 clip displayed the last two months of the season.

Virtually the only solace was afforded by nosing out the Detroit Tigers, managed by Bucky Harris, who relinquished the Washington leadership to the Big Train.

But this is another year, and dyed in the wool fans who watched Johnson burn them over for a decade are confident he will find a winning combination. Known as a patient developer of young pitchers, Johnson's enthusiasm over Hadley, Liska, Brown and Burke is shared by capital fans.

Marberry alone of the regulars was up to his best last year, and better things are hoped for from Braxton, Jones and Thomas, the other experienced flingers.

Goslin's relatively woeful showing last season is another matter, and not so easily explained, for although hardly a beginner, he has not yet reached the doddering stage. Last year his stick work fell off 100 points from 1928, when he led the American league batters.

Whether the Goose will return to form is a question the big leader would like to have answered. He breathed a little easier when asked about Joe Judge and Sam Rice who played consistently well last year, and opined they "still are good ball players."

"Last year we were knocked clear out before we got going," Johnson said today. "We've got a batch of good ball players who are due to come through. The only question is, will they?"

Cronin at shortstop improved steadily last year, and with the veteran Bluege at third and Judge at first, is regarded an infield fixture. A battle is in prospect between Myer and Hayes at second, with the former conceded the better chance on account of his harder hitting.

McLeod, a rookie, and Boss are other candidates. In view of Judge's consistency it is expected that Boss, his understudy, might be placed out on 24 hour option.

Muddy Ruel, one of the best catchers in the league, again will bear the receiving burden. Rice in right, Goslin, left, and West, in center, compose the tentative outfield. Barnes may get the call over West if the latter fails to hit, but Johnson is going to give him every chance believing he has the makings of a great outfielder. George Loepp, Baltimore Oriole, also may see service in the outfield.

The squad of 30 men plans to leave February 25 for its new camp at Biloxi, Miss. There Johnson will begin worrying over other shortcomings displayed last year, notably the weak hitting against left handed pitchers. Meanwhile, he is hunting foxes and otherwise living the life of the gentleman farmer at his Maryland home.

TWO AMATEUR GOLF TEAMS MAY INVADE ENGLAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—English golfers may have to beat back two amateur team invasions from the United States this spring. The Walker cup matches are fixed for decision on British soil and a team of women golfers from the United States may support the challenge of the men stars.

Miss Glenna Collett, national champion, who is in New York on her way to Nassau to play in the women's invitation of the Bahamas, is awaiting word from Miss Joyce Wethered, the British women's champion. If Miss Wethered will attempt to assemble a British team, Miss Collett will set about the task of getting together a team of American women.

"Of course it will be entirely informal," said Miss Collett today. "We will be sponsored only by ourselves, but if we can arrange an international team match for this year, it may lead to an official arrangement later."

The champion has played very little golf since she won the championship for the fourth time last autumn.

One of the important subjects before the executive committee of the United States Golf association in advance of the annual meeting this week, is the selection of a captain for the Walker cup team to sail for England in late April. It is generally taken for granted that Robert T. Jones, Jr., who is captain of the 1928 team, will again be named.

At the annual session Saturday, Findlay S. Douglas, of New York, will be relected president, an unwritten rule calling for two more terms in the presidential chair. Mr. Douglas is completing his first term.

The green section of the U. S. G. A. meets tomorrow to discuss turf and technical problems with Wynant D. Vanderpool in the presiding chair.

MANDELL-QUINTERO BOUT OPENS SOUTHERN SEASON

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 9—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Manuel Quintero topped off training today for their ten round non-title fight here tomorrow night. The bout, to be held at the Miami Beach Kennel club arena, will open the series of major fistic attractions scheduled for Miami's 1930 season.

Both principals went through light workouts today. Both said they felt in fine shape.

Mandell was conceded an edge over his opponent, although many admitted the champion's lack of familiarity with left handers might cause him difficulties. He has been training with Sam Crosby, a southpaw, as the major part of his preparation.

Old Tom Sharkey, former heavyweight boxer and Pat Maguire, Daytona Beach, Fla., another old time heavy, will present a four-round exhibition as a feature of the card.

AMATEURS FAVOR NATIONAL OPEN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—National open tennis championships, as proposed by the United States Lawn Tennis association, are favored by a substantial majority of the top ranking amateur players of the country.

The results of an official questionnaire, made public today in the magazine Tennis, showed 36 out of 42 replies in favor of establishing a new title tournament, open to amateurs and professionals alike. All 36 expressed willingness to compete. Five replies were non-committal and only one negative.

The list of those endorsing the open championship plan includes George Lott and Wilmer Allison, members of the 1929 Davis cup team; Berkeley Bell, intercollegiate champion; and Richard N. Williams, former national champion and former Davis cup captain.

BATTALINO KNOCKS OUT VERDE IN THE THIRD

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 9—(AP)—Bat Battalino, making his first ring appearance since winning the world's featherweight championship from Andre Routis, knocked out Phil Verde, of Rochester N. Y., here tonight in the third round of a scheduled ten round fight. Battalino's title was not at stake.

Both fighters weighed 128 pounds. Battalino launched a two fisted attack which sent Verde to the canvas twice in the second round.

The champion continued his attack in the third round, pouring a succession of lefts and rights to Verde's jaw which brought the Rochester fighter down for the final count after two minutes and 25 seconds of fighting.

Verde was outclassed throughout the bout. He tried to make a fight of it, but the few blows he was able to connect with were ineffective. The champion brought him down for a count of nine late in the second round. Battalino followed his advantage and within a few seconds again floored the Rochester fighter. Battalino's second attack came too late, the bell saving Verde after he had taken a count of four.

Battalino missed often early in the first round. His punches gained precision and power as the round progressed, however, and he soon had Verde on the defensive.

The power of Battalino's punches dispelled for tonight at least, all of the pre-fight concern that had been felt by his followers over the fitness of his hands both of which were operated on after the Routis fight.

In the semi-final bout of eight rounds Eddie Lord, of Waterbury dropped a decision to Armando Scheckles, of Belgium. Lord weighed 133 3-4 pounds, the Belgian, 133 pounds.

Johnny Scalzi, Bridgeport, 131 3-4, easily outpointed Lou Murrelli, Torington, 134 3-4. Murrelli was floored for a count of one in the first.

A spirited rally in the last two rounds of a five round fight earned Rocky Raio, Hartford, 136 1-4 pounds, a close decision over Pat Duffy, Bridgeport, 134 3-4. In a second five round bout, Marty Fox, New York, 175 1-4, won a decision over Henry DeJulio, Bridgeport, 179. DeJulio took a count of nine in the first round.

Romeo Dubois and Harry Meyers, New Haven featherweights, met in a fast four rounder, the decision going to Dubois.

MICHIGAN GIVES SHIRES A CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 9—(AP)—The Michigan State Boxing commission today absolved Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires from any taint of irregularity in connection with an alleged attempt to "fix" a fight scheduled in Detroit recently with Battling Criss, of Rockwood, Mich.

The hearing held here today before the full commission was a continuation of one held in Detroit last Saturday with Commissioner James M. (Bingo) Brown, chairman, and Commissioner Henry Komrofsky, the only members present. The motion for Shires' exoneration was made by Commissioner Komrofsky. Chairman Brown previously had recommended that the commission take steps to clear Shires of any guilt in the attempt to persuade Criss to "take a dive."

Shires both today and last Saturday emphatically denied any connection with alleged "fixing" attempts.

The commission left the matter with the proviso that should future evidence reveal any connection with the alleged fixing on Shires' part he would be recalled for another hearing. Shires' statement that he will fight no more after his Boston engagement was accepted as binding.

Nessie Bloomenthal, Shires' manager; Benny Ray, Detroit promoter, and Scotty Strachen, Detroit fight manager, were suspended pending future investigation. It was said that if subsequent evidence warrants the matter may be placed in the hands of prosecuting officers.

DENTON PUTS KEICKHEFER OUT OF THE RUNNING

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Augie Keickhefer's hopes of competing in the national three cushion billiard play-off were shattered tonight as he bowed in defeat to Tiff Denton of Kansas City 50 to 36 in 83 innings. The Chicago southpaw's loss left the tournament in a tie between Champion Johnny Layton of St. Louis and Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, who meet in the deciding block tomorrow night.

Bruins Win Another

BOSTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—The Boston Bruins gained their 14th consecutive victory here tonight by nosing out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, in a loose game filled with sloppy hockey.

What a terrible thing a guilty conscience must be.

You know I spoke about the guilty way in which a woman would weigh herself on one of these penny-in-the-slot machines. Well, if all the women who have spoken to me about that piece weighed themselves every day it would keep those machines working eight hours a day.

Every woman seems to have taken that right straight home to herself—and how. It's got so that every time I speak to a woman I say, "No, I didn't mean you," even before she asks the question.

Now there's Helen and Marion, who are slender, and right away they think they're the ones I mean when I spoke of the girls who weigh 98 pounds soaking wet. They inform me very emphatically that their weight, wet or dry, is more than 98 pounds. Well, they oughta know, so why argue.

Then, there's Jennie, who is a plump little thing. Right away she accuses me of calling her a butterball, can you beat it? Far be it from me to cast reflections on anybody's weight or form for I'm no Venus myself. Us fat people must suffer in silence and alone.

And Irene. Irene swears I was watching her when she weighed herself the other evening. Well, it wasn't Irene I saw, I'm positive of that. But it might have been if she acts that way.

So you see how easy it is to start something when it was furtherest from your mind to pick on any individual person. Yet I can't convince them that I didn't mean anyone in particular and that I was referring only to a habit of the sex.

But at the same time I repeat that moss-grown adage, "That a guilty conscience needs no accuser?"

MAROONS NOSE OUT RANGERS IN ROUGH GAME

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—In one of the hardest and roughest games of New York's National Hockey league season, the Montreal Maroons beat out the New York Rangers tonight, 5 to 4. The victory gave the Maroons a three point margin of leadership in the league's international group.

Four successive goals, spaced at three minute intervals through the second period, gave the Maroons their margin and a desperate last minute attack could not overcome it. The Rangers scored twice in the final period but W. J. Phillips broke away from their closing five man drive long enough to tally what proved to be the deciding goal.

Phillips led the Montreal scoring with one goal in the second period as well as his winning counter. Munro, Northcott and Smith got the other Montreal tallies. The two Cooks, Frank Boucher and Heximer got a goal apiece for the Rangers.

EASTERN LEAGUE TO PLAY SCHEDULE OF 168 GAMES

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 9—(AP)—A playing schedule of 168 games, the longest ever attempted, was agreed upon for the 1930 season by Eastern league club owners at a special meeting, here today. Heretofore, the league has played no more than 154 contests, but the increased number was voted to make the split-season plan workable. The season will start on April 16, one week earlier than the tentative date agreed upon at a recent meeting here and will close September 14, covering a space of 22 weeks.

Each team will play 12 games with each other in each half of the season, six at home and six away. The break will come about July 4.

William E. Carey took over the office of league president at today's meeting, succeeding Herman J. Weisman, resigned. Carey's term is for one year.

HARVARD 1931 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE IS COMPLETED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 9—(AP)—The Harvard football schedule for 1931 was completed today, when William J. Bingham, director of athletics, announced that Bates would open the season on October 3 and that Holy Cross would come to the stadium a week before the final game with Yale. The complete schedule follows:

October 3, Bates; 10, New Hampshire; 17, Army, West Point; 24, University of Texas; 31, University of Virginia.

November 7, Dartmouth; 14, Holy Cross; 21, Yale.

Arrangements for all of the games except those with Bates and Holy Cross were completed before the close of the last football season. Next fall, Harvard will play Vermont, Springfield, Army, Dartmouth, William and Mary, Michigan, Holy Cross, and Yale at New Haven.

SKATING RACES TO BE HELD AT PARK

Many of the Norwich skating enthusiasts have asked for skating races and fancy skating competitions to be held at the park as well as the hockey games. Already work is under way to promote a skating race in the near future.

Small prizes in gold are to be given in several classes. The classes are as follows: Local West class open to all boys and men living on the west side of Norwich. Local East class open to all boys and men living on the east side of Norwich. Jr. Open class open to all boys fifteen years old or under. Open class open to all regardless of age or ability.

If those people interested in entering any of the classes will write, call on phone, or see S. M. Chase at 29 Ward St., Norwich they will be given full particuars concerning the entries.

BLACKHAWKS BATTLE TO 1 TO 1 TIE WITH COUGARS

DETROIT, Jan. 9—(AP)—A fighting Chicago Blackhawk team that refused to give up, gained a well-earned 1 to 1 tie with the Detroit Cougars in a wild National league hockey game here tonight, the Hawks driving in the tying goal with only 35 seconds to go in the final period.

Larry Aurie scored for the Cougars midway in the first period, and for nearly all of the next two periods it looked as though the Detroiters would extend their shutout record to three straight. Then Frank Ingram got Johnny Gottselig's pass and fired a slanting shot that bounded into the cage off Bill Beveridge's arm with only 36 seconds of the final period to go. There was no scoring in the overtime.

Jr. Track Meet at Detroit

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—The scene of the 1930 national junior indoor track and field championships has been shifted from Baltimore to Detroit, the Amateur Athletic union announced today.

The meet will be held Saturday, Feb. 22. The change was made because it was found impossible to secure a suitable date at the Fifth Regiment armory in Baltimore.

AMERICA'S GREATEST GOLFERS START IN LOS ANGELES $10,000 OPEN TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—(AP)—Down in Santa Monica canyon, where Riviera's rolling fairways and immaculate greens spread out over broad acres, America's greatest professional golfers will start tomorrow in the 72-hole journey that leads to the championship of the $10,000 Los Angeles open.

Led by MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., 128 other pros and amateurs will seek the gold and glory or both that goes with winning of one of the richest "money tournaments" in the world. Smith will be seeking his third successive title in this event. In 1928 he stroked his way to top honors at the Wilshire course. Last year he repeated at Riviera from an even stronger field. The club swinging talent that will oppose his efforts this year is the most imposing that has ever gathered for this classic. Twice winner, Mac Smith necessarily is one of the favorites. His game has reached that perfection which weeks of steady practice should bring on. But Smith's name is no greater this year to those who know their golf than many others who will try out their shots on the par 71, 6910 yard layout.

In the field is Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., youth who forged to the front last year with an amazing string of victories. Horton is considered a fine rough weather golfer. Rain in an almost steady downpour soaked the Riviera course today. The weather man forecasts more for tomorrow. If predictions follow true, the mob of par chasers will tee off on more even terms than a dry course would permit.

Weather conditions have brought several other contestants into the favored ranks. Olin Dutra of Santa Monica has proved himself a "mud horse" of more than ordinary ability. William "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of New York, is another who thrives on adverse conditions.

Other front liners include such notables as Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell, all former national open titleholders; Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico, present P. G. A. champion; the Espinosa brothers, Al and Abe, of Chicago; Harry Cooper of Buffalo and Bobby Cruickshank of New York. Cooper won the first Los Angeles open and Cruickshank clubbed his way to the title in the following year.

A few brilliant amateur players sprinkled throughout the list will add the touch that always appeals to the gallery when a simon pure match strikes with one who reaps his reward in a monetary way. Outstanding is George Von Elm, of Detroit, one time national amateur champion. Others include Captain A. Bullock Webster of Hollywood, former California amateur holder; Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles, and Fay and Lester Coleman, brothers from Culver City, Calif.

SHIRES TO LEAVE RING AFTER TONIGHT'S BOUT

BOSTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—The twice exonerated Arthur (The Great) Shires will probably bring his boxing career to a temporary halt here tomorrow night after he clashes with Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher, in a six round bout at the Boston Garden. Shires, according to information received here today, has already collected about $8,000 for his four ring engagements and is willing to quit the ring and devote all of his attention to playing first base for the Chicago White Sox when he boosts his off-season earnings with the $2,500 promised him for engaging Spohrer.

The latter has been training diligently here for the past week or so and threatens to make short work of Shires, whom he described as "the broadcasting first baseman."

The Shires-Spohrer go will be the semi-final to the 10-round clash between Ernie Schaaf and Al Friedman, rival Boston heavyweights.

TORONTO LEAFS RALLY IN LAST MINUTE TO WIN

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9—(AP)—A great last minute spurt enabled the Toronto Maple Leafs to overwhelm the Ottawa Senators 4 to 0 tonight, gaining revenge for two defeats earlier in the season and possession of third place in the international group of the National Hockey league.

Toronto scored three times in this final period burst with Ace Bailey getting two of the goals. Andy Blair scored the third. Art Smith put the Leafs ahead with a goal in the first period.

King Clancy, of Ottawa and Art Smith of Toronto drew major penalties for fighting in the last period.

AGGIES MEET YALE ON COURT FOR FIRST TIME

STORRS, Jan. 9—(AP)—For the first time in its history, Connecticut Agricultural college tomorrow night, will meet Yale in a major sport when the basketball teams of the two colleges play in New Haven.

A large number of the student body plans to accompany the Aggies on its trip.

Chubbuck, who has been ill for several days, is expected to take his place at center. Ryan and Darrow will play forwards and Duffy and Wilson will be at guards.

MORE THAN 30 INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—More than thirty persons were injured, four seriously, tonight, by four explosions in the partly demolished Globe theatre building at Market and Juniper streets, opposite city hall.

The blasts, which followed a small fire in the ruins of the building, are believed to have been caused by a spark dropping into an acetylene tank.

Crowds of homeward-bound office and store workers scattered in all directions at the first blast, but many were knocked to the ground by debris which was hurled high into the air. Many windows in city hall and other nearby buildings were shattered.

NARROW ESCAPES WHEN PLANE NOSED INTO DITCH

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 9—(AP)—Three passengers and a crew of four escaped injury today when a Boston bound tri-motored plane of the Colonial Air Transport Co., struck a soft spot in the runway and veering off to the right nosed into a ditch. Other than a fuselage rip the plane was undamaged.

Passengers and crew were transferred to another plane and proceeded to Boston without further mishap.

The plane was piloted by Harold Christensen. First reports that the plane broke in two were erroneous, officials of the company stated.

NOT GIVEN PERMISSION TO INSPECT THE BLACK DUCK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Efforts of Conrad W. Cooker to get permission from government officials to permit the Liberal Civic League of Boston to examine the Black Duck, the bootlegging schooner on which three men were killed and a fourth wounded when it attempted to escape from coast guard, had not been successful tonight.

DEMPSEY THINKS BUT LITTLE OF PRESENT HEAVIES

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 9—(AP)—Jack Dempsey thinks little of the present crop of heavyweights, and "may have a pot shot at one or two of them yet."

Here to referee a welterweight bout tonight between Farmer Joe Cooper and Ted Goodrich, the old Manassa Mauler brushed aside a question of whether he would return to the ring.

"Anything might materialize," he said. "If these birds don't get to mixing it up a little more lively, why, I may have a pot shot at one or two of them yet."

Dempsey thinks the boys are "ducking the issue."

"A champion should meet and beat them all or he shouldn't be champion," he said. "The heavyweights are spotting their matches instead of slamming their way through the division."

Dempsey, now a Chicago promoter, reached Atlanta early this morning and after a call on Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, went to the federal prison where he waved and called greetings to the prisoners as he walked through the corridors.

"We'd like to come and see you, Jack," one of the prisoners responded, "but since we can't do that we're glad you came to see us."

Atlanta business men were hosts at a luncheon for Dempsey which was attended by Bobby Jones, national open golf champion, and Young Stribling, Georgia heavyweight.

Dempsey spoke over a radio station this afternoon and appeared at a Boy Scout dinner at the Atlanta Athletic club.

Although confined to his home by illness, John Ellsworth, age sixty-eight, of Charlemont, Mass., shot a deer in Heath. Informed by his wife that there was a large buck outside their house, which is located on the Charlemont-Heath town line, the veteran hunter seized his shotgun and quietly raising the window, blazed away. One shot through the heart killed the animal after it had fled into the town of Heath. The buck was retrieved by Ellsworth's son.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

TIMBER CROPS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

The other day I received a letter from a reader of The Bulletin who was pleased with my recent "Let 'em revert!" talk about the woods. He has, it seems, had the same belief for more than a score of years, i. e., the belief that a good deal of land which had been cleared of its trees by the pioneer settlers wasn't really half so good for growing grass or potatoes or oats as it was for growing trees. He writes:

"You could make another big true story about how these southern New England hills gave their oaks for ship-knees, etc., and how the ships riding on the New England oaks went trading and whaling; and how the trading and whaling brought back money to New England homes on hillsides as well as seasides; and how that money, thriftily invested, became the nucleus of many a fortune that is still yielding snug dividends to careful holders. Then the sorrow of it all began, when the men left on the land got it into their heads to begin cultivation of the oak-stripped ledges and the stony tracts. They had the erroneous idea that they were 'subduing the wilderness,' when the thing they should have seen was this,—that the rough places had gracefully given one crop of oaks and would glady give another just as fine, if allowed to do so. But they didn't see it. They just kept on killing and killing trees, trees that were begging for the chance again to clothe the rocky hills with another money-yielding crop of oaks and ashes and pines. And now the time has come when oak timbers bigger than eighteen inches through is hard to find. Go ahead and give us another story on letting trees grow up to be real trees. P-l-e-a-s-e."

Now, when a chap like that not only reads my stuff but likes it well enough to "take pen in hand" to tell me so and beg for more d'ye spose I'm going to turn him down cold? Especially when he ends up with that wheedling "p-l-e-a-s-e?" If he'd come at me with a club and called me a retrogressionist and a foe to progress and a back number generally, I should have got down the old battle-axe and the ancestral snickersnee and proceeded to give him as good a fight as I knew how. Who wouldn't? But when, instead of that, he pats me on my best shoulder and says "P-l-e-a-s-e," and wants more, I should consider myself a cad if I didn't respond in similarly friendly fashion.

So here goes. And if you, beloved reader, don't happen to be interested, why just skip it for something more entertaining. And don't blame me: blame the near-Norwichian whose soft soap has lubricated my fall.

Perhaps you may have noticed a favorite introduction by Will Rogers to many of his wise cracks: "All I know is what I see in the papers." Similarly, all I know about local timber and ship-building is what I read in history. But the local annals are full of it, if one takes the trouble to dig it out.

The truth seems to be that pretty nearly all the tumblification of hills and ledges and crags and ravines which make up the surface of eastern Connecticut was, when the settlers first came on it, a waving forest of trees, mostly hardwoods, and mostly "first-growths" so-called. It was exactly the crop which the stony and thin and obdurate soil was naturally best fitted for. There really wasn't enough loam sprinkled over the rocks to be properly considered a soil. It was just a thin plating, fertile enough, perhaps, but so shallow that it "wore out" after its first crops. Most of it was inherently unfitted for the ploy and profitable agriculture. But the trees had a way,—or made one,—of sending their pushing roots down through cracks and crevices of the rocks and drawing sustenance from supplies too deep for the short and feeble rootlets of annual cereals to reach. It was, doubtless, something of a struggle even for the trees. But, in accordance with a natural law which governs tree-growth as well as man-growth and soul-growth, the difficulties encountered made for sturdier and stronger development. The testimony of the ancient records is fairly conclusive that the timber which grew on the ledges of what are now Norwich and Preston and Ledyard and the Stoningtons, etc., was mighty—good—stuff. It was specially calculated for that use which demands the toughest and most enduring character, i. e., ship-building. Hence it came about that the early pioneers drifted into using it for that purpose.

Their first attempts were modest and tentative, sloops and shallops mainly, and similar craft intended for river or coastal navigation. As early as 1684 one Mallat was given permission by the Norwich town fathers to build a vessel or vessels "somewhere upon our river," and liberty to cut timber from the common land "on the east side of Showtucket river." Eight years before that Capt. James Fitch had been granted enough land at the waterside for a wharf and warehouse. It is self-evident that no one could have wanted a wharf unless there were vessels to tie up to it, nor a warehouse thereon, unless the vessels brought goods for warehousing. Both these concessions are believed to have been near the mouth of Yantic cove at the foot of "Rocky Point." By the way, who ever sponsored the change of that descriptive name from "Rocky Point" to "Jail Hill?" That certainly was a "come-down."

As time went on and skill developed larger and larger craft were built. In 1718 Capt. Kelly sailed for Barbadoes "in the Norwich sloop." In the same year, Joseph Kelly, — presumably the same man,—was given "free liberty to build vessels at the Point, where he is now building." At about this time the local historian reports that "boating was brisk on the river and small vessels were built and sent away for sale" Before 1732 ship-building had reached a point where Norwich traders were able to send a sloop and a "schooner" to Ireland. They sold the sloop there, because there was a good profit in building craft where timber was plenty and cheap and selling them where it was scarce and dear. The crew of the sloop came home in the schooner, arriving Nov. 7, 1732.

As early as 1666 New London had vessels engaged in the Barbadoes trade with warehouses and wharfage on Mill cove. These vessels were, of course, built of local or near-by timber. Stonington, also, took up ship-building at an early date. As far back as 1820 Joseph Wells contracted to finish a vessel "then on the stocks" at Pawcatuck, and to start another, supposedly at Mystic, of which he was a resident. From 1811 on to 1860 vessels by the score were built and launched at Stonington borough, head of Mystic, Mystic bridge, etc. During the war of the Revolution, New London, the Thames river and the various coves along the Sound shore were veritable hornets nests of privateers, fitted out, in accordance with the maritime customs of the time, to prey upon commerce. They not only helped enrich the struggling colonists, but they played havoc with British-borne freights.

All these were wooden ships. Now that wood has given place to steel in ship construction, there is, naturally, less call for "ship-knees" and oaken planks. But, when there is a call for any such sort of timber, it isn't to be found, if my correspondent is to be credited,—and he generally knows what he is talking about. When that sort of timber is wasted for other than ship-building, it isn't obtainable. It has been killed by over-cutting and under-replacement.

I haven't the figures from Connecticut, but in the neighboring state of New York the state College of Forestry reports that, in the last 18 years, more than one-half of all the wood-working establishments of the state have been abandoned, mainly because of the lack of merchantable timber left in the state. Some have gone west and some have gone south, and some have just gone under. Considering that New York is the largest wood consuming state in the union, the College of Forestry opines that the fact that it has to import nineteen-twentieths of its lumber isn't wholly creditable.

Just at present, what with "subduing" the wildernesses and irrigating the deserts and tractor farming on the level prairies, over-production of farm crops, with its concomitant under-pricing, is a much more threatening danger than famine. We are simply producing more wheat and corn and cotton than we can use, to say nothing of minor crops, and are faced with the necessity of getting foreign markets for our surplus, or being smothered in our own plethora. It isn't as in the old days, when the need for spuds and flour was greater than that for timber, and the trees had to go to make a place for the plow. We, especially we of the east, are trying to wrest precarious livings by raising crops our soil isn't naturally fitted for, while close in the future looms the threat of a scarcity of timber, the one product which our stone-heaps want to grow and are adapted to growing.

There is a small bit of level land in my own woods, once known as "the cleared lot," because it was the latest denuded of trees, on which, perhaps 66 years ago, I helped hoe corn. The crop wasn't all that might be desired, even then, and cultivation was abandoned as unprofitable. Today, that "cleared lot" is covered with trees, mostly white pines, some of them 20 inches in diameter. It never would have grown a farm-crop adequate to pay for the labor involved. Left to itself, with only an occasional and very unscientific thinning, it has produced a timber-crop which spells dollars.

Re-forestation, i. e. the setting out of big groves of transplanted trees, is something rather beyond the reach of the average Connecticut farmer. But what might be called in-forestation, i. e., the letting naturally non-arable hills rene wtheir own woody growths, is perfectly feasible to many.

As things look, now, we're liable to be short of timber before we are of 'taters. The wise man foresees probabilities and plans for them.

Twenty new members had been added, bringing the present membership up to 321. Reports given by the officers of the different societies showed a good degree of progress in all church activities. Charles A. Jerome, treasurer of the First Ecclesiastical society, gave a detailed report and Dea. Walter Kingsley, trustee, presented a full report of the invested funds. The report of the church treasurer, Harold J. Lewis, was read by James Royle, showing a small balance in the treasury.

A new constitution was adopted at the annual meeting and officers elected. This church which now occupies the fourth building, was organized in 1705, incorporated Dec. 27, 1929 and the constitution for the incorporated church adopted Jan. 2, 1930 in the two hundred and thirtieth year. Rev. William Carlos Prentiss, minister, is serving as the twentieth pastor.

The First Ecclesiastcal society of Plainfield held its annual meeting in the vestry, Jan. 4th, at 8 o'clock. Ray W. Greene, Jr. was elected moderator. The clerk, Cecil L. Butler read the minutes and reports were given by Ray W. Greene, chairman of the society's committee, Charles A. Jerome, treasurer and Walter Kingsley, trustee of the funds, and Everett Dawley for the auditors. A motion was made by A. H. Mathewson to transfer all the property and estate, real and personal, and trust funds to the First Congregational church of Plainfield and this motion was carried unanimously. The society which had carried on faithfully the financial obligations of the church for many years voted to disband.

Burglars who committed four robberies in Lamest, Tex., apparently have a sense of humor. After breaking into the safe of a bottling company, where they found nothing, the yeggmen sat down to enjoy a bottle of pop manufactured by the company. When the manager opened the place in the morning he found a lone nickel—left for him in payment for the drink.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington of Oneco had for callers Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis from Foster, R. I.

James Bailey was home from Providence over Sunday with his family in Oneco.

New Year's came in nice and warm. We hope it will continue so for a while. We would like a litte rain once in a while but no snow and cold weather.

Mrs. Emma Malbourn of Oneco called on Mrs. Fred Wilcox recently. Mrs. Malbourn is quite smart for an old lady, almost 73 years old.

Joel Barber of Jewett City and Clifford Bugbee of Lisbon were callers at the Pine Grove farm one day last week.

Mrs. Bitgood counted up her cards recently and she had 734. She has got them since 1900. She has given away a lot of them that she did not count. She has 734 besides those she gave away. She had them from California and many foreign countries besides. Who can beat that?

Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon and family are all well at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fenner and chicks are all getting along nicely.

Your correspondent was sorry to hear that Mrs. Fletcher's daughter at Oneco was so sick. Hope to hear of her recovery soon. I also feel sorry for the family as they have had such bad luck. It was not long ago their house burned up and most of the things in it.

William Bitgood and the young man that works for Jefferson Barber are drawing up a nice wood pile for Mr. Bitgood.

Mrs. Bitgood used to knit for the Civil war. She has knit a good many pairs of socks. Then she was 13 years old. During the World war she knit for the Red Cross. She knit 47 pairs of socks and two sweaters and two mufflers and five or six pairs of things they wore over their gloves. She did it all free. The Red Cross furnished the yarn and needles and she did the knitting. She said she was glad she could do that and would liked to have done lots more.

Mrs. William Bitgood has a spinning wheel that her mother gave her and if her mother was living she would be 114 years old. She was 13 years old when her brother made it for her. When she was young they used to spin and weave cloth. I have helped my mother weave a good many yards of cloth. She would spin the yarn and color it and weave father's shirts and pants and she would weave blankets and dresses for the girls, also petticoats. Now the girls don't think they can wear anything but silk. Mrs. Bitgood also knit socks and stockings. Mrs. Bitgood has the wheel and she says that money can't buy it. It is a good one and has had good care.

Hunters in the vicinity of Geneva, N. Y., had an experience with a pheasant not long ago. After a day's tramping in vain search of the birds the hunters sat in a club, bemoaning their hard luck. Just as one of the party had finished speaking there was a crash and the yarn swappers turned, to see a gorgeous cock pheasant flutter into the room as the last fragments of a broken window fell to the floor. The frightened bird ran across the room and out the open door. And no one did anything about it.

The sword of Maj. John Pelham, confederate artillery genius referred to by Robert E. Lee as "the gallant Pelham," has been given to the Alabama state museum by Lovick Miles of Memphis.

BRUSH AND GRASS FIRE AT SANDY POINT LAST NIGHT

WESTERLY, Jan. 9—A brush and grass fire at Sandy Point, located at the end of the peninsula and well beyond the point called out the members of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station here tonight. Capt. George W. Streeter was in charge of the squad. The fire started about 8 o'clock and at times the blazing beach grass illuminated the sky and caused many to think that a large building or several buildings were burning. The blaze was a difficult one to locate, residents on the Watch Hill road thinking it was at Fishers Island, while the residents of the island thought it was on the Watch Hill road. The fire burned for over an hour, but no property was damaged.

WESTERLY T. B. CLUB VOTES TO DISBAND NEXT MONTH

The T. B. club, Westerly's oldest social organization, established in 1885 will disband the first of February. It has long occupied rooms on the third floor of the Tragzis block, corner of High and Broad streets. The club first occupied rooms in the O. D. Wells block on the same site, destroyed in the fire in 1867. Next the organization occupied the same quarters in the Segar block, which replaced the one burned.

The late Charles A. Morgan, Westerly insurance man and a charter member, took much interest in the club during his lifetime and saw that it weathered threatening financial storms and even provided for its continuance after his death. Its membership at one time numbered leading professional and business men in the town but dwindled as new members were not added and the older ones died until at the present time the members total less than a dozen. Ten years ago, when Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, was instituted in Westerly, the T. B. club gave up several of its rooms that the post might occupy them as their headquarters but retained the corner room. The Legion has since moved to its own rooms on Main street.

STONINGTON

Fishermen and boat owners of Stonington have drawn up a petition to be presented to the United States government, requesting that steps be taken to improve the warning signals on the inner breakwater and other points dangerous to navigation. The petition, now in charge of Walter Mitchell, general manager of the Chesebro Packing station, requests that a lighted buoy be placed on the northern end of Ellis Island, Fishers Island sound, taking the place of the present 2-1-A, and a lighted buoy be placed southwest of Mason's Island to take the place of the S-3; also that a blinker be placed on Crook's Beacon, otherwise known as the Noank light, to take the place of the fixed light now in operation. The present light on Crook's Beacon is hard to distinguish from lights on shore. Borough fishermen think these changes will lessen the danger of loss of life and destruction of the fishing boats, their chief means of livelihood.

The officers will be installed by Department Commander J. William Johnson of Waterbury. Prior to the meeting, at 6:30, a turkey supper will be served. It is expected that visiting Chevaliers from Waterbury, Hartford, Danielson and Norwich will be present.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams, of Old Mystic, Tuesday evening, Plus Ultra Bible class of Old Mystic Baptist church, met with a very good number present. Members had been requested to bring old neckties, to be given to Miss Margaret Eldredge, to be used in her work as a missionary, and 52 ties were brought in. Following the business meeting, there was a social hour with a lunch of cream chicken, cake and coffee.

MISS SCHROEDER DESCRIBES VIEWS OF THE YELLOWSTONE

Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Williams, there was a social meeting for the purpose of collecting holiday cards, which had been given out last year, also to hear Miss Wilhemenia Schroeder of Mystic, tell of her trip through the Yellowstone park last summer. Her talk was very interesting, the trip taking five days and four nights. The party, numbering about 50, traveled in motor buses from lodge to lodge. The first night, with a fence between the table and the people all were seated facing a table on which was placed a huge amount of food with which to feed the bears. One bear would come out and take what he desired and then go away and then another bear would appear, never more than one at a time. During this time, a ranger, of whom there is a large number about, talked about the bears, telling the people that they would be stopped on the trail next morning, by the bears. Sure enough they were, by one bear, which put his feet up on the bus, until someone gave him some food. He then stepped down and waited for the next bus. Every bus was stopped. One morning, when one of the occupants of one of the lodges opened the door to go out, there stood a bear. The woman quickly slammed the door, and the bear stood outside, rattling the latch, while the two occupants stood against the door, as they had no food to offer him. He tired after a while and went away. As long as the bears get food they will not harm any one, unless they are teased. Miss Schroeder had many cards to show the beauty of the country, which is left in its own rugged state, even if a tree falls, it is left there. The geysers are very beautiful in coloring. A feeling of extreme awe was felt as the tourists gazed down into the Grand Canyon. One of the springs, which has hot springs bubbling all around the outside edge, is too cold in the middle for anyone to bathe in. Following Miss Schroeder's talk, cake and coffee were served.

Golden Rule class of Old Mystic church, met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Altana Johnson. This was also the annual meeting, and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Bessie Medbury; vice president, Mrs Maria Pierce; secretary, Miss Fay Johnson; treasurer, Mrs. Belle Tift; social committee, Mrs. Endora Moore, Mrs. Nancy Desley, Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Thomasine Marchland. After the meeting, there was a social time, games and refreshments. Besides those mentioned, Miss Marian Whitford and Mrs. Effie Hull were present at the meeting.

All hope that automobile owners are not asleep, because Jack Frost is not. Some morning drivers are going to get up to find that Jack Frost has been working all night long, and after the wonderful days this week, if motorists haven't had radiators tested lately, they may be out of luck.

On Wednesday evening, a business man from out of town, was present at the prayer meeting at the Union Baptist church, who said that he had been in town for a week, and that on Wednesday evening, of last week, he had hunted around for a church that was holding a prayer meeting. He did not find one, until, coming up Baptist Hill, he noticed on the board that meetings were held each Wednesday evening in that church. This week he was on hand and said that he was very glad to be there.

Mrs. Agnes Park, while at work in her store, Wednesday, sprained her wrist. Although very painful, she managed to keep working.

Mrs. Jane Chapman of School street, celebrated her 80th birthday Tuesday. Many friends called and she received cards from others, all wishing her many more years of health and happiness.

PRICES OF STOCKS ADVANCED WITH MODERATE INCREASE IN TRADING

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The stock market gave the best account of itself so far this week today. Share prices advanced along a broad front, and trading quickened moderately. Shares traded totaled 3,397,230, compared to yesterday's turnover of 1,638,590, the lowest in 17 months.

On the whole, however, the market remained a merely trading affair. Gains were mostly limited to 1 to 3 points, although there were a few isolated advances of 5 to nearly 15 points. Much of the advance appeared to be a prodding of the bear crowd, whose efforts during recent sessions have met with flat failure.

Credit remained plentiful, but rumors of reductions in the Bank of England and New York federal reserve rates failed to bear fruit. Foreign exchanges stiffened, and bankers were inclined to interpret the Bank of England's retention of its 5 per cent rate as indicating a desire to strengthen its gold position further. For the moment, however, exchange rates on New York are substantially below outgoing gold points.

The federal reserve weekly brokers' loan figures showed a decline of $72,000,000, reducing the total to $3,252,000,000, or within $34,000,000 of the low of the movement reached in the week ended Dec. 24. The compilation indicated a swift return of funds to this center which were withdrawn for year end window dressing. New York banks were able to reduce their loans by a total of $281,000,000, as out-of-town banks increased loans by $116,000,000, and "others" by $94,000,000.

The federal reserve condition statements disclosed a sharp retraction of the reserve credit which had been put out to stabilize conditions over the holidays and the year end. Total holdings of bills and securities for the entire system declined $163,000,000, and reserve notes in circulation, $73,000,000.

Call money again dropped to 4 per cent., after renewals at 4 1-2. Time money showed an easier undertone, and commercial paper was distinctly easier, quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 1-4, compared to 5 to 5 1-2 yesterday.

Such business news as came to hand was fairly favorable. Woolworth reported a gain of more than 16 per cent. in sales for the first week of the year. General Electric's sales report indicated that the market crash had little effect on buying during the last quarter of 1929, results of which were 23 per cent. ahead of the like period of 1928, while the results for the entire year were 28 per cent. over 1928.

Utilities and steels were prominent in the day's advance: U. S. Steel, which had been sluggish for several days, rose 3 points. American Can, American Telephone, American Water Works, J. I. Case, Columbia Gas, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Consolidated Gas, General American Tank, General Electric, Gold Dust, Gillette, North American, Pullman, Republic Steel, Simmons, Standard Gas, and Stone and Webster were among issues closing 2 to 4 points higher. A large turnover and a moderate rally in Pennsylvania featured the rails. The stock closed at 74 1-4, up 1 5-8. Byers, Westinghouse Electric and Macy rose about 5 points, and Western Union nearly 15. A conspicuous weak spot was Hollander and Son, which dropped 7 points to a new low at 7.

Commodity markets were steady to firm. Cotton futures shot up about $1.50 a bale, in anticipation of the start of operations by the central co-operative organization next week, and firm Liverpool cables. Wheat gained slightly on reports of severe weather over the winter crop area, while corn mounted nearly 2 cents a bushel.

Sterling cables rose 5-16 to $4.87 5-16 on announcement of retention of the London bank rate, but later sagged to $4.87 1-4. The French franc also turned upward, then reacted, ending the day slightly lower at 3.93 1-16 for cables.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—(AP)—With the export basis for United States wheat relatively the highest point yet this season, the Chicago wheat market tilted upward late today. Earlier, a downward trend in values prevailed owing a great deal to assertions that Argentine wheat for February shipment was underselling United States wheat in Great Britain. Besides, heavy snow falls over domestic winter wheat territory, together with sharp setbacks in wheat quotations at Liverpool, were a handicap to friends of higher prices here.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 higher. Corn closed 1-2 and 5-8 to 1 cent up, oats 3-8 and 1-2 to 1-2 and 5-8 advanced, and provisions showed 2 to 7 and 10 cents gain.

Stimulating wheat price upturns today toward the last was the fact that the trade basis for domestic wheat exports at the Gulf of Mexico was firmer. No. 1, hard wheat being quoted 41-2 a bushel over the price of Chicago May deliver. No. 2 hard was 1-2 to 3-4 over May, and in the case of both grades the basis over topped the season's best figures heretofore reached for spot cash delivery of wheat, as compared with deliveries in May. Confronting this circumstance, previous speculative sellers here turned rather unanimously to the buying side of the market here as the day drew to an end.

According to some close observers, export business in North American wheat gives signs of being larger than is generally admitted. Intimations were current that European purchases of United States and Canadian wheat today totaled a moderate volume, but no definite estimates could be obtained. On the other hand, advices from abroad pointed to a disposition in some quarters to reduce forecasts of the wheat import needs of Europe. Argentine shipments of wheat for the week totaled 2,389,000 bushels against 1,503,000 bushels the wek previous, and 4,364,000 bushels at this time last year.

Widespread deep snows, with a promise of additions tonight and tomorrow, although relieving apprehension about crop damage to domestic winter wheat, also did much to put a stop to movement of corn. This fact tended to hoist corn values and the corn market also was responsive to an official report showing that the amount of corn harvested as grain in 1929 was the smallest since 19240. Oats sympathized with the action of corn.

Provisions went higher, accompanying upturns in the value of hogs.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Another advance in the rails, carrying numerous issues to and above their 1929 highs, gave the bond list a strong appearance today. Some of the advances, however, failed to hold to the close, although net changes proved to be generally on the upside.

Interest charges remained at yesterday's levels. There was light inquiry for time loans at 4 1-2 per cent., but most of the business was at 4 3-4. The market suffered from dullness which dealers were inclined to interpret as a forecast of easier rates. Some bond experts believe that prices of high grade securities have gone as far as might be currently expected and that a further important advance must await cheaper money. Those anticipating such a development point out that gold shipments have abated at least for the present and that the underlying credit situation is favorable.

The rise in investment rails since the first of the year has carried the average for that group more than half a point higher. As a result, many obligations are within less than a point of their 1929 peaks, and each day of strengthening prices will see several of last year's records broken. Central of Georgia 5 1-2s, Big Four 5s, Series D, Great Northern 4 1-2s and Wabash "B" 5s squeezed beyond those highs today and numerous others equalled the 1929 tops. The average for ten representative rails at the close was 105.8 compared with the 1929 high of 106.

A feature of the day's trading was the unusually heavy turnover in American Telephone debenture 5s. This utility moved in normal volume during most of the day at around 104, its opening price, but in the last hour large offerings appeared and the price was hammered down to 102. The final quotation was 102 1-4 a net loss of 1 3-4, and the volume totaled $470,000, principal amount. The same company's convertible 4 1-2s which had been idling for several days, showed a gain of about $400,000 ocer yesterday's turnover as the stock advanced and the debenture closed up 1 1-4.

A decline of 1 3-4 in Laclede Gas 5 1-2s and small fractional losses in a few others utilities were more than offset by advances of about half a point in nearly a dozen other issues.

Interest in the rails was distributed widely. Burlington 5s and General 4s, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul general 3 1-2s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas first 4s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s and Union Pacific 4s rallied about 1-2 to more than a point, and a few larger rises appeared. There was a slightly easier tone toward the close, however, and small net losses were sprinkled through the group.

Industrials moved narrowly and were dull. National Radiator 6 1-2s rose 5 points to 50.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Treasury receipts for January 7 were $5,799,221.14; expenditures $10,242,437.29; balance $149,206,390.06.

The Schulte-United 5-cents to $1 Stores, Inc., which began operations a little more than a year ago, reported gross sales for 1929 of $19,954,101, placing it among the 10 largest chain stores systems engaged in similar business.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Efforts of speculators for the advance to revive bullish enthusiasm by starting buying demonstrations in a varied assortment of issues met with partial success in today's curb market. Trading increased on the rally with the public utilities, many of which harbor a large short interest, in the forefront of the advance.

While the rally was not directly associated with any development in the day's news, the recent inability of "bear" operators to dislodge any large volume of stock in their sporadic attacks, coupled with the recent easing of money rates and the reported upturn in steel mill activity, probably inspired a resumption of pool operations. A few soft spots cropped out here and there, but most of them were confined to relatively obscure issues.

Electric Bond & Share again crossed 95 for a gain of more than 2 points, and closed at the top. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore was marked up 4 1-2 points, American & Foreign Power warrants 3 and Brazilian Traction, Hydro Electric, Associated Gas & Electric A and Utilities Light & Power A were among the many power and light issues to close a point or more higher.

International Cigar Machinery and Tubize Artificial Silk, which ordinarily change hands in 10 share lots, jumped about 9 points each. United Porto Rican Sugar 7 and Deere & Co. 5. Quaker Oats preferred dropped 9 1-2 points on a few sales.

Automitive issues were sluggish, Ford of Canada dropping 5 1-2 points on a few sales. Aviation shares showed little change.

A brisk demand for Indian Territory Oil, controlled by Cities Service, which advanced 3 3-8 points to 30, was the only development of consequence in the oil group. Most of the other petroleum shares showed fractional changes, Standard Oil of Indiana being among those to lose ground.

Investment trust and trading corporation shares showed mixed changes. Vick Financial declined fractionally to 9 despite the publication of a report showing a break-up value of $9.62. American Equities advanced nearly 2 points and a good demand was apparent for Tri-Continental issues.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The stock market crash of last fall has resulted, savings bank officials here say, in a large increase in the number of accounts of persons heretofore classed as "small investors" in Wall street. It is estimated that nearly 20,000 new savings accounts were opened in New York state during October and November.

The gold movement at the port of New York from Jan. 3, to Jan. 9, inclusive, comprised exports of $3,623,000, of which $3,497,000 went to France and $126,000 to Mexico; and imports of $395,000 from Latin-American countries.

W. N. Davis of the Phillips Petroleum company was elected chairman of the production division of the American Petroleum institute today. William Irish of the Atlantic Refining company becomes chairman of the refining division and H. M. Dawes, of Pure Oil, chairman of the marketing division.

Directors of the Bank of America and the Murary Hill Trust Co. have voted to merge the two banks, giving the consolidated institution a capital of $36,75,300. Stockholders of both banks will vote on the plan Feb. 18.

Production of standard cotton cloths during December amounted to 242,725,000 yards, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York reported today. Sales during the month were 303,934,000 yards or 124.3 per cent of production. Stock on hand at the end of the month totaled 461,013,000 yards, an increase of 6.9 per cent during the month. A gain of 26.9 per cent in unfilled orders during December also was reported. Shipments totaled 214,148,000 yards, or 87.9 per cent of production.

PENDLETON HILL

Mrs. Clifford P. Thompson gave a birthday party to the 4-H Boys' and Girls' clubs on New Year's night, honoring her daughter Katherine's birthday and that of two other club members, Miss Bergius and Miss Nieme. Three birthday cakes were a feature and numerous gifts were showered on the young ladies. Games and dancing passed the time until 12, when cake and ice cream were served to a party of 30, including besides the boys and girls, a number of the girls' parents and friends. Of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's good-time festivals, the guests pronounced this last the best of all. County Agent Randolph Whaples and Mrs. Whaples and Miss Grover were among the guests who assisted Mr. and Mrs. Thompson in entertaining this group of boys and girls.

The Christmas offering for the Missionary budget amounted to $35. The Thanksgiving offering was $13. This church accepts a yearly quota of nearly $200 for missions.

Another patient ill with grip is Miss Lucy Lester, who has been confined to her bed for several days. Other members of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson's family are recovering from severe attacks of the same malady.

Mrs. Charles H. Hilliard is substituting for Miss Lester this week at the Hill school.

WATERBURY GIRL VICTIM OF RADIUM POISONING

WATERBURY, Jan. 9.—(AP)— Miss Mary Damulis, 19, of this city, who was buried here today was a victim of radium poisoning, it was learned tonight. Miss Damulis, who was the fourth person in this city to succumb to the dread disease, fought a losing battle against it and two months ago came home from a private hospital in New York city, where she was treated by Dr. Frederic Flinn, of Columbia university, a radium poisoning specialist. He told her then that she would live but a few months.

BODIES OF FOUR MEN FOUND IN WRECKAGE OF FREIGHT CAR

SOUTH BOSTON, Va., Jan. 9—(AP)—The bodies of four unidentified men were found in the wreckage of southern freight train number 56, which left the track shortly after midnight this morning two miles north of Drake's branch and was burned following explosion of a tank car.

Two of the bodies were white men and the others were so badly burned that it could not be discerned whether the persons were black or white. It is believed, however, that all were hoboes, beating a ride on the train as a check indicated no members of the crew were injured.

A CALIFORNIA HIKER HAS DINNER IN VILLAGE

Hiker Bert O'Toole, who is traveling by foot from the Golden Gate City, California, to Lowell, Mass., for a bet of $400 to do it in 40 days. If he loses he will have to give the fellow an electric radio set. It was Tuesday that this big 6 foot 2 man from the coast stopped at the waiting room for a rest. He was wearing a heavy suit of brown; a short navy coat with a sign reading: "On a bet from California to Lowell, Mass., a distance of 3,300 miles; for a bet of $400 against a radio." As he told the story: "I left the golden state Dec. 5 for my long walk. I took with me five pairs of shoes and was going along slowly; came to Chicago, caught sight of real winter—snowstorm around 7 inches deep and how cold it was! That was the first snowstorm I ever saw in my life and I had to pick it up to see the white stuff like sugar. If I lost my bet I don't care, for the first snow is a real treat to any one from the sunny part of California, where oranges are raised in the winter, while the northern people are fighting snowballs with shovels". Hiker O'Toole said a kind lady with no paint on, back of the wheel of a Nash coupe, with a Lucky Strike in her mouth, stopped him between Chicago and St. Louis and said, "Poor fellow, don't you want a ride? I know your feet are sore from the frozen ground!" Tiping his hat he had to turn down the pretty lady. "No," Hiker Bert said, "I cannot ride, for we made a bet in California, no riding, but walking." She talked for 10 minutes and felt so sorry for me, but I could not help it. I was out to do or fail. She drove on, waving to me, and I could read her lips, "Keep it up big boy! It won't be long now!"

In a little town before I got to St. Louis, as the school children were getting out for the day, they put the stones and apples to me so believe me I had to do the fast mile before they stopped. They thought I was a tramp, too lazy to work. Reaching St. Louis my three pairs of shoes were gone; so they went into the ash heap. The weather was good but there was a mean cold wind on Grand avenue that would shake the buttons on your coat. But getting an Olive street beef stew and a good rest for the night, I started for the Bay state again fresh as a tomato in the garden. Getting into Philadelphia, the land of the Connie Mack baseball stars, I found more snow and thousands of men hunting for jobs but none to be found. Young man told me never in the history of the Ben Franklin state was work so slack. If things don't pick up, we all will start another war, they said. Then there will be plenty of action.

Starting for New York, the place I dream of seeing so many nights while home, reading of the city of the thousand snow houses. Gee! If I did not almost get the roof of my mouth sun-bruned looking at the tall buildings and seeing Broadway lit up at night is worth a walk from California. Some thing wonderful. My fifth pair of shoes had seen its best days. I had to buy two more pair, making seven in all. I reached New London but did not stop—came right on to this town and what is its name? A voice came from Wilfred Ellis, "This is Noank!"

"I have made it in 33 days and still I've got seven days left. Well, I can step on the gas and still get a chance to look Lowell over. I don't walk at night but stay at the best hotels where there is a good bed to rest, after a day on the road. Some times I get up at 5 o'clock in the morning and start out. Stop walking around 7 in the evening.

Hiker O'Toole was getting a real Noank dinner, corned beef special at the home of Walter Willis, the champion pig killer of this part of the state; home made bread, with Roger Ave. butter. Hiker O'Toole stayed until the fishermen's boats came from Watch Hill shores and Block Island, to see salt water fish, how they ship them away. Hiker O'Toole said, "I will write Stretch Morrison how long it takes for the hike, how many pair of shoes and how many pounds I lose! I sure do like this little village, so cozy. The people seem jolly as the ones in my town in the golden west. I am still going strong and taking no lifts from autos along the highway." So Hiker O'Toole, with his pack on his back, waved a good bye to the crowd at the waiting room and up the road and out of sight he went, to reach his goal in Lowell, Mass., before the sun went down. This is the second hiker in three years who walked from California to reach Massachusetts and stopped for several hours in the fishing village. The first was Long John O'Brady, out for a bet of $500, against a Ford automobile—had to do it in 37 days. He failed by two hours, got caught in a snowstorm in Providence where he lost out. All hope that Hiker O'Toole will not have any hard luck.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

If tomorrow night your wife is missing, don't worry. We'll tell you where to find her. She'll be at the Palace theatre looking at the one and only Ronald Colman in his great new talking picture, "Condemned." And when you find her there, don't blame her. For like the rest of the women, she probably can't resist the lure of a Colman picture.

Now for the wives. Let us say that in case any Norwich housekeeper finds her husband missing Saturday night, she might as well hie herself to the Palace also, for she'll find him there gazing at the divine face and form of beautiful Ann Harding who is starred with Colman in this magnificent epic of suffering, loyalty and romance.

RONALD COLMAN IN "CONDEMNED"

Even if there were no Ronald Colman; even if Ann Harding were not cast in this film, it would still be a great treat through the sheer force of the drama that rolls so swiftly through the story. Devil's Island! Who has not thrilled at the mention of that place—that terrible penal colony to which France sends prisoners. Who has not shivered over the pages of that great book, "Condemned to Devil's Island," by Blair Niles, the book from which this sinister drama was adapted.

Well, it is this island which is the setting of the new picture. Here Colman and Miss Harding, with the help of Louis Wolheim, Dudley Digges and others, play out a beautiful romance. The luxurious vegetation of the place, the sinister undergrowth, and still more sinister inhabitants of that terrible isle combine to make a superb background for the story.

Today for the last times the Palace presents its double feature, "The Careless Age" starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and "The Sap" with Edward Everett Horton in the star role It is a great program and this is the last chance to see it at the Palace. Boys and girls don't forget Saturday matinee is Palace stamp club, genuine foreign stamps to the boys and girls.

Broadway Theatre.

After closing Joan Crawford's successful engagement in "Untamed," with today's performances, the Broadway brings to the talking screen tomorrow, one of the most stirring heart-dramas ever screened, with Helen Morgan in "Applause." New York went wild over this presentation of the old-time burlesque of the early nineteen-hundreds, with Miss Morgan as the faded, blowsy, peroxided queen of the chorus. Like that famous film-story "Stella Dallas," this new picture is one that does funny things to your heart, puts a lump in your throat but leaves you singing with joy at the climax of the plot. Helen Morgan, of "Show Boat" fame, whose croony voice has placed her phonograph records in the ten-million class is the burlesque mother, striving to shield her convent bred daughter, Joan Peers, a delightful new-comer to the screen, from "her kind of life." Fuller Mellish, Jr., is the unscrupulous burlesque comedian who lives "off the world" and Henry Wadsworth, the sailor lad who brings the first bit of happiness into the sordid lives of the mother and daughter. Every character is clearly cut, and might have been born into the parts assigned them. Not the smallest detail of the old-time burlesque remembered and mourned by the last generation has been omitted from this tremendously appealing story which has broken box-office records wherever shown. The surrounding program is sparkling with comedy including Charlie Chase in "Stepping Out," O'Donnell & Blair, hilariously funny in "The Plasterers," a Paramount talkartoon "Marriage Wows" and concluding with the latest Paramount Sound newsreel.

Breed Theatre

An idea of the number of people used in the production of "The Cock Eyed World," all talking Fox Movietone production, directed by Raoul Walsh, was gleaned from the work sheets in the office of David Todd, assistant casting director of Fox Films.

In the scenes taken at Mare Island Navy yard just outside of San Francisco, and aboard the U. S. Transport Henderson, 1,200 real marines are seen, together with two navy bands, ship's officers, crew, etc., to the number of 800.

In the Russian, tropical and New York scenes, 400 former marines were used for many days. In the Russian sequences Walsh used 125 real Russians who are heard speaking in their native tongue, and 150 Russian men, women and children recruited from the local Russian colony in Hollywood and Los Angeles who might be classified as Russo-Americans.

In the tropical scenes, Walsh used 175 real Spanish and Mexican types and in the Coney Island scenes, 160 dancing couples hand picked from Los Angeles dance halls were used. In the night scenes at Coney, 360 people were used as atmosphere.

The cast, headed by Victor McLaglen with Edmund Lowe and Lily Damita, had more than forty in support, each heard, as well as seen. It opens tomorrow, Saturday, at the Breed theatre. First performance begins at 1:30 p. m. and showing will be continuous till 10:30. This engagement will continue for one week.

Likewise, seven distinct musical organizations, aggregating close to 180 musicians and including two navy bands, a Spanish marimba band, Jose Arias serenaders, a Russian Balalaika orchestra, a marine string orchestra and a hot jazz orchestra at Coney Island, play the music of all nations in logical sequences.

Brown, Judge Avery imposed a sentence of a fine of $1,000 and a year in jail, with the jail sentence suspended for one year and the young man was put in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Attorney Earl Mathewson, who represented Austin, made no statement in court before sentence was imposed.

The statutory manslaughter charge against Austin followed an automobile accident on Sept. 21, last, when a Packard roadster driven by Austin struck and fatally injured Charles Muensch, 63, of Thamesville, as the man was walking across the road to take a trolley car at a point on the Norwich-Montville highway between the Uncas-on-Thames sanatorium and the Golf club entrance. He was accused of reckless speed.

In comment to the court when he asked that sentence be imposed, State Attorney Brown reviewed some of the facts in the case. Austin, he said, was a young man 22 years of age, single, and who comes of a fine family. On the night in question, Austin was driving his Packard roadster on the Norwich-New London turnpike toward New London. Muensch, the victim in the case, was on the highway going toward a trolley, which he was about to board.

The state attorney said that Austin was traveling at a very fast rate of speed, estimated as high as 60 miles an hour. Austin saw Muensch, but apparently too late. He swerved and struck him.

There is negligence in this case, the prosecutor told the court, considering the extreme rate of speed at which Austin was traveling. The brakes on the car were not in good condition.

There is no evidence of liquor at all in this case, the prosecutor pointed out with emphasis. "He has been wild, giving his people and his friends considerable trouble." Again the state attorney said that in this particular case Austin had not been drinking.

The coroner, Edward G. McKay, felt that there was gross negligence on account of the speed at which Austin was traveling, the state attorney said, and after investigation. Attorney Brown declared that he felt the same as the coroner. This is a serious offense, a very serious offense. If there were any liquor in the case, so far as I am concerned as state attorney, I would have recommended a term of imprisonment.

In view of the fact that there was no liquor, I recommend a fine of $1,000 and a year in jail, execution of which is to be suspended for one year and the accused placed on probation. This is made with the understanding that if he doesn't walk the straight and narrow path, sentence will be revoked and he will have to serve the sentence.

The fatal accident has automatically cancelled Austin's motor vehicle operator's license.

EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT BY HOLLAND BELL RINGERS

The Royal Holland Bell Ringers, who have played before Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, gave two excellent entertainments Thursday at the Elizabeth street school under the auspices of the West End Community association, appearing in the afternoon before an audience of 500 children and in the evening before a good sized audience.

The unique and colorful Vollendam costumes worn by the six members of the entertaining family added to the interest of the programme in which the instruments used included Swiss handbells, cathedral chimes, cymbal harp, three-inch long ocarina, glassphone, slide saxophone, musical saw, tip bells, and farm bells, with some clever whistling with the assistance of a phonograph.

It was an entertainment that was thoroughly enjoyed from beginning to end

Progress was reported by Lion Jean Kieffer, chairman of the committee, on the organization of a Boy Scout troop to be sponsored by the club. The Lions roar and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner brought the meeting to a close.

TWO AUTOMOBILES DAMAGED IN FIRE IN GARAGE

A one-story frame garage, located in the rear of No. 499 North Main street, and two of three machines housed in the building were considerably damaged by fire early Thursday evening. The third machine was taken from the garage by firemen and was not damaged. The blaze was caused from an electric light bulb attached to an extension, which fell onto a pail containing two quarts of gasoline and ignited the gasoline.

Benjamin Belisle, owner of a Dodge touring, was working on the machine in the garage, honing out the cylinders, and was using the gasoline to wash them. The light, which was attached to a beam, became loosened and dropped into the pail of gasoline. The flames spread quickly throughout the interior of the garage and set fire to two of the three machines.

A call was sent to the fire department at 7:57 o'clock and Engine No. 2, Squad A, Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan and Chief Henry R. Taft responded. Forty gallons of chemical were used by Engine No. 2 in squelching the blaze, which badly scorched the interior of the structure and damaged the front tires on the Dodge and burned the roof of a Paige sedan. A one and a half inch water line was laid by Squad A as a precautionary measure, but was not used.

The Paige sedan is owned by Mrs. Emily Tocsko, who, with Mrs. Stella Achacki, owns the building.

CONTINUANCE TO MAY IN STEVEN NOFLE CASE

On recommendation of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown in the criminal superior court here Thursday morning, Judge C. L. Avery directed a continuance to the May session in the case of Steven Nofle of Jewett City, who is charged with violation of the liquor law, Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, counsel of Nofle, objected to the continuance, stating that the witnesses were all on hand ready to go ahead with the case. State Attorney Brown said that there was something very peculiar about the case and he was not ready to go ahead with the trial for several reasons. The continuance was [illegible] no hardship on Nofle as he is out on bail.

Nofle was one of eight gathered in recently at Jewett City, after evidence had been obtained by operators of a detective agency in the employ of the Jewett City authorities.

Six years ago, at the January term, Nofle was fined and imprisoned for violation of the liquor law.

Victor Chartier of Jewett City, charged with perjury, in connection with evidence given in the Nofle case in Jewett City court is yet to be put to plea. He is alleged to have procured the liquor for the police aides and this he denied in Griswold town court.

HELD ON CHARGE OF RIFLING CASH REGISTER

Walking into a trap set for him by the state police, Everett Russell, Montville youth, was arrested in that town Wednesday, charged with a series of thefts from the garage operated by Roy Hamilton. He will be arraigned Saturday in the Montville justice court.

For some time past the cash register at the garage has been rifled at intervals and suspicion was attached to Russell, who had been hanging about the place. Wednesday afternoon Sergt. George Webber, commandant of the Groton state police barracks, placed several marked bills in the register and left the garage vacant while he and Troopers Arthur Whitmarsh, Frederick Johnson and John H. Smith concealed themselves nearby. They saw Russell enter the place and when he left it they stopped him and found the marked bills in his possession.

It is expected, however, that further steps will be taken in the matter. In the discussion of the building situation in Norwich and environs, it was the general opinion of those present that it would have been advisable to continue work on the new county home building on Laurel Hill inasmuch as the weather has not been adverse to building operations. HOOVER HAS REPORT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION

The President Will Transmit the Report to Congress Monday—Commission Has Found That the Law Enforcement Machinery of the Country is Entirely Inadequate—Prohibition, Automobile Theft, White Slave Traffic, Immigration and Other Criminal Laws Have Overtaxed the Capacity of Enforcement Machinery.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)— As announcement came from the white house today that President Hoover would submit the first report of the law enforcement commission to congress Monday, the commission itself issued a statement asserting that its preliminary examination had demonstrated unquestionably that the criminal law enforcement machinery of the country is entirely inadequate.

Decision of the president to transmit the commission report was announced after there had been widely published reports that the chief executive and the republican house leadership had differed on the prohibition enforcement policy. These reports were promptly denied by Speaker Longworth and Republican Leader Tilson in formal statements.

Other developments in the prohibition discussion included an attack upon the dry laws by Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin.

Reports of a disagreement between the president and the house leaders were predicated upon statements of the latter that they wanted regular committees of the house instead of a proposed joint committee to consider the matter of transferring the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department.

At the white house, it was said the plan of a joint committee to consider reorganization of the federal agencies for the enforcement of prohibition had been agreed upon by senate and house leaders during the special session of congress when regular committees of the house were not organised.

The senate resolution proposing the special committee was so drafted that its recommendations would have had to be considered by regular house committees before house action. It was decided, however, that the whole question could be expedited by the various house committees taking up the proposals directly and immediately.

The further statement was made that the white house had no interest in the question of procedure; that it desired only expedition of legislation and that it would adapt itself entirely to the wishes of house leaders in any methods they might adopt for early consideration of the proposals.

When the recommendations of the commission were submitted to the president, it was said they would be transmitted to congress as soon as the special committee had been created. Since this plan of handling the legislation has been disapproved by house leaders, the president decided to send up the recommendations Monday.

These recommendations are understood to deal with the border patrols, the transfer of the prohibition unit and several other subjects but their contents are being closely guarded both by the white house and the commission.

The commission's statement, prepared by Chairman Wickersham, was the first to be made since the group came under attack some weeks ago. It made no reference to the assaults, but reviewed just what its work entails and the progress that it has been able to make.

In stating that the preliminary examination demonstrated the inadequacy of the criminal law enforcement machinery, the commission said that "prohibition, automobile theft, white slave traffic, immigration and other criminal laws of the federal government have overtaxed the capacity and effectiveness of the national machinery for enforcement."

FREIGHTER ASHORE AT S. W. POINT, BLOCK ISLAND

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The freighter Edward Luckenbach piled up on treacherous Southwest point early today during a dense fog and tonight rested in a rocky bed, her hull rent from bow to engine room, amidships.

The crews of coast guard craft, which were standing by, and resident mariners believed the vessel would be a total loss.

Throughout the day, a freshening southeast wind pounded the Luckenbach with heavy seas, but towards evening the wind hauled to the northwest, leaving her in a lee, and the crew of 48 decided to remain aboard tonight.

Water pouring into the vessel, early flooded the engine room and silenced the wireless. The radio operator resorted to batteries to send the last messages from the ship. The pounding broke open the fuel oil tanks and their contents coated the shore.

The vessel came ashore at full tide and swung beam-on to the beach. Even when low water left the vessel so high that her propeller emerged, the surf continued to break over her.

Two boat crews, one from the coast guard cutter Henley and the other from the West Side coast guard station, boarded the Luckenbach but found it impossible to render assistance. A coast guard officer, Ensign Miner, was stationed aboard to signal the shore if an emergency developed.

The Luckenbach was en route from New York to Boston to discharge cargo before clearing for Pacific coast ports. She is a 7,916-ton vessel, built at Quincy, Mass., in 1916, and owned by the Luckenbach Steamship Co., of Delaware.

BRITAIN MAKES FIRST MOVE FOR NAVAL ARMAMENTS CUT

SHEFFIELD, England, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Great Britain tonight through its first lord of admiralty made its first public move in precise figures toward reduction in naval armaments.

A. V. Alexander, speaking in his own constituency, announced that the empire at the coming five-power conference intended to propose reducing her requirement in cruiser strength from 70 to 50. The Kellogg-Briand peace pact was said by him to have so altered the situation that the admiralty felt warranted to set its irreducible minimum of cruisers at 50 instead of the 70 considered necessary at the time of the Washington conference.

This was the first time that the British people at large had been authoritatively informed of the exact position of their government on the cruiser question.

CABINET OF PORTUGAL RESIGNED LAST NIGHT

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The cabinet of Premier Ivens Terraz resigned late tonight.

The cabinet was formed last July. It succeeded that headed by Colonel Jose Vicente De Freitas who had formed a government in April, 1928.

The resignation came unexpectedly at the close of a cabinet meeting.

An official note was issued saying that owing to divergences of opinion between the ministers of finances and justice and the premier the latter placed the resignation of the cabinet in the hands of the president to facilitate solution of the crisis.

The president accepted it.

ARMY PLANES COMPLETE FIRST LEG OF FLIGHT

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Completing the first leg of the 2,500-mile test flight from Mt. Clemens, Mich., to Spokane, Wash., in fast time, 18 army planes arrived on St. Louis bay in Duluth at 3:30 p. m. today. Three transport planes and the radio plane, scheduled to leave Selfridge field at Mt. Clemens this morning with the "Arctic Patrol," had not arrived at 6 p. m., and Major Ralph Royce, flight commander, believed the planes had stopped at some Michigan seacoast city.

COURT ORDERS RUM SHIP RETURNED TO HER OWNERS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Federal Judge Lake Jones late today ordered the British vessel "Billy and Betty," seized by the coast guard off the Florida coast last fall, returned to her owners together with a cargo of 1,000 cases of liquor.

The coast guard claimed the seizure was made within the 12-mile limit and that the British vessel apparently was heading in to land her cargo on American soil.

W. B. Tucker, the master, however, asserted that his ship was not a rum runner, but was plying between two British ports. He said he had not intentionally entered the 12-mile limit, but had drifted there because of a disabled engine.

Tucker said his vessel was plying between Nassau and Halifax and that he had been drifting for several days when seized.

INJUNCTION AGAINST COTTON BROKERAGE FIRM

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A temporary injunction, restraining Robin Fowler & Co., cotton securities brokers with offices at 67 Wall street, from engaging in further business, was obtained in supreme court today by Matthew Tiffany, deputy state attorney general. Tiffany charges the firm which has customers throughout the south, with being a "bucketshop."

"The firm ostensibly is a reputable brokerage firm," he said, "but it is nothing more nor less than a bucketshop."

Its "sucker list," comprising some 400,000 names, he added, is the largest that has ever come to the attention of the state bureau of securities with which he is connected.

Members of the firm are Robin M. Fowler and Mrs. Emma Herd.

TO PROTECT INTERESTS OF HUNGARIAN CLAIMANTS

THE HAGUE, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Premier Bethlen of Hungary, who has been waiting since Tuesday to be heard by the non-German reparations committee, said today that he was ready to make as much sacrifice as anyone else to get a final settlement with the creditor nations, but that he would not abandon the interests of 5,000 Hungarian claimants against the Austro-Hungarian successor states. These claims are for property aggregating 1,250,000 acres of land seized and liquidated.

The claims range from little plots of three-quarters of an acre to the $20,000,000 estate of Archduke Frederick, one of the Hapsburgs, at Belye.

ROYAL BRIDAL COUPLE NOW AT HUNTING LODGE

ROME, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Prince and Princess of Piedmont rounded out six days of festivities for their marriage at a gala performance in the Rome opera tonight, which was attended by nearly all the visiting royalties and princes and princesses. The opera was specially redecorated for the occasion.

The performance began at :15 p. m., an unusually early hour for the curtain to rise in Rome, presumably in order to allow the bridal couple to escape in a royal train or automobile to the hunting lodge of San Rossore, near Pisa. Humbert and Marie Jose kept the actual hour of departure to themselves.

This was the conclusion announced tonight by the chairman, Julius H. Barnes, in the course of a study of returns available from inquiries that have been made all over the country.

Affairs Of The United Cigar Stores Company

New Management Repo[redacted] Deficit of $776,286, Ins[redacted] of Surplus of Nearly 000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—The confused affairs of the United Cigar Stores company, as reported by its new management, has resulted in an investigation by the state bureau of securities of the activities of the previous officials of the company, who represented the interests headed by George J. Whelan, founder of the $200-unit chain.

Watson Washburn, assistant attorney general and head of the securities bureau, announced today that "transactions of the United Cigar Stores company under its former management are under investigation" by his office. He said several of the former officers had consented to appear voluntarily at the bureau for questioning next Tuesday.

Whether Mr. Washburn plans to question Mr. Whelan could not be learned, but it is considered extremely unlikely that he will appear, as he has recently been under treatment in a sanitarium. He is reported to have suffered a nervous breakdown aggravated by the recent crash of the stock market.

When the Whelan group sold control of the company last August to a syndicate headed by George K. Morrow, chairman of the Gold Dust corporation in October the new directors passed the dividend on the preferred stock upon which regular payments had been made since 1912. The Morrow management said it had discovered that recent dividends had been paid from surplus, and that cash would have to be conserved.

The most startling development in the United Cigar situation appeared yesterday, when auditors employed by the Morrow group reported that the company earned in 1928 only $4,525,609, not $8,352,762, as had been reported by the Whelan management. Further, an adjustment of the accounts by the new management completely wiped out a surplus of nearly $22,000,000, as reported in the annual statement of Dec. 31, 1928, and replaced the item with a deficit of $776,286, as of June 30, 1929.

The company's earnings have suffered during the past two years from a widespread cigaret price-cutting war, and declining sales of cigars.

The passing of the preferred dividend in October was one of the unsettling factors accelerating the crash of the stock market late that month and in early November. The common stock sold as high as $27.50 a share last spring, but recently touched $3. It closed today at $4.50. The preferred stock, having sold as high as $104 a share earlier last year, dropped to $19.87. It was inactive today, but was quoted $31 bid, $34 asked.

Mr. Washburn intimated when the preferred dividend was passed last October that his office might investigate the situation. The new management said that it would welcome an investigation and offered its co-operation.

Wintry Weather Cause Of [redacted]ath And Distress

[redacted]nsas City Reported 13 Deaths During Blizzard—Southern California Snowbound in Places

(By The Associated Press)

Turning suddenly from weather suitable for robins and bluebirds the eastern seaboard, figuratively speaking, today awoke to find snowbirds cavorting about the streets.

The west, southwest and upper reaches of the Pacific coast continued to shiver. The Kansas City district reported 13 deaths directly attributable to the season's worst blizzard.

But where the United States complained other countries were by far the worse sufferers.

In Mongolia and China proper deaths by the thousands were reported. The Suiyuan district of northern Shansi and inner Mongolia estimated its death at 15,000. Most of these were children or aged persons.

An unofficial estimate placed the total dead in the Far East at 30,000.

Southern California was snowbound in places and hail stones fell at Redondo beach. California proper was visited by the white flakes as was Nevada.

Sub-zero temperatures were reported from the southwest, and fruit growers in the Rio Grande valley feared for their crops.

Chicago, snowbound, returned its traffic arteries to normal only after a night of work in which every available man, aided by machinery, shoveled snow drifts. Promises of slightly warmer weather were made by the weather bureau. Snow already had stopped falling.

New York after experiencing two days of typical spring weather, was visited by hailstones yesterday. This, coupled with heavy winter fog, halted shipping and temporarily stayed the rushing of the flood waters in upper New York state.

A Tip from Andrew Carnegie.

Asked to explain his phenomenal success, Andrew Carnegie blandly attributed it to his ability to get men to work for him who knew more than he did.

And that's a formula for success. No one who is really successful does all the work himself. He employs other pepople's minds and efforts. Do you do this? You can quite easily.

You can employ specialists in diet, serve the master dishes of famous chefs, get the latest advices on style and countless other helps by reading the advertisements.

All the newest knowledge—knowledge millions of dollars and years of efforts have won—is contained in the advertisements.

If you will use the advertising columns of The Bulletin as Andrew Carnegie used men who knew more than he did, every dollar you spend will be spent wisely, economically, and will return full measure of satisfaction.

It pays to read The Bulletin's advertisements.

5,300 PERSONS FROZEN TO DEATH IN CHINA

PEIPING, China, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Half of China for days has been experiencing the severest cold in 60 years with the dead numbered in the thousands and with tens of thousands suffering cruelly from lack of shelter.

Undernourished populations in the districts where famine had followed crop failures this summer were hard hit and many died in the hovels into which they crawled in vain search of warmth. The greatest mortality from the wintry blasts was in the Suiyuan district of northern Shansi and inner Mongolia where it was estimated that 15,000 undernourished persons, most of them aged and children, were dead from exposure.

In the town of Fenchen 2,500 were frozen to death, in Sahsien another 2,000 died while in Paotowchen 800 succumbed to the cold.

SENATE REPUBLICANS NOT YET HARMONIOUS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Senator McMaster, of South Dakota, one of the rebel western independents, upset the harmony program for the republican organization in the senate today with a stout protest against banning him for the place on the interstate commerce committee in favor of Senator Hastings, of Delaware, his junior in service.

The independents have won recognition in the appointment of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, to the powerful finance committee, and in other major committee assignments. With this in mind, they decided after a conference late in the day that if McMaster should be promised the next vacancy on the interstate commerce committee, they would not oppose the newly revised organization setup.

That promise has been made to McMaster and tonight the path seemed clear for final approval of the party's committee line-up on tomorrow.

TO BE ARRAIGNED FOR ENTERING BURIAL VAULT

WINSTED, Jan. 10—(AP)—A bench warrant was granted by Superior Court Judge Arthur F. Ells, this afternoon for arrest of Peter Flotat, of that place, on a charge of entering a burial vault in Forest View cemetery. The allegation is that Flotat broke into the vault and took from two bodies therein a wedding ring and a pearl necklace. The warrant was asked for by State's Attorney Walter Holcomb of Torrington, who went to Litchfield to obtain it from Judge Ells.

Flotat is serving a jail sentence for breach of the peace and resisting an officer. The vault was entered in December 27 and the jewelry was recovered by Police Supt. J. H. Slocum.

It was undetermined this afternoon when Flotat will be arraigned on the bench warrant.

PARROTS CREDITED WITH SPREADING DISEASE

(By The Associated Press)

Bright-plumaged parrots, many presumably Christmas gifts, are said by physicians to have brought illness and death to families widely scattered in the United States and Germany.

The parrots, physicians say, were suffering from psittacosis, a rare and frequently fatal disease that is contracted first by tropical birds, but which is communicable to human beings.

At least 11 deaths from psittacosis have been reported. One is in Toledo, Ohio, the rest in Germany.

YOUNG WOMAN CHIDES THE SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones, Washington Publicity Agent of the U. S. Sugar Association, Accused the Committee of Playing Politics—Declared Committee's Object Was to Create Trouble For President Hoover—Battle of Words Lasted For More Than Two Hours.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—An outspoken young woman today charged the senate lobby committee with playing politics in its investigation of Cuban sugar interests and precipitated a battle of words which raged for more than two hours.

Wearing a chic blue ensemble, Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones, Washington publicity representative of the United States Sugar association, took advantage of every opportunity to express her opinion of the committee. Laughter frequently swept the crowded committee room.

In a statement placed into the record, she asserted that "apparently the two chief purposes of the so-called lobby committee have been to create political difficulties for President Hoover and to whitewash the 25 years activities in Washington of the domestic sugar interests."

She also charged that the committee had violated the fourth amendment of the constitution by obtaining correspondence from her office files.

Startled at first by the woman's frankness, members of the committee soon began to chuckle and then joined in the general laughter that greeted her thrusts at them. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who seldom has smiled during the hearings, burst into laughter a number of times.

It was the first time a woman had been questioned at length and Mrs. Jones proved one of the most outspoken witnesses examined during the lobby investigation.

As the session was nearing an end she told the committee that it had treated her nicely.

"Your treatment of other people on the Cuban side," she added, "has made me act this way."

The committee adjourned today until Tuesday.

When Mrs. Jones' statement charging the committee with playing politics was read, she was asked if she meant that Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, also intended to "create political difficulties for President Hoover."

"That is the answer you want me to make," she told Senator Walsh.

"No, no," he replied. "I want you to say yes or no."

"I refuse to answer it," she asserted. "You want me to answer it so that the newspapers will publish it."

"Very well. You refuse to answer it," replied Walsh.

Walsh then read the reference to whitewashing activities of the domestic sugar interests.

"Do you want to know what I mean by that," she demanded.

"No," Walsh told her.

"Now see. You want nothing about that in the newspapers, that is the reason."

The statement added that "perhaps the lobby committee is looking for an excuse to capitulate to the politically powerful domestic sugar interests."

Questioned about the statement, Mrs. Jones said she was afraid "you will not get up on the floor of the senate and make a fight for low tariff."

"Perhaps you will be disappointed then," Walsh told her.

"I hope so," she replied.

Later, Walsh said he "resented very much" the statement that the committee had acted with any desire "except to develop the facts on both sides."

"That was my opinion yesterday and it was my opinion this morning," she replied. "I might change my mind."

FLOOD WATERS THREATEN RESIDENTS OF SWANTON, VT.

SWANTON, Vt., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Residents of a section of this town were prepared to leave their homes tonight as waters of the Missisquoi river continued to rise, reaching a level higher than in 1927, when a large section of Vermont was flooded.

A temperature of ten degrees below zero buoyed the hopes of the residents. It was believed that a continuation of the extreme cold weather would prevent further rising of the river. The water had backed up seven miles from the mouth of the river at Lake Champlain and covered an area over one mile wide.

Plans had been made to dynamite an ice jam near the river's mouth but another jam developed upstream from the first and this gave temporary relief. It afforded an opportunity for farmers in boats to reach barns sheltering cattle that had been abandoned as several families left their homes. It was impossible to remove the animals but they were fed and blanketed. The second ice jam caused the waters to recede to the extent that the stock were no longer standing in icy water.

The water tonight was from two to three feet deep in the street near the river bank and the floor of the Vermont Marble Co. plant was three feet under water. More than a score of families were making preparations to go to homes on higher land although it seemed certain that the cold weather would at least temporarily halt the flood conditions. Several boathouses and smaller structures along the river bank were carried away by the water.

TWO ELECTROCUTIONS AT TRENTON PRISON

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP)—"Little Joe" Marazzo and Joe Pantieri, racketeers, died in the electric chair at state prison tonight.

Marazzo and Pantieri killed Michael Radice and Anthony Taffrow after they had unsuccessfully tried to hijack a truck driven by Taffrow's brother. The shooting occurred over a truckload of cider.

Marazzo was the first to die. He smoked a cigar as he went to the chair.

"Let's go! Let's go!" said Marazzo as he walked into the death chamber.

Pantieri, shortly after he was seated on the chair, ordered:

"Give it to me. Give me all you got."

The executioner complied.

SCANDAL DEVELOPING IN DETROIT POLICE DEPT.

DETROIT, Jan. 10—(AP)—Round-ups of underworld characters suspected of connection with the shooting of Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad, were overshadowed tonight by alleged revelations by a detective of the Black Hand squad which directed the investigation against the police themselves.

The Detroit News today published an account of charges said to have been made by this officer that the attack made on Inspector Garvin was engineered by another high police official and was the outgrowth of years of ill-feeling and jealousy. The same story included a complete denial by the detective of these charges.

The detective, according to the story, is Adolph Van Coppenolle, who is claimed to have revealed how he and an inspector of police sat in an automobile six weeks ago and plotted to take Inspector Garvin's life. On this occasion the detective is claimed to have quoted the inspector as saying about Inspector Garvin:

"I'm tired of hearing about him and I'm going to have him bumped off and you're going to help me."

TO INCORPORATE $30,000,000 COTTON COOPERATIVE ASS'N

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Carl Williams, who represents cotton on the federal farm board, announced today that the new $30,000,000 Cotton Cooperative association was ready to be incorporated in Delaware tomorrow and probably would begin operation early next week.

Officers are expected by Williams to be elected on Monday.

"The laws of Delaware under which the organization will incorporate," Williams said, "provide that a corporation may start business with a capital of $1,000. Stock subscriptions ready to be delivered by member cooperatives far exceed that.

"With an initial capital, the corporation may borrow whatever funds it may need from the farm board. If it wishes, there is no reason why it cannot begin work on the 1930 crop Monday."

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10—(AP)—A fleet of coast guard vessels tonight cruised the waters off the coast in search of two youthful fishermen last seen late yesterday, 10 miles south of Cape Elizabeth, in their 35 foot open motorboat.

The men, E. Egan, 24, and Karl Madsen, 28, said to be inexperienced in coastal seamanship, failed to return to port with other fishing craft last night as a storm approached. Fishermen said the brothers were attempting to recover the gear which had broken loose at the time.

NEW INTERESTS TAKE OVER LOCAL POWER COMPANY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—Transfer of the control of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company to the Connecticut Electric Service company with J. Henry Roraback as president, was announced today. The company serves Rockville, Stafford Springs, Willimantic and numerous small communities adjacent.

Other officers are Robert W. Perkins of Norwich and R. H. Knowlton of Hartford as vice-presidents and Charles L. Campbell of Hartford, secretary-treasurer. These officers and the following comprise the board of directors: Irving W. Day and A. J. Campbell of Waterbury, Attorney William A. King of this city, P. H. Leonard of Rockville, A. J. Mitchell and B. F. Cooley of Stafford and A. M. Whiting of Pine Orchard. John F. Ahern is to be retained as manager of the company and has been elected assistant treasurer.

The actual transfer of the properties is to be made within a month with the completion of necessary preliminaries. Despite the changes in the executive personnel of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company it was stated that there are to be no changes in local managements, at least for some time. It is expected that increased facilities to be offered by the new management will react as a distinctive benefit to the customers including a plan for more economic operation made possible through the merger.

While officials of the Connecticut Electric Service company have not discussed the matter of preferred stock ownership which was made available to customers of the Rockville-Willimantic company from time to time, it is expected that this stock ownership will remain undisturbed for the present at least.

The franchise rights of the R.-W. Lighting company covered an extensive area in eastern Connecticut. It was principally owned by Milton J. Warner of Branford and H. M. Whiting of Pine Orchard and was one of the largest not affiliated with either the Connecticut Light & Power, the Connecticut Power or the United Illuminating company, the three principal utilities of Connecticut.

The acquisition of the company by the Connecticut Electric Service company is the fourth of importance in Connecticut during the past year, the Service company having previously gained control of the Northern Connecticut Power company, the Waterbury Gas company and the Winsted Gas company. The Connecticut Electric Service company is a holding company, possessing the shares of the several companies composing the unit. The Connecticut Light & Power company is the operating company, supplying the power to the several units. The companies plan expenditures of about $6,000,000 during the present year in improving the system.

SENTENCED TO JAIL, DIVORCED AND MARRIED IN AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—Just one hour after she had been divorced from her husband, who secured a decree and the custody of their two children, Mrs. Florina Borden of Putnam was married to Joseph Flagg, also of Putnam. The woman and Flagg, a respected resident of his community and veteran of the Spanish-American war, were presented in the Windham county superior court here this afternoon on bench warrants charging them with adultery. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford recommended a suspended jail sentence of one year. In accepting the recommendation Judge John R. Booth placed the man and woman on probation for six months to be in the custody of Probation Officer L. Edwin Hills.

Immediately after the disposition of the adultery charges, Judge Booth granted to Julius B. Borden of Bristol, husband of the woman, a divorce on the grounds of adultery, awarding Borden the custody of their two children.

An understanding had been reached whereby the woman and Flagg were to be married at once and with the best wishes of the divorced husband, the couple went to the office of Probate Judge Valentine L. Murphy where they secured a special dispensation permitting them to procure a marriage license at once. This they did from Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Accompanied by a little three-year old child, said to be theirs, they walked to the office of Justice of the Peace Frank H. Foss and were married, just one hour after the woman had been divorced. Flagg gave his age as 48 and the woman 29.

The January criminal and civil term of the Windham county superior court opened here at 2 o'clock this afternoon. During the short calendar session the case of Everett E. Beckwith vs. Joseph P. Collins was declared off the calendar. Judgment by default for failure to plead was ordered in favor of the plaintiff, Benjamin Prague, in the case of Benjamin Prague vs Herman Prag et als. In the case of the Putnam Savings bank vs. Joseph Aframe of Putnam, a judgment on two notes, totaling $2,766.34 was secured by counsel for the plaintiff.

Three decrees of divorce were granted, each action being uncontested, Josephine Harte of Putnam secured a divorce from Dieudonne Harte on the grounds of adultery. Eva Tetreault of Wauregan was granted a decree on the grounds of intemperance from Clodomire Tetreault. Mrs. Gertrude C. Chappell of this city received a decree from Edson Chappell on the grounds of incurable insanity. Chappell is at present in the Norwich State hospital. The plaintiff, represented by Attorney H. S. Gaucher, received the custody of two minor children. George Liard, ex-sergeant of the Putnam police department, testified for the plaintiff in the Harte divorce hearing. Mrs. Harte was allowed the custody of one minor child. The Flagg and Borden cases were then taken up with the subsequent divorce which was the fourth awarded today by Judge Booth.

Receiving a message over the teletype that three young men who invaded a store in East Hampton with burglary as an apparent motive, might be Roland Lalone and the two other Wethersfield prisoners who escaped recently, Police Chief Thomas F. Grady sent a detail of officers to guard the highway at Columbia. The detail included Captain Frank McLean, Officer Roderick Lariviere and County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler. Word was received later, however, that the trio proved to be college students who were performing while under the influence of liquor.

A successful food sale was held at the J. C. Lincoln company store today by the Women's Relief corps. The committee consisted of Miss Mabel Dimock, Mrs. Alice Easterbrooks and Mrs. Mary Dimock.

With graveling work completed on Watson street, street department employes are now engaged in similar work on South Park street extension from Lebanon avenue to John street.

COLCHESTER

FIRE CO. STARTS MOVE TO IMPROVE SERVICE

A well-attended meeting of Colchester Fire company was held at the Fire house Thursday evening, Chief Harold F. Brown presiding. It was voted to secure a large slate blackboard to be used at the next monthly meeting in connection with a plan to outline the fire zones in the borough. Each fireman is to inspect a different section of the village in regard to the length of hose needed to protect each building, the best methods to be used in fighting fires in the extra high structures and recommendations will be made for the improvement of the fire-fighting facilities in general. The fire company is equipped with 1,200 feet of hose, but Chief Brown believes that the company should have at least 2,000 feet in case of emergency. Residences on upper North Main street and lower South Main street would be better protected if additional hose were purchased. There are no large borough cisterns in either of these two sections but with at least 2,000 feet of hose the large borough cisterns in the center park could be utilized to better advantage. The borough is equipped with a powerful and dependable engine and the members of the fire company are well trained and eager to do their duty, but it is felt that the property owners are not receiving the full measure of fire protection which could be provided if either more hose or more cisterns were furnished. As soon as each fireman has completed his survey of his allotted section, reports are to be made to the fire company officials who will make a suitable record of the information and submit a report to the borough officials so that needed action can be taken to better conditions.

Among matters disposed of at the meeting, it was voted to organize a Colchester Fire Co. basketball team. Augustus Gregory was elected captain and Chief Brown was elected manager. The manager was empowered to challenge the Colchester Shamrocks for a game to be played Thursday, Jan. 23. Manager Brown has not decided on a definite line-up as yet, but an unusually strong and fast team is expected with such possibilities as Herman Conrad, Harold Clark, Samuel and Harry Freedman, Samuel Berman, I. Cohen, G. J. Murray, Daniel Goldberg, Augustus Gregory, Joseph Dember, Louis Berman, Lloyd W. and H. F. Brown, Stephen Skawinski, J. W. O'Brien and Thomas O'Connor.

Mrs. Lester Robbins of Hartford visited Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Rathbun, on South Main street. During the day they motored to East Haddam for a visit with friends.

MOOSUP

METHODIST PASTOR GIVES BOOK SERMON AND REPLIES

The futility and tragedy of the haughty, non-speaking attitude of people toward one another was scored Sunday evening in a sermon by Rev. Elwyn Tingley at the Methodist church, during one of the weekly book sermons. The book was Susan Glaspell's "The Girl Who Strayed Away". Mr. Tingley was strong in his denunciation of jelous mothers who coldly and blindly try to stem the tide of true love between a boy and a girl of their two families. Denied a public and open chance to meet, for no good reason, the two sweethearts met secretly at night. Then the mother forced her girl to go west and marry a farmer much older than herself and one whom she did not love. It was a marriage of convenience, unhappy and heartless. The life and spirit of the home deeply affected the daughter born into the home. This daughter lived a stage life until in Paris she bought a dress like the one her mother had made her, which brought back memories of what she owed her mother. The dress helped to bring her to her senses. The passing of the years, time, death, common trouble and tragedy brought the original families together again, back home. Mr. Tingley scored unmercifully the blindness of parents who do not or will not recognize the signs of true love, in the hearts of their youth, parents who have foolish family pride and prejudices. Mr. Tingley said many young people were driven out into the highways or byways or into public places just to have a place to meet because parents didn't make room for courting youth at home. Often these youths were forced into dangerous places, and wrong acts were the consequence.

In the question hour, Mr. Tingley said that bootleggers who openly, brazenly or surreptitiously violate the law, seek to evade or resist arrest, are deliberately and knowingly violating the law, and operating an illicit business in disobedience to the United States constitution, and the majority's opinion in this country will increasingly support the officers of the law in the performance of their duty, even if they must shoot to stop and if need be, shoot to kill.

Regarding a minister's smoking, Dr. Tingley said he was speaking just for himself, but he personally believed a laymen had a right to expect something more and better from his minister, from the one who baptized and married the living, and buried the dead. In such high and holy moments, in his opinion, a minister's breath ought not to be reeking with nicotine.

Dr. Tingley said many persons who want ministers to preach the gospel rather than to spend so much time in intercessory prayer, and in telling God what to do, wouldn't know the gospel or go to hear it when it was preached.

He said when church members regularly, systematically and generously give to support their churches and to extend the kingdom of God they won't have to have so many fairs and money schemes to get money to run the church. He declared radio not an enemy of the church, or of personal or public religion, but a great ally and means of reaching more folks with the great messages of the gospel, increasing fellowship in public church work and worship.

Someone asked the question how God could bless the Protestant church when it had so wicked a founder as Henry the eighth. It was shown that the person who asked this question did not know history, for Henry was not the cause but the occasion of a break which resulted in Protestant Christian churches.

The Moosup Baptist young people were guests at the service.

Little Mary, who had fallen ill, begged for a kitten.

It was found that an operation was necessary for the child's cure and that she must go to the hospital. Her mother promised that if she were very brave she would have the very finest kitten to be found.

As Mary was recovering from the influence of the anesthetic, the nurse heard her muttering:

"It's a rotten way to get a kitten."—U. P. Magazine.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Gets Another Surprise

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

When'er you think you know it all
You're set to give your pride a fall.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel never did know just what had happened to his bridge from the clothespost to the corn-crib. But he could guess. Somebody in Farmer Brown's house had taken down that clothesline. He kept hoping that it would be put up again. Sometime during every day he went over to see if that clothesline had been put back. He found the line stretched from one clothespost to another and from one clothespost over to a corner of the house, but never again was it stretched over to the corncrib.

Meanwhile Farmer Brown's Boy had ceased to think anything about Chatterer. He had put an end to the stealing of corn from the corncrib and that was enough. Every morning he went to the corncrib to get corn to feed the hens. He didn't even look around to see if there were any signs that any one else was visiting the corncrib. He was sure that no one else could be. He was sure that no mice could get in there, no rats could get in there and no squirrels could get in there.

Three mornings later he discovered another bare corncob

It was some two weeks after he had removed Chatterer's bridge that Farmer Brown's Boy noticed a bare corncob in the corncrib one morning. He gave it only a passing thought. "It is one of the cobs that Chatterer left," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I must have overlooked it. He picked it up and took it away to put with the other corncobs from which he had shelled the corn for the hens. Three mornings later he discovered another bare corncob. Again he thought it was one of those Chatterer had stripped of corn at the time he was using the clothesline for a bridge. But when a few mornings later Farmer Brown's Boy found still another cob, he began to do some thinking. He examined this one carefully. He saw at once that the corn had been removed from it very recently. It was a fresh corncob. Farmer Brown's Boy gave vent to a low whistle of surprise. Then he began to look around carefully. He found an ear of corn from which part of the corn had been removed. He suspected that it had been done either that morning or the day before, or possibly in the night.

"So there is some one else in this corncrib!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. Then, as it popped into his head that Mother Brown might have put up that clothesline from the clothespost to the corncrib, he went to the door and looked out. The line was not there. He was sure that it hadn't been there since he took it down. Some one had found another way of getting into that corncrib. Who it could be this time he didn't have any idea. He began to wonder if perhaps after all a mouse had not been brought in with the corn in the fall. He had known of such things in the past. "It seems," said Farmer Brown's Boy to himself, "that this must be the case. Probably a mouse got in here then somehow and has been living here ever since."

Once more he got out the mouse-traps and set them. The result was just what it had been before. He never found a mouse in any of those traps. But he did find bare corncobs and he knew that some one was feasting on his corn.

DANIELSON

LARGE NUMBER ATTEND WESTFIELD CHURCH ANNUAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 10.—There was a large attendance last evening at the annual meeting of the Westfield Congregational church which was made a large factor of the monthly church night gathering. About 150 were served a supper prepared under the direction of a special committee of the Ladies' Benevolent society. Prior to the annual business meeting the quarterly meeting of the standing committee was held.

At the business meeting reports of various officers showed that 1929 had been a successful year for the church and that the period closed with all indebtedness discharged and a balance in the treasury.

During the meeting, the pastor, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, read a paper that was highly interesting and followed with close attention. In its three principal phases it dealt with the activities of the pastor and the use he made of his time during the year, the major activities of the church during the period, and the opportunities and obligations of the church for the new year.

The following officers were elected: Clerk, Miss Marion D. Chollar; treasurer, Andrew E. Meech; collector, Harold E. Greene; auditor, Alvan M. Thompson; deacons (3 years), Oliver P Bartlett, Frank J. G. Bailey; visitors (2 years), Mrs. Marjorie J. Waller and (4 years), Miss Mary E. Smith, Mrs. A. M. Thompson; standing committee (from the church), Judge Sabin S. Russell, Burdette C. Hopkins, Mrs. W F. Bidwell, Mrs. James M. Paine, Miss Mary E. Smith, Charles M. Smith, Edith L. Fuller, L. Edwin Hill, Bertram Hammond, Attorney Harry E. Back, and (from the congregation), Irving W. Davis, Mrs. Eric Johnson, William K. Pike, August Friese; delegates, George B. Guild, Mrs. T. E. Hammett, Miss Louise W. Danielson, Alex S. Boeher; collectors, Albert R. Fiske, Ray W. Pellett, Bertram Hammond, J. Alden Danielson, Harold L. Keech, T. Francis Hammett, Earl Dexter, Russell Danielson, Shirley Greene, Francis Ingraham and Joseph Friese.

This evening at Goodyear, newly elected officers Council Gagnon, Union St. John Baptist, were installed by Attorney Berthelot LeClair of Woonsocket, whose father, the late Dr. Charles J. LeClair, was a member of the council for years while practicing medicine in this town. The officers installed were: Rev. Ignatius Kost, chaplain; M. H. Berthiaume, deacon; Lafayette Forcier, honorary president; Frank J. Sarault, president; F. G. Frechette, vice-president; treasurer-collector, Alma Forcier; Valmore Forcier, secretary; Edgar J. Proulx, assistant secretary; Joseph C. Billings and Adelard, commissaries; Joseph LaBonte, master of ceremonies; Joseph H. L'Homme and Valmore H. Forcier, inspectors.

Mrs. James E. Logee

A death at the home of her brother, Ernest Law, in West Gloucester, R. I., today was that of Mrs. Nellie P. Law Logee, 86, widow of James E. Logee, who died Feb. 29, 1923, and who for many years was a resident of Danielson and engaged in business here. Likewise, Mrs. Logee, prior to her marriage, was engaged here as a milliner. The body was brought here this afternoon, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Logee. In addition to the brother at whose home she died, Mrs. Logee leaves a sister, Mrs. Angie Keach of Putnam, and several nephews and nieces.

Restrictive hunting and trapping laws are going to have one effect rather unlooked for, it was stated here today, but what has been a possible consequence of bearing down a bit too hard with the law, especially as to trapping. It has been planned by a group of land owners holding property in the southern section of the town of Brooklyn and in part of Canterbury to jointly post their land against all hunting and trapping next fall. The area involved is from a mile and a half to two miles in length and width and includes territory that has been favorite hunting ground with many hunters for years. The law governing trapping is chiefly responsible for the restrictive measures that are to be taken. Trappers have done an endless amount of complaining this season hereabouts, and no few of them have been prosecuted and fined for breaking the trapping law. One kick-back is the plan of the land owners in the area mentioned to stop all hunting and trapping on their property, in protest against the present situation. One man who owns many acres in the area mentioned this morning said if they want to hunt down that way "they'll have to hunt in the roads." Back of this plan is the hope that some modifications may be made in the present trapping laws at the next session of the legislature.

Rumors that Roland G. Lalone and the two other convicts who escaped with him from the state prison at Wethersfield last Saturday morning are still in eastern Connecticut persisted today. State officers of the Danielson barracks spent the greater part of last night hunting for Lalone in the vicinity of Eastford after a report came in that a man answering his description had been seen walking along a highway in that territory. The search proved unavailing. About 3 o'clock this afternoon there came another report that three men who might be Lalone and his companions had been seen leaving East Hampton headed toward eastern Connecticut, and local state officers immediately set out to patrol the highways. Like last night's search, this afternoon's effort also was without favorable result.

This evening newly elected officers of Dorcas Rebekah lodge were installed at a ceremony held in Odd Fellows hall in the town hall building. The following district deputy officers conducted the installation: President, Miss Annie L. Page; marshal, Miss Lillian E. Bailey; warden, Mrs. Cora D. Page; secretary, Mrs. Pearl M. Horton; treasurer, Mrs. Maud A. Keech; chaplain, Mrs. Estella M. Young; inside guard, Mrs. Geneva A. Rider; outside guard, Mrs. Belle D. Anderson; musician, Mrs. Eva B. Shoales. Wednesday evening these officers installed the officers of the Rebekah lodge at Putnam and Thursday evening the officers of the lodge at Central Village.

Rt. Rev. Joakim Alexopoulos, bishop of Boston, will make his first visitation to Danielson this week. Bishop Alexopoulos will arrive here during Saturday and on Saturday evening will conduct a vesper service at Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox church, Water street. He will deliver an address at the service to be held Sunday morning.

Miss Mary C. Welles, who spent a life time in educational work and who was one time a teacher in the schools of Killingly, died a few days ago at her home in Newington. She was a graduate of Hartford high school and of Smith college, in the class of 1883.

The Well Child conference for January is to be held next Tuesday afternoon at the Connecticut Light and Power building, Main street.

Miss Hattie Codding will have the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

PUTNAM

DRIVE TO GET FIRE APPARATUS AT THOMPSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 10.—The imperative need of a modern piece of fire apparatus for the protection of property in the village of Thompson hill, four miles north of here, is the incentive for the launching of a movement to acquire the engine by means of a fund to be raised by public subscription. This plan was disclosed today by Alexander Maitland, resident of the village and a sponsor of the project.

Thompson hill is one of the oldest villages in Windham county and contains scores of beautiful and costly homes, some of antiquity which could not be replaced at any cost. The village of Thompson is also the home of the exclusive Howe-Marot school for girls which is composed of many buildings, which if ever visited by fire would involve the expenditure of thousands of dollars to rebuild.

Notwithstanding the fact that the village in proportion to its size, contains more valuable real property than any other community in the state, the town has never seen fit to provide fire apparatus of modern type. The absence of an adequate piece of fire-fighting equipment has forced the townspeople to rely to a great extent upon the facilities of the departments at Webster, Mass., and this city. On various occasions the local department has cheerfully responded to Thompson's plea for assistance, but upon their arrival at the blaze several minutes later, flames had gained such headway that little could be done. The realization of the need of a piece of apparatus has inspired a group of citizens of Thompson to take steps to provide a much-needed combination pumper and hose wagon. Mr. Maitland said today that all are of the opinion that the cause will be at once recognized and $20,000 will be raised with little effort. Plans call for the purchase of a pumper, equipped with a booster tank, a new facility for fighting country fires, and a hose compartment capable of carrying about 1,500 feet of hose. A station will be erected to house the apparatus, as will a storage tank with a water storage capacity of 100,000 gallons. Negotiations are being made for the purchase of a tract of land on which the fire station and the water storage tank will be placed.

In many ways will the residents of Thompson benefit when the plans for a fire department materialize, Mr Maitland said. Fire insurance rates will be reduced about 15 per cent, he said. This is the promise of underwriters who are urging the movement. Rates in Thompson are unusually high because of the absence of such protection. The providing of apparatus will also affect a reduction in the surrounding villages of East and West Thompson to a noticeable degree, Mr. Maitland added, since the facilities of the proposed department will be extended to these towns. The plans are soon to be gotten underway and it is hoped that the fund will be raised as soon as possible.

The Thompson fire department, which was formed about 1837 as a bucket brigade, consists of an ancient hand tub and a pair of wheels known as a hose reel, besides a supply of chemical fire-fighting compositions. While the methods of the village firemen belong to an age long since passed they have proved their worthiness in extinguishing fires, despite the handicap under which they worked.

Captain of Police Alphonse J. Dubreuil began his duties as head of the police department this morning. As there was no session of police court, Captain Dubreuil began his rounds in the business center promptly at 9 o'clock. Officer Benoni Durand, who has been assigned to day patrol duty since the death of Captain Jarvis on Dec. 28, will be transferred to night patrol duty Monday. Officer Joseph Page will replace Officer Durand Sunday morning. On Saturday evening, Harry Wallen, newly appointed patrolman, will report for duty for the first time. Captain Dubreuil said this afternoon that a new list of assignments will be made Saturday giving each patrolman notice of his respective post.

A story that emanated from Willimantic this afternoon to the effect that three men thought to be Roland G. Lalone, "ice box" bandit, and his two confederates who made their way out of state prison Saturday, had held up a gasoline station somewhere in the vicinity of Willimantic, created a tense situation when it was said that the desperados had made their escape in the general direction of the Massachusetts state line. A check-up of the report failed to bring any verification of the current rumors, although police said that a gasoline station hold-up had occurred in the western part of the state, for which three young men, whose identity was not learned, were responsible.

The burial of John C. Paine, uncle of Leon T. Wilson of this city, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Grove street cemetery. The committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church of this city. Mr. Paine died Tuesday in Bridgeport. Funeral services were held from his late residence in that city and the mortal remains forwarded to this city for burial.

The suggestion of Mayor Charles A. Richard that an overhead system of traffic control be installed to replace the present flash beacon at the triple intersection of Main, Pomfret and Front streets to serve as a solution to the traffic problem existing here is being met with favor by the business men. The removal of the blinker would make ample space for the quick maneuvering of busses and vans which are, with the present system, forced to go through a series of backing and filling in order to make the turn onto Main street to reach Union square. The overhead system would allow but one line of vehicles to move in one direction at a time, eliminating all possibilities for jams at this intersection. The new plan was included in the mayor's message and is being considered by the police committee.

Several members of the student body at Putnam high school went to Danielson Friday evening to witness the first seasonal encounter of the Putnam high and Killingly high basketball teams.

William LaPointe, leader, reports the following Friday exercises at Riverside grammar school: The program was based on Aviation and one of the world's greatest aviators, Commander Richard E. Byrd, and his expedition to the South Pole. Mary Hancin told a myth concerning the fate of the first airplane and its pilot. Edward Kudelchuk showed an airplane which he had built, and explained its construction. History of a airplane was given by Stella Baldyga. Previous expeditions to the South Pole were recalled by Stella Cichoka. Byrd's Expedition was described by Louis Dziedzic. A poem, Byrd's Antarctic Expedition, by Catherine Parmenter was read by Sophia Pliska. There followed a short dramatization. The first scene took place in Little America, Nov. 28, 1929, at 10:29 p. m. The characters were: Commander Byrd, Steven Tenczar; Balchen, Robert Smith; McKinley, Chester Zadora; June, Walter Pictrowski; first camper, Anthony Vaucher; second camper, James Larrabee; third camper, Stanley Klick; fourth camper, Hermon Bryant; fifth camper, Felix Graska.

The second scene in Little America also was on Nov. 29, 1929, at 5:10 p. m. The characters were the same as in the first scene.

The second part was a radio program broadcast for the special benefit of members of the Byrd expedition from station R. G. S. in Jewett City, Conn., James Larrabee, announcer.

The program was prepared for the special benefit of Commander Byrd and the members of his expedition. Robert Smith broadcast President Hoover's message of congratulation.

There followed a piano selection Little Fairy March, played by Mary McFall. Two songs, Mother My Own and Auld Lang Syne were sung by Stella Cichoka, Stella Baldyga, Blanche Grobofski and Julia Nowakowski. The last number a piano and violin selection, Pa's Waltz was by Helen Zagranski and Helene Glowacki.

This week the pupils observed the birthday of one of America's most prominent men, Theodore Roosevelt. Helen Zagranski told the story of Roosevelt's boyhood. Helen Glowacki continued with the story of his later life. The school has also observed the anniversary of The Battle of New Orleans, Lucille Langlais reported on this historic encounter.

MAINE'S FEEDER ROADS

The announcement has been made by the state highway commissioner in Maine that during this year his department will spend about $2,500,000 in extending the hard-surfaced roads of the trunk line system and about $1,700,000 more will be used in improving the "feeding" roads to these trunk line highways than will be spent in extending the trunk line system.

Here is an acknowledgment that cross roads, roads that feed the main lines, are deserving of some attention. In the state of Maine they are going to get more attention than are the main lines.

What does that mean? From all indications, it means that those taxpayers in the state of Maine who have been putting all their money into main highways are going to see some of the roads which they use, roads on which they live and do business, and roads which have not received any attention in the past, put in shape for their relief.

It means that, while Maine is not giving up the idea of putting down a certain amount of permanent highways each year, it is not unmindful of the claims which those living on the feeder roads, those obliged to serve those on the cross roads, have to some part of the highway funds. In all probability, these will be for the most part of the type known as gravel roads, but it is safe to say that more people in the state of Maine will be benefited thereby than would be the case if all the money was devoted to the construction of the main highway system. Just what proportion of the highway money in Maine has been devoted to the feeder roads each year is not known, but it is apparent that the time has come when they not only deserve but are going to get more attention than they have received in the past. Maine will, of course, be criticised for its action. It will be insisted that all the money should go into permanent construction. That would be ideal, but if such a policy were followed those traveling through the state would get all the benefits while those living and doing business there would remain indefinitely on impassable highways. They would be footing the bills but getting no benefits. It is only a fair proposition that the feeder roads should receive a certain amount of attention.

MORE SENATE DELAY

"Conditions have developed to the point in the United States senate where a big noise is started by those insurgent leaders who insist upon having every wish gratified, but little or no heed is given to appeals for action that are made by others. Instead of complying with requests, the disposition displayed is that of hustling around to find some sort of a substitute. It makes little difference what it is so long as it is different and opposes.

Well before the holiday recess, President Hoover made a request of congress that it give authority for the appointment of a commission to study the conditions in Haiti in order that there might be a thorough understanding of them as they exist and for the purpose of making recommendations in regard to any changes. It came after the trouble which developed there was put down, and it was the desire of the president that the commission should get about its work at once.

The house recognized the justice of the appeal and adopted a resolution providing the necessary authority. The senate hasn't acted as yet and there seems to be no prospects that it ever will. It was nothing to spend days discussing all sorts of things that served to delay the advancement of the tariff measure but there was no inclination to devote the few minutes that would comply with the president's request.

Where the trouble lies is indicated by the statement from the Idaho senator who suggests that the present high commissioner should be replaced by a civilian and that there should be no interference with the voting by the people for members of their congress. This is, of course, the attitude of obstruction and an apparent determination to handicap and criticize the administration. It displays anything but a spirit of cooperation, although it must be recognized by fair-minded persons that the sensible method of approaching any change or a further solution of the situation in Haiti lies in the sending of a commission to ascertain the facts. Sending up hot air balloons for personal publicity contributes nothing to the solution. Plenty of time has prevailed in which the senate could have acted, even as the house has, but the country, the administration, Haiti and all the rest must await the sweet will of the holier-than-thou insurgents.

REGULATING FLYING

Connecticut long since recognized the need of state legislation for the regulation of flying, and, while it is probable that it will be obliged to make changes therein from time to time as conditions change, it has set an example which others are bound to follow.

At the opening of the legislature in New York state a bill has been introduced for the regulation of flying. It is in response to the increased participation in flying, because of the increase which has been noted in what might be regarded as reckless flying and the accidents which have occurred because of low flying over cities and over grounds where large numbers are assembled.

Most regulatory measures are adopted because of the action of a few. It becomes necessary, however, to put a check upon such inclinations at an early date if a much larger number is to be prevented from indulging in similar rashness.

There are certain regulations which have been put forth by the department of commerce, but these do not stand in the way of state action in the interest of safety. Repeatedly it has been shown that there must be some restraint placed upon the stunters or humanity will get no more consideration than a lot of paper dolls. The stunters are seeking the plaudits of the crowd. They are encouraged to do the unusual, to take desperate chances, to endanger their own lives as well as those of others. If all goes well there is great acclaim, but when something goes wrong, when a trick is attempted that cannot be completed, those below are in grave danger and in a position from which it is difficult to escape. That same hazard is created by the low flier and the best way of dealing with such conditions is to put a stop to them through legislative enactment before the situation gets any worse and before fliers become any more numerous.

Fliers can be expected to increase in numbers each year. We are getting safer planes and better planes. It is none too soon to insist upon safe flying, and it will be a most valuable contribution if regulations are established looking to such an end and a check is placed upon dangerous flying before conditions get any worse.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

It is impossible for conditions to develop in some of the large cities without more or less attention being given to them by the residents of others. Just now it is Chicago that is in the limelight, not because of any different crime conditions, but because its financial conditions are such that it cannot pay its bills.

It seems to have been suddenly found that the second city of the country is way over its head. The mayor made a gesture of trying to meet the situation by discharging a lot of policemen, firemen and dairy inspectors. They were allowed to go because there was no money to pay them and it was impossible to get more. Banks are seeking the payment of overdue judgments against the city to the amount of $7,000,000 and no one knows where nearly $2,000,000 is to be obtained to pay the school teachers this month. Dropping police didn't solve the situation, for they had to be hired back to keep down the crime wave that developed, and when firemen and inspectors are not on duty a grave situation is constantly faced.

There will be charges made against the inefficiency of the city government, bad handling of city funds and graft, and it will be insisted on every hand that inefficiency has been prevalent. The situation is not only bad but the outlook is worse. The endless piling up of debt and expenditures has been going on without any thought of the consequences until there must be a halt.

This prompts the quandary as to how much blame the people of Chicago attach to themselves for tolerating and encouraging such conditions, and how much consideration is being given by those elsewhere who are deploring such a state of affairs, to the tendency in the same direction in their own cities.

THE FIGHT AGAINST SIMMONS

It is an interesting political development which has taken place in North Carolina. For years, F. M. Simmons has been senator from that state and a real leader in the commonwealth as in party efforts in the senate. What his strength was was displayed in the last election when he refused to support his party's nominee, and North Carolina went republican.

There was resentment over his bolting and there is now a movement among his party members to spank him by sending another democrat to the senate. The effort is being made to end Simmons' political career by defeating him for renomination. Whether it can be done is a question. He showed that he had a large following at the last election. It is to be expected that he can display much strength even now, but those who were sore because of his opposition to Smith will never be satisfied until they put forth their best efforts to accomplish his defeat.

It is thus to be expected that North Carolina will experience a warm campaign, warmer than usual, for even though Simmons should be defeated in the primary it is not to be forgotten that there is a large republican vote in that state and in the event of Simmons' defeat in the primary, barring his running as an independent, there would be a favorable opportunity for the right republican candidate.

The aim in North Carolina is to show that the state is once again as much of a democratic commonwealth as it has been in the past, and to demonstrate it while administering a stiff rebuke to its long-time senator. Simmons has support, nevertheless, which it is not going to be easy to take away.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mt. Pelee is in violent eruption, and Borah is liable to break out at any moment.

With a third of January gone and nothing to complain about, it is a bit unusual.

"Parrot disease spreads." It is always hard for some people to stop talking.

While Chicago is worrying over its finances, it is doing no more than a lot of individuals.

Many a householder is wondering if the mild January weather is going to make the fuel supply last until spring.

The man on the corner says: It is always difficult to keep in touch with an animated conversation and the radio at the same time.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The New Year furnishes a ground for the exercise of faith. If it is true as some writers have claimed that "love is the greatest thing in the world," we must admit that faith is a near blood relation. There are very few attitudes of mind that call forth more of the daring and the heroic than faith. A good illustration of this is the action of many financiers in the face of the recent slump of the stock market. We do not find the rank and file of business men, nor the dealers in stocks and bonds going about wringing their hands or shivelling about their hard luck, even if many of their holdings have been cut in two, or some of them wiped out entirely. But with great faith in the business integrity of the country at large they are buying in the market and thus holding up the hands of business. Nothing can do more to keep general business going on an even keel than faith.

Of course even the acutest minds have no positive knowledge of what even an hour may bring forth. No person at the beginning of this new year can dogmatize on the length of his days. One may be young and vigorous at the very beginning of this new division of time, with the outlook of many years before him and yet be cut off the very next day. We are very reasonably certain that the vast majority of men and women, boys and girls, who are living today in the fulness of health and strength will still be on the earth when another January comes. But when it comes to individuals, it would be the very height of presumption to say that this, that or the other person would be here one year from today. Or, vice versa, certain other ones would pass away. Let us be profoundly thankful that certain things are hidden from the eyes of the most acute observer.

Is it a blessing or a misfortune that we cannot forecast the future in its main trend, and much less in its minor details? Would it add anything to the value of our present existence if we could see all the lights and shadows that will mark our pathway throughout the unknown journey of 1930? At first one is inclined to say that if we could foresee some great blessing in the coming days we would revel in all the joys of a blissful anticipation. But would that work to our general benefit? Captivated by the vision of future bliss we should be inclined to neglect present duties. Now it is an organic law of nature that our future is going to be the outcome of our present living. In other words, we are laying now the foundation of the house we shall build tomorrow. In driving an automobile one must not be so captivated with the distant scene as to lose sight of what lies ahead not more than several rods away.

On the other hand were we to have the curtain drawn so as to reveal some tragedy in our lives, such as are seen on the front page of every daily paper, what, in all human probability, would be its effect on our present peace of mind? The mere statement of such a possibility carries with it the inevitable answer. The limitation of our foresight is one of the choicest benedictions of a benign Providence. We all of us need to make this prayer: "Lord, I thank thee for some of the things in the pathway of 1930 that I do not see now!" The knowledge, judging from the past, that perils of one kind or another do lie in this human pathway creates in man an alertness that keeps him constantly on the guard against danger. But let us remember that God is in the future, so that with Whittier we can sing:

"I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air,
I only known I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."

There is at least one blessed certainty in this whole matter of facing the untraveled pathway, and that is, with our eyes wide open now, we need not make any serious blunder. What we are going to do tomorrow in the main finds its trend in what we are doing today. There is going to be no radical change in mind and morals in a single day, and perhaps not in a single year. It is not at all likely that the man, who, on January 1st, 1930 has the reputation of living in right relations with God and man is in the coming days going to smash that record by doing a lot of fool things. I say that it is not at all likely, not that it does not sometimes occur unfortunately. If his footsteps along the trail of 1929 are a shining trail of light, he is not going to slough through swales and quagmires in 1930. Have you the reputation of walking in straight, clean paths? Then is there any reason why you should not keep it up?

There is one verse in the Bible that ought to be of great help to us as we face an unknown future, that is Matthew 6, 34: "Take, therefore, no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Now this does not mean that we can go blundering through life and get away with it. The writer is here speaking of a man who is living rightly. His record is clean and his character is white. Whatever this man does is prompted by the Christ spirit. The one who realizes the manifold pitfalls of life sensing his own inability, cries out: "Guide me, O thou great Jehovah, I am weak but thou are mighty. Lead me with thy powerful hand." When a man has this spirit in his heart he is going to be led. With such promise of help there is no excuse for moral wreckage.

While our future may be uncertain, is it absolutely uncontrolable? Is it not only possible but actually probable that at the very beginning of the year we are setting into activity certain trends that will come to a logical fulfillment during the year? If a man sows cabbage seed at the right season of the year, he is reasonably certain that at the right time in the future there will be at least some crop of cabbage. If he sows a big crop of wild oats at one time it is the inevitable law of growth that the future will present an abundant harvest. So that within a definite range we can foretell what the future has in store for us. We are at present doing more for our future than any of us can imagine. And the pathos of it all is there are so many who never think about the inevitable harvest when they do the sowing. It is as true today as ever that "God is never mocked." Let us then remember we are putting up the framework of our future now.

There is one thing that we ought to cultivate far more extensively than we do, and that is sunshine. As the seed is invaluable it cannot be bought for money. It will flourish in any soil and bear fruit in any climate. It is certainly our duty to give food to the hungry, but do we realize that there is a vastly greater number who are hungry for sunshine than are longing for bread? This may not obtain in the far east where there are the starving most of the time, but it certainly does apply to this land of plenty. Sunshine, not bread is what America needs as much as anything today. It is the hovel that lacks bread, but it is both hovel and palace that lack sunshine. Every person if he is so disposed can scatter sunshine abroad. Let a kindly hand wipe the tears from the face of a child and soon it will be transfused with light.

OVER TWO SCORE KINDS OF BIRDS MAY BE SEEN HERE THIS WINTER.

A silvery note in the crystal air,
A flash of wings, an image fair
Outlined against cloud banks of blue,
Whence comes this joyous spirit free,
Carolling thanks, dear Lord, to Thee,
Echo of Nature's heart-beat true.

Here in eastern Connecticut as elsewhere, more and more persons constantly are learning the ways of nature by exploring the country roundabout for bird life; and the pleasure derived from such explorations is greatly increased when one has a definite object in view. That object may be to note the number of species seen, the rarity of certain birds, or the increase or decrease of familiar species in certain of the localities where they are most accustomed to frequent.

But whether these observations be taken singly or in combination, they surely add to the exhilaration of wandering in the open away from the common haunts of men.

The subjoined tables, arranged from "A Guide to the Birds of New England and Eastern New York," by Ralph Hoffman, provide a basis for such observations. The figures to the left in each case give the length of the bird, subject to a variation of 10 per cent. By way of comparison it may be added that a robin is about 10 inches long and an English sparrow about 6.33 inches.

The following is a list of winter birds found only in southern Connecticut and the lower Hudson valley:

Blue.

7.00. Upper parts bright blue; breast reddish-brown—Bluebird.

7.00. Upper parts grayish; wings and tail bluish; breast pale reddish-brown—Bluebird.

Sunday Morning Talk

Life's Goal.

If we take an inventory of our life during the past year we see many places where we might have done more for our Saviour. We might have been more loyal, more diligent in His service, more faithful to tell others of His love and goodness and what He has meant to us during the past year. We also recall the times we have neglected prayer and the study of His word. Let us not shut God out from any part of our life. May we realize more fully what a wonderful thing it is to give our hearts fully into His keeping; what a change it makes in our whole lives.

The beauty of a flower comes from within and the closer it is examined the more beauty is seen. So it is with all God's work. It takes much effort to make one American Beauty rose. So God in making our lives, so God in preparing us for the best has in mind heights which your loftiest ambition has never thought of. He wants heroes and leaders for His work that can stand pruning and transplanting.

The story is told of a woman who had a rare rose bush. She watched and worked over it for weeks, but saw no results for her labor. One day she found a crevice in the wall near the bush and running through the crevice was a tiny shoot of her rose bush. She went to the other side of the wall and there she found her roses blooming in all their splendid beauty. May we work on for the Master, knowing that we shall see the results when we meet Him on the heavenly shore, knowing that He appreciates our every effort.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—When Camilo Osias came to Washington March 4 as resident Philippine commissioner, there was no doubt that he would make Philippine independence his prime objective.

But who would have expected that he would prove himself to be the most potent argument he put forth to that purpose?

Yet so it was. When he delivered his first independence plea in the house, he disclosed himself as a living, human document testifying to the adaptability of his people. He loomed to house members as a shining example of the strides the islanders have made in three decades of American fostering care.

Pedro Guevara, Osias' veteran colleague, also is a man of distinction and popular with house members. He's an older man.

He was an honor graduate of Manila's law schools two years before Uncle Sam went to the islands, and he was a lieutenant colonel in Aguinaldo's army in the fight against Spain and the later insurrection against the United States.

But Osias was a ten-year-old lad in a mountain barrio of La Union province in 1899. And when he got to his feet in the house he showed what the 30 years of American tutorship have done for him.

Witty

Off hand, the Bystander cannot recall a house member more eloquent, more witty, more easy in debate than the new commissioner. He talks real American, talks it as though it was the language of his thought, which it probably is.

Now and then, as he warmed up to real oratorical fire, a Latin vowel sound betrayed him, like "repooblic" for republic. He acquitted himself in such fashion as his two American universities and two American teachers' colleges could well be proud of. The house gave him an ovation.

And probably nothing he said impressed the house more than this:

"Some say there would be (with immediate independence for the islands) massacre and killings; that there is danger from those who come from the jungles. Well, Mr. Guevara and I are good examples of men from the jungles."

The Safe Jungles

The house roared with applause as he stood there, smiling. He looked anything but jungle bred.

"And," Osias added, "life is safer in those jungles than in Manila; than in the large cities of the United States, not excluding Washington."

Asked if he would accept an act fixing a future date for independence, Osias told a story. It had to do with the admitted Oriental tendency to be late in keeping appointments.

But he quoted a Chinese philosopher as saying that when an American said "Wait a minute" it was apt to prove "the longest minute in the world."

A moment later Osias asked more time for his speech.

"How much time?" he was asked.

"Seven minutes," said the brown brother, "seven American minutes."

And he got it.

To Lebanon Taxpayers

Mr. Editor: This appeal is to the taxpayers of this agricultural town, as our grand list has been increased since 1917 about $600,000, and about $50,000 of this is the increase of the 1929 assessment. This increase has hit and will hurt a struggling agricultural community. I believe it to be very unsatisfactory and unfair. The tendency will bring about a situation which might be termed a partial collapse in the condition of agriculture in our town and which farmers' organizations all over the United States have been working against. The writer is exceedingly disappointed with the results of the last assessment and believes there is grave danger in the operation of it, unless there is a very general appeal to the board of relief of our town by its taxpayers who are affected most seriously. From a standpoint of permanent agricultural prosperity and from a farmer's standpoint I believe that our legislators are soon to recognize the fact that agricultural towns cannot stand any heavier burdens than they have been carrying and to get immediate relief we, as taxpayers, must appeal to the board of relief of our town on which we will find fair-minded men.

I am convinced the cause of agriculture is just and the responsibility now rests with the taxpayers and board of relief; hence this appeal.

Let us remain one people with many needs in common, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

TAXPAYER.

YOUR HEALTH

How Much Is Your Health Worth?

By Carl E. Buck, Dr. P. H., Detroit
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Ask the question: "How much is your health worth?" and the answer is almost sure to be:—"A great deal; more than any other single thing in life." Yet how many of us devote any appreciable amount of effort from day to day to maintain or attain good health? We eat because we are hungry, we sleep because we are tired, and we exercise, if at all, only if it pleases us to do so. Do you give any real thought to when you eat, the kind of food you eat, and the amount you eat? Have you a well thought out plan of exercise in the open designed to keep you physically fit? Few of us can honestly say that we do, and yet these are things of great importance in the maintenance of good health, which we admit is our greatest asset.

How is it that we admit that we value good health, but do so little to assure it? There are perhaps a number of reasons for this paradoxical situation.

1. The failure to do the things necessary to maintain good health often does not produce any immediate harmful results. The human machine is a very sturdy one and may be abused for a long time before any clearly defined trouble is manifest.

2. The things which are essential for the maintenance or attainment of good health are comparatively simple. They are easy to do and equally easy not to do and most people hate to bother about doing simple, easy things.

3. We are great at putting off what does not have to be done, and it is easy to say, "Oh, that's just a passing pain."

4. People who never took care of themselves when they were young are apt to think that doing so is an admission of departing youth.

Every now and again we find a person in very robust health who as a youngster was puny and in decided ill health. That person worked for his good health, and is much more likely to maintain it than most of us because he was once face to face with a manifestly serious problem, and solved it. In contrast, a great many of our best educated and intelligent people are undermining their health surely and disastrously by continued failure to observe the simple rules of good health. We can think of a number of nationally known persons who are eating themselves into their graves. They have always been large eaters. In early years they took some exercise, particularly during the summer and fall months, but later on the amount of exercise became less while the eating kept on and finally they have arrived at the point where they can't take any exercise. The human machine has become too great a load for the heart to carry and they are suffering from serious heart trouble, which unfortunately is incurable.

The cough which appears today gets better after a while, (or at least we think it does): later it gets worse and then better again, and so on for a long time. We don't feel very badly until suddenly there is a hemorrhage and we are horrified to find that we have unsuspectingly allowed tuberculosis to gain a foot hold.

The point of all this is that failure to observe simple obvious rules of good health produces ill results so gradually and insidiously that we are often not aware of them until very serious and often uncorrectable damage has been done. This applies to each of us—not just to "people" in general. We are silly if we fail to be health-conscious.

Have you "health consciousness"? If you haven't, be sure you get it before it is too late.

CONFESSION FROM BUSHINGER IN COLCHESTER BURGLARIES

SALAMUCHA ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF ARSON AT UNION HALL BUILDING

Paul Salamucha, 42, was acquitted in the criminal superior court here Friday afternoon of the charge of arson for which he had been on trial for two days because of a fire on the 11th of last June under the stage in Union hall building, corner of North Main and Sixth streets, which Salamucha owns.

Judge C. L. Avery pronounced the verdict of "not guilty" without waiting to hear Attorney G. C. Morgan's argument in behalf of the accused man, but after he had listened to the summing up of the case for the prosecution by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown.

The state attorney argued that Salamucha had the motive to set the place on fire because of his financial condition, that he had the opportunity and that the circumstances showed he did set the place on fire.

Once in the course of the state attorney's argument, when he claimed that Salamucha figured to get the $10,000 insurance money by which he could pay off his mortgages and other indebtedness and be in better financial position than he is now, Judge Avery interrupted State Attorney Brown.

"Do you think he had brains enough for that?" queried the judge.

"I do, your Honor," was the answer. "He may have appeared dumb on the stand, but he is not dumb when it comes to money matters."

In pronouncing the verdict of not guilty, Judge Avery remarked that this, of course, is a criminal case and the state is bound to prove the case against the accused beyond a reasonable doubt. While some of the testimony might tend to show that the fire was set, the conduct of the accused was different from that in any other arson case in which the judge had had experience. In most cases the one setting the fire plans to be away from the place and sneak back to start the blaze, but in this case Salamucha was there up to a short time before the fire broke out. His whole action was not that of a man setting the fire, said the judge.

Salamucha's Finances

When continuation of trial of the case was taken up in the court about noon Friday, the state rested after putting in a statement of Salamucha's financial condition in regard to this property. This showed that on June 3, 1926 he bought the Union hall property and a tenement building adjoining for $14,000 from Paul Anthony, paying $3,000 in cash and giving a first mortgage for $6,500 to the Chelsea Savings bank and a second mortgage for $4,500 to Anthony. At the time of the fire the Chelsea bank mortgage was $5,800, the Anthony mortgage $2,500, there was $250 on principal and $75 on interest due on the Anthony mortgage. Salamucha owed $100 in back taxes and $116 to his boarding house mistress and had $10,000 insurance on the Union hall building and $5,000 on the tenement house.

Testimony for Defense

In taking up the case for the defendant, his attorneys, Judge T. J. Kelly and G. C. Morgan, first called to the stand George D. Phillips, a civil engineer and surveyor from the office of Chandler & Palmer. He explained a blue print of the stage and two photographs which he had taken. He disagreed with former testimony of Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher regarding partitions on the stage and he told of finding two holes in the stage floor near the northeast corner, for which there would be corresponding holes in the southeast corner in order to make a perfect square if a boxing ring were set up on the stage. It was under the southeast corner where the fire was. One was a two inch hole and the other three-quarters of an inch. He also testified to finding the charred remains of a frame and a piece of curtain which ignites quickly when he tried it with a match.

Anthony Gromko, former owner of the Union hall building for nine years, testified there was no partition on the north side of the stage when he owned it.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gromko said he hadn't been in the building since he sold it eight years ago.

Teofil Puza, who was a partner with Gromko in the ownership of the building, but sold his half share to Gromko in 1917, gave testimony as to partitions and curtains at the time he was an owner.

In reply to a question on cross-examination, he said he hadn't been in the building for the past five years.

Boxing Promoter Testifies

James S. Quinn, promoter of amateur boxing bouts in 1927 in Union hall, told of having drilled a hole through the stage floor about two inches in diameter in order to run a pipe through for a post of the ring. Mr. Quinn showed on the plan that this hole and another one that was bored were in the floor of the stage over the burned area. Mr. Quinn explained that there was no board and plaster partition on either side of the stage but the construction on each side was by a beam that ran across from front to rear, to which side curtains were attached on pivots.

John J. Sweeney of Fitchville, a builder, who examined the Union hall premises about the last of October, was asked about cigar and cigarette butts he saw in the hall then. He was allowed to answer over the objection of State Attorney Brown. He said there were none on the stage but a lot strewn along the settees at the side of the hall.

Stanley M. Basada, a carpenter employed by Mr. Sweeney, testified to going to the hall with Mr. Sweeney regarding repairs to the building and seeing the cigar and cigarette butts thick in the hall. He saw none on the stage.

At this point the court took the noon recess.

Afternoon Session

Opening the afternoon session, Vincent Strand was the first witness called to the stand. He was a guest at the Marciniak wedding reception at the hall on the day of the fire and was there from about 3 to 10 p. m. at the hall. He said he smoked cigarettes and when a smoke was ended threw the butt on the floor and stepped on it. Everybody was smoking, the witness said.

Paul Anthony, who holds the second mortgage on the Salamucha property and was a former owner of the property, testified that Salamucha had paid off $2,000 on the $4,500 mortgage. At the time of the fire, Salamucha owed $250 on principal and $75 on interest.

Salamucha on the Stand

Salamucha, the accused man, was called to the stand by his attorneys. He said he had lived in Norwich since 1909 and bought the property in 1926. The tenement house in the rear of Union hall had been rented continuously and the store in the Union hall property had had three tenants since he owned the building. It was vacant at the time of the fire, having been vacant eight or nine months. The bank interest was paid, $700 had been paid on the principal and $2,000 on the second mortgage. He was behind $100 on taxes. Nobody was crowding him for money at the time of the fire, the witness said.

Salamucha said he went to the building for a few minutes about 6:40 a. m. on the day of the wedding, then worked at the gun shop during the day and came back to the building about 6 p. m., and left there between 10 and 11:30, closing the windows of the hall before he left, members of the Marciniak family being the last of the wedding party to go out. He locked the front door and went home, where he found the door locked. He had no key, he said, and was there about 15 minutes. He heard a whistle on the street but paid no attention to it.

Asked about kerosene in the building, he said some had been left by the grocer who had had the store. He said he had had kerosene in a can to keep paint brushes in, but he did not identify the blackened can in the court room as being the one he used.

He denied that on the day of the fire he had used or scattered any kerosene on the hall floor of the building. There were two holes on the right in the floor of the stage, he said, and the fire was right where these holes were. He said he saw three or four cigarette butts on the floor of the stage when he went into the building on the day after the fire accompanied by the fire chief, the sheriff and the surveyor.

Dumb on Cross-Examination

On cross-examination, the state attorney brought out that Salamucha ran a pool room in the Union hall building store, but closed it in August, 1928, after he had been arrested on a liquor selling charge and bound over to the superior court. The witness said a club had the store at the time of the fire having been there two or three months. He also testified as to the tenancy of the other store in the building and the rental of the second floor and the dance hall, showing that there was comparatively little income from these sources. The state attorney also questioned Salamucha as to his other sources of income.

The cross-examination was a very slow process, as Salamucha proved to be very dull in comprehension of the questions that were asked him and in making his answers. The state attorney covered what Salamucha did at the hall, where he worked and what he was doing in the alleyway at his home. Here Salamucha denied that he had told the policeman about throwing stones at the window. He said he didn't answer Toczko because he didn't know who Toczko was calling.

Civil Engineer Pitcher was recalled by the defense to introduce a picture taken from the Greeneville fire station and showing the windows on the top floor of the Union hall building.

Fire Chief Taft was recalled by State Attorney Brown to testify as to the way the building was locked with a padlock, of which the chief had a key.

Attorney Morgan challenged the authority of Chief Taft to take this action, but Judge Avery ended the discussion when he remarked, "What's the use of going into this?"

RABBI GIVES WARNING OF DANGERS OF SUCCESS

"In our own lives we can avoid the dangers attendant upon success by doing as Joseph did, namely by recognizing that not by our own hands alone did this achievement come," said Rabbi Elias Charry of the Jewish Theological seminary of America, in a thoughtful and inspiring sermon delivered Friday evening at the B'nai B'rith rooms on Shetucket street, under the auspices of the Community synagogue of Norwich.

It is commonly supposed that adversity is the only challenge to man's character, the speaker said. We, therefore, tend to praise a man like the patriarch, Jacob, for having successfully emerged from the fire of adversity with his character strengthened. However, success, as exemplified in the life of his son, Joseph, is perhaps a greater challenge.

"Frustration often tends to turn us to God and the right way. When the disintegrating acids of success attack man they usually bring out the ugly in him. The danger in success is that it makes us arrogant and overbearing and we attribute our greatness to ourselves alone. This, in turn, distorts our sense of values and throws us off our mental balance. Herein then was Joseph's greatness displayed. He was able to withstand success of the highest order, but he came out spiritually strengthened.

"Not only are individuals tested by success, but also nations. America, now the richest and most successful nation, faces just this test. How will it re-act? We shall be able to judge, at least to some extent, after our delegates reach England for the peace conference. Let us hope that they will not be overbearing.

"In our own lives we can avoid the dangers attendant upon success by doing as Joseph did, namely by recognizing that not by our hands alone did this achievement come. We must recognize that success comes from God and must be used in his service by using it in the service of mankind. The test of success is particularly applicable to us in America where most of us do achieve comparative success. How shall we withstand this test? Follow the example of Joseph and we, too, shall come out spiritually strengthened," said the preacher.

WOMEN UNDER AUTOMOBILE BUT ESCAPE UNINJURED

As an aftermath of a collision on Broadway opposite Park Congregational church about 7 o'clock Friday evening, Daniel W. Coulopoulos of No. 68 Oak street, driver of one of the machines, was arrested on a charge of failure to grant the right of way and will be presented in the city court this (Saturday) morning. Mrs. William F. Bogue of No. 168 Broad street, is alleged to have been the driver of the other machine which figured in the accident.

As a result of the collision the latter's car, which is owned by her son, Harlow L. Bogue, of No. 24 Bliss place, overturned and pinned Mrs. Bogue and another woman passenger, it is said, underneath it, with the result that they had to be extricated by those who came to their assistance. The two machines were traveling in opposite directions, the Bogue car headed toward Franklin square and the other going north.

It is understood that the accident happened when Mr. Coulopoulos tried to drive his machine into Chelsea Parade South, and in doing so struck the rear end of the Bogue machine, which was on the right hand side of the highway. The force of the impact caused the latter machine to tip over onto the sidewalk, strewing the highway and sidewalk with glass, and damaging the machine somewhat, but not hurting the occupants, other than giving them a severe shaking up.

The accident was investigated by Officers Timothy Driscoll and Patrick Shahan, who placed Coulopoulos under arrest and brought him to police headquarters.

Gallup of Providence, a son of the Central Baptist church of this city, was the speaker at the church here Friday when the concluding service was held in the series of union meetings in observing the anniversary of Pentecost. "They were all with one accord in one place."

Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt presided at the largely attended meeting and a social hour followed the service.

POETRY

An Antique

How well I remember my Grandmother Jones,
Who died before I was born;
The fairest possessions my memory owns
Are those that her precepts adorn.
And the touch of her presence remained in the room
Long after they'd carried her thence to the tomb.

The antimacassar remained on the chair,
And her hassock remained on the floor,
And an ottoman squatted conveniently where
It was useful for stopping the door.
(And the ottoman's lid, as you know, opened wide
And revealed all the magazines piled up inside.)

Her face and her figure, her habits and ways
Were translated to me by the code
Of the firescreen that shielded her cheek from the blaze,
And the lap-board she held when she sewed;
And she sat there through all of those Years of the Lord
When pictures were hung with a red worsted cord.

There are people I've known in their flesh and their bones
Who are vaguer, less concrete than she,
And it's hard to believe that my Grandmother Jones
Didn't hold me oftimes on her knee;
For I know her as nearly as any on earth—
Though her death, as I've noted, preceded my birth!

—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Spot" And His "Friends"

Straight up the street on a sturdy trot
Patters my four-footed cousin, "Spot."
"Spot" is a setter, steady and true,
A friend of mine and a friend for you.
Gripped in his mouth is a "critter's" rib
Skewed a'lee like a schooner's jib.

"Butch," my neighbor's roystering bull
Thinks that with "Spotty" he has a "pull."
And lopes with confidence to his side
And trots along with an air of pride,
While "Tag," the beagle, with flapping ears,
Waddles up in the wake of his peers.

They want to know where he found that bone,—
Kinship, with such prosperity own,
And, when it's buried under the fence,
They'll dig it up and will bear in thence;
For dogs aren't better than other folk
Who'd steal your "bones" and leave you "broke."

—Randall N. Saunders, in Pathfinder.

MASSIE MILLER SHOOTS A 74 TO PLACE AMONG LEADERS IN LOS ANGELES OPEN

RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Crouched behind a bulwark of sodden fairways, distressingly slow greens and wind gusts that darted in and out of this canyon course, old man par resisted all but one attack on his stronghold today in the first round of the annual 72 hole $10,000 Los Angeles open golf championship.

To a rank outsider—Johnny Rogers of Denver—went the honors today of turning in a sub par card of 71, one under standard figures, while each and every luminary of American golf now on the ground was forced to be content with scores reaching amazingly high totals.

Rogers, unsung and unnoticed, clubbed his way down a course made doubly difficult through unusual weather conditions. He conquered Riviera with an outgoing nine of 34, one under par, and rode home on the crest of a wave of pars that brought cheers from the spectators waiting at the 18th green.

The Denver entrant's feat silenced the thunder of the big guns of golf. His nearest rivals, Al Espinosa of Chicago, and Charley Seaver, 18-year-old amateur of Los Angeles, chalked up 73's. Each turned in 36's for the two nines.

Trapped by the trickery of the elements and dead greens, Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., young pro sensation; Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, P. G. A. champion, and Denny Shute of Columbus, Ohio, worked their way around the course in 72 strokes each.

MacDonald Smith, winner of this event for the last two years and a favorite to repeat, faltered in his putting game and took a 39-37—77. Far behind, Walter Hagen of Detroit soared up to an 81. "The Haig" holder of various important titles in the world at times, cracked wide open for a 41-40 to practically eliminate himself from the important money. Both his long and short games were off.

Former national open title holders, Tommy Armour of Detroit and Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., had first rounds of 34-40—74, and 38-38—76. Armour's outgoing nine was one under par but his game went to pieces coming in. Two other veteran campaigners, Bobby Cruickshanks of New York and Abe Espinosa of Chicago, finished the first day in the 74 class, as did Massie B. Miller of Norwich, Conn., who had a 34-40—74.

Young Seaver led the way for the amateurs with his 73, while George Von Elm of Detroit, former champion, turned the layout in 37-39—76. Johnny Dawson, simon pure from Chicago had a 39-38—77.

Par Out	544 343 444—36
Rogers Out	544 343 345—34
Par In	454 434 364—36—71
Rogers In	454 424 365—36—70

Today's first round was the most disastrous to the field since the Los Angeles open was established in 1926. Sub-par 18s had been so common in the past that when Denny Shute's 73 was marked up early in the afternoon it created a mild surprise.

Cold weather throughout the day and drizzling rain in the forenoon provided a hazard that only one out of the 130 starters could overcome. Sharp wind flurries that swooped into Santa Monica canyon played tricks with shots that under normal conditions would have assured par golf.

Rogers, leader for the round, earned his laurels by uncovering a steady short game. Rated as one of the longest drivers in the ranks, he played perfect iron shots and sank all putts.

Tomorrow the field will tee off for another 18 holes and the right to stay in the running for the 36 hole finals Sunday. The 50 low scores and ties for 50th place after tomorrow will compete in the finals.

U. S. G. A. MAKE SEVERAL CHANGES IN AMATEUR RULES

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Miss Mary K. Browne, former women's tennis champion of the United States and in 1924 runner-up in the women's golf championship, today was reinstated as an amateur golfer by the executive committee of the United States Golf association. Miss Browne, formerly of Los Angeles, but now resident at Cleveland, was declared a professional when she became a member of C. C. Pyle's touring tennis party in 1926. Her three years of probation as an amateur golfer will expire February 12.

She won the tennis championship in 1912, 1913 and 1914 and was defeated by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd for the golf championship at Providence, R. I., in 1924.

The executive committee, through Prescott S. Bush, secretary, also announced the reinstatement of Phil Carter of Los Angeles, formerly of New York.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., was named captain of the Walker cup team to play international matches in England in the spring. The other players will be selected later.

Caddies may now "carry clubs for hire" until their 18th birthdays and be prepared to qualify thereafter as amateur golfers. The executive committee raised the age limit two years.

The 1930 amateur championship will be held over the course of the Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia, September 22-27 and the qualifying rounds for the open championship will be played June 16 in 20 district. There were 19 last year and all the 1929 courses will be used with the addition of Buffalo as a new district.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM IS PRACTICING EARNESTLY

The Norwich Girls' basketball team has been putting in some strenuous practice periods the past two months and are now booking games with other girls' teams throughout the state. They will open the season next Friday at Woodstock against Woodstock academy girls. Their first home game will be Jan. 26 against the New London Y. W. C. A., playing a preliminary game to the Norwich-Middletown state league game.

The management of the Norwich Girls' team is desirous of booking games with other girls teams in this vicinity and arrangements can be made by writing or calling J. H. Demarest, physical instructor at the local Y.

PETKIEWICZ GRANTED RIGHT TO COMPETE IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—The ban on the competitive appearance of the Polish middle distance runner, Stanislaw Petkiewicz, was lifted by the executive committee of the Amateur Athletic union, today. Under terms of a decision handed down by the committee, the Pole will be free to compete, if he so desires, in the New York A. C. games, February 17; the national A. A. U. championships at Atlantic City, March 8; and the Prout memorial games at Boston, January 25.

CARDS RELYING ON PITCHERS AND NEW MANAGER FOR 1930

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—When the St. Louis Cardinals go into the 1930 National league pennant fray they will be relying chiefly upon a comeback by their pitching staff—minus Grover Cleveland Alexander—an increased infield reserve strength and the leadership of another new manager to make them a title threat.

Changing managers has become almost a habit with the Cardinals. This year finds them with their sixth in about as many seasons in the grizzled old veteran Charles "Gabby" Street, coach of the 1929 Red Birds and successor to Bill McKechnie.

Street expects to present much the same outfit of front line troops who went through the 1929 battle and ended up in a fourth place retreat after a brilliant start. Gabby, former major league catcher and somewhat of an expert in handling moundsmen, is reposing much faith in recovery of his pitchers. His particular reliance is in Bill Hallahan, young left hander who waited until September last year to win his first game and then won four in impressive form. He also believes the veterans Jess Haines and Wee Willie Sherdel will return to their best form, backed up by Sylvester Johnson, Harold Haid and Fred Frankhouse, all regulars.

And then there is Flint Rhem, former Cardinal ace who went awry and who is to be given another chance this year after an impressive 1929 season at Houston, Tex. Street also has a trio of promising youngsters in Al Grabowski of Danville, who came up to do some showy pitching at the tail end of last season, Jim Lindsey of Houston and "Kill" Carlton of Rochester. In addition, there will be a flock of young hopefuls at spring camp from Houston and Rochester farms.

Alexander is the only regular pitcher lost. This old hero of the 1926 world series went to the Phillies in a trade.

Gabby has strengthened his infield with Sparky Adams, a second baseman obtained from Pittsburgh, and Joe Hunt, flashy young Houston shortstop. Under present plans, Frankie Frisch, regular second baseman, will be shifted to third to fight it out with Andy High for a regular berth on the hot corner. Charley Gelbert, who played his first big league ball in 1929, is regarded as sure to be a much improved shotrstop. Jim Bottomley will, of course, be back at first.

Chick Hafey, Taylor Douthit and Ernest Orsatti are Street's choices for the regular outfield assignments, with Walter Roettger, Homer Peel, the latter obtained from Philadelphia, and Roscoe Holm in reserve. Holm also is available for infield reserve duty.

In addition, Ray Blades, Street's new coach who was a member of the world champion Cardinals in 1926, has announced he will try to land an outfield job.

Mickey O'Neill, released by Louisville, will bolster up the catching staff composed of the regulars, Earl Smith and Jimmy Wilson.

With this outlay, Street, who this year will be making his bow as a big league manager, is brim full of confidence that the Cardinals will be real flag contenders.

HARVARD TO PLAY MOST OF GAMES WITHOUT COACH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 10—(AP)—The Harvard baseball team will play at least a dozen home games this spring without professional coaching, Coach Fred Mitchell said today, when he voiced approval of the agreement to banish him and Joe Wood, Yale coach, to the grandstand during the next Harvard-Yale diamond series.

Mitchell said that he would not ask any visiting coach to follow his example and gave them the choice of running their teams from the bench or sitting with him in the grandstand.

"I think," he said, "the invitation from Yale to play the Harvard series without coaches on the bench is an experiment, and an experiment of that nature should not be confined to one series. In order that the principle behind the Yale invitation may have a thorough trial, I will remain off the Harvard bench for about a dozen of our home games, but I will not ask or desire the visiting coach to do so."

Many followers of Harvard baseball were not as enthusiastic as Mitchell over the move to "give the game to the players." They recalled the Harvard-Yale-Princeton series of 1914, which was conducted by the players and ended in disaster as far as Harvard victories were concerned.

N. B. A. TO CONTROL MAT GAME IN 32 STATES

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 10—(AP)—Defense of championships against logical contenders once every four months and public bidding by promoters for the right to stage title matches, feature the rules and regulations outlined today by the National Boxing association, which are effective immediately, will govern professional wrestling in the United States.

Stanley M. Isaacs, president of the N. B. A., said additional steps to protect the public and place the mat game on an organized basis, including posting of forfeits by all wrestlers appearing in title bouts that wrestlers must accept terms offered by promoters, that champions are to be decided at present in only four classes and that the N. B. A. reserved the right to specify the competitors eligible to wrestle for titles.

Inactivity in the lighter weight classes made it inadvisable at this time, Isaacs said, to settle title claims among the little fellows. Championships will be awarded only in four classes, heavyweight, light-heavyweight, middle-weight and welterweight.

The N. B. A. picked five men in each class who could enter an elimination tournament to determine the champions and specified that a champion will be named in all classes by April 20, heavyweight wrestlers must post a $5,000 forfeit with the N. B. A. before permitted to engage in title bouts, all other class wrestlers are required to put up a $2,500 forfeit. All champions must leave their forfeits on deposit with the N. B. A. as an assurance they will defend their titles three times a year.

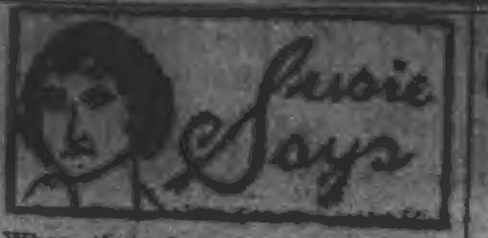
The highest bidder, no matter what part of the United States he represents, will be given the right to stage championship bouts if the N. B. A. believes the promoter can finance the match.

Layton Retains Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Johnny Layton of St. Louis retained his national three cushion billiards championship tonight by defeating Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 32, in the deciding match of the championship tournament.

Rappoport Named Captain

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Louis J. Rappoport, of New Haven, was elected captain of the Yale water polo team today, succeeding Samuel Lawrence Gwin, of Greenwood, Miss., who resigned because of ill health.



When their hair is short they let it grow and when it's long they cut it off. Gosh, ain't girls funny.

When they're thin they want to be plump and when they're plump they want to be thin. Never satisfied, always wanting to be something they're not.

And what a fuss they make over it, too. Anybody to hear 'em talk or see 'em act would think it was a matter of life and death with 'em.

When streamline bodies was the style the plump ones went on a diet while the skinny ones smiled contentedly. And now that curves are coming back the thin ones are doing the worrying and the dieting.

When the skirts were short the bowlegged ones bemoaned their fate because they had to show 'em and now that the long skirts are in vogue those with shapely limbs are crying the blues because they can't show 'em. But so it goes, all the girls can't be happy at once.

Just the same old Dame Fashion seems to be giving them a pretty even break at that. Each type of girl has her day when she can give the others the laugh and thinks she's sitting pretty. Then Dame Fashion crosses her all up and then it's somebody else's turn to sing.

Yep, these girls sure do have a tough time of it keeping up to the minute. But take the men, little they worry about fashions. They go their merry way, wearing the same old suit day after day, while the wife sits home and stews because she has worn the same dress to a bridge twice in the same month.

A man will part his hair in the same place year in and year out until there's no more hair to part. He don't worry about the changing style of coiffure, his only worry is whether he's going to have enough hair to cover that bald spot.

He'll buy a full dress suit when he is in high school and he'll be wearing it to lodge meetings in his old age. The suit may change to a sickly green but it's still in style.

A man goes into a clothing store and asks for an overcoat or suit but instead of asking if it's in style he asks how long it will wear. The average man pays less attention to the style of his clothes than he does to the style of his car.

Why, I know a man in my town who bought a brown suit when I was in high school and he's still wearing it. Then there's another man who puts the date and price in every pair of shoes he buys so he'll know just how long he's had 'em and what the depreciation on them is.

Yep, I think the men have a pretty easy time of it when it comes to worrying over how they look and what they wear. Sometimes I almost wish I was a man.

SHIRES POUNDS SPOHRER INTO SUBMISSION IN FOURTH

BOSTON GARDEN, Boston, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Arthur (The Great) Shires chalked up his fourth ring victory out of five starts here tonight by gaining a four-round technical knockout over bald-headed Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher, who struck a defensive pose in the second minute of the opening round and held it to the end.

The Great One started swinging his wild right hooks at the opening bell and kept right on top of the National league catcher, who clinched by grabbing Shires about the legs. Spohrer's only blows were rights to the kidneys during clinches.

After Spohrer was dropped for nine by a right hook to the head in the second he ceased trying and was content to remain in a neutral corner with his arms protecting his face and bald head. This relaxation lasted for more than a minute.

Spohrer became aggressive enough to cut Shires' lower lip with a light left jab in the third and they rested again, after the Great Arthur had pelted him with a few harmless rights. Shires continued his wild right swings in the fourth and so many of them landed that Spohrer's advisers threw in the towel.

Ringside statisticians announced that Shires landed 87 right hooks during the brief bout and had 38 misses. Spohrer's score was 27 hits, none of them heavy, and 40 misses.

The capacity crowd of 18,000 jeered Shires before, during and after the bout.

FLOWERS FIGHTS TO A DRAW WITH KING TUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 10—(AP)—Bruce Flowers, sharpshooting Negro lightweight from New Rochelle, N. Y., fought the rough King Tut, Minneapolis challenger, for the lightweight title, to a draw in their ten round battle in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, defeated Jimmy Owens of Oklahoma City by a technical knockout in the second round of their ten rounder. Owens was punched silly in the first round. He was no match for the titleholder. He bled profusely from a gash in the mouth and was on the verge of going to the floor from punishment in the second when Referee Dave Barry intervened. Owens weighed 148 and Fields 146 3-4.

MANDELL-QUINTERO BOUT POSTPONED TO NEXT WEEK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 10—(AP)—The lightweight fight between Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Manuel Quintero, Cuban cavalier, was called off before the first preliminary bout tonight on account of inclement weather.

The fight will be held in the outdoor arena of the Miami Kennel club Wednesday night, Jan. 15, according to announcement from the office of G. B. K. Carter, promoter of the bout.

UZCUDUN BATTERS OUT DECISIVE VICTORY OVER VON PORAT IN 10 ROUNDS

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Fighting back fiercely from the valley of the deep fog, the ancient wood chopper from Spain, grim Paulino Uzcudun, carved a few chinks from the middle of lanky Otto Von Porat tonight and won a fight after 14,000 of the faithful were ready to start singing the old Berserk's Swan Song.

For three rounds the tall, lantern-jawed schoolmaster from Norway poured right hand volleys into the Spaniard's head. Volley after volley crashed into the chin of the Spaniard, one long right hand after another sank deep in his body. His nose poured crimson, his left eye turned red, and lumps stood out all over his weather-beaten countenance.

Then with his countrymen at the ringside shouting feeble vivo's and a dozen bells clanging in his ears, this same old rock of the Pyrenees started to fight. He walked straight into Von Porat's cool, taking drives, shook his head and slashed at Otto's body, until the big Norwegian faltered and the tide turned.

From the end of the third round on, when some were wagering he would not go another round, Paulino won all that there was to the fight with the exception of the fourth session, that was even, and though the Spaniard's margin in several other rounds was little, still he never did quit showing that Von Porat is one man he can whip.

It was hardly an exciting battle from the fourth round on and chief interest was in Uzcudun's unsurpassed gameness. He slung leather eternally at Von Porat's head and body from close range, locking his thick skull alongside the Norwegian's until the gallery folks whistled for help and more action but that style of milling turned the trick.

Paulino drove Von Porat around the ring in a desperate, furious attack to the mid-section that wilted Otto as the rounds piled up and left him at the close a beaten but unmarked fighter.

During the first three rounds, Von Porat punished the Spaniard as few have done in long years of milling, as the Basque, not up to his best form, piled in behind arms wrapped about his head. Otto stepped back and ripped right uppercuts under that defense. Von Porat is recognized as one of the stiffest of all the heavyweight punchers.

Paulino staggered through the first round, his nose battered by a right hand smash. In the second session Uzzi's right eye went into mourning while time and again his knees buckled under terrific drives to the head. The third was another torturous session.

The Berserk found himself there, as his body smashes wore Von Porat down and the Norwegian lost his vicious accuracy with that flaming right hand. Paulino swarmed all over him, there was no time when Von Porat seemed in danger of hitting the floor, but his defeat was decisive. It marked Paulino's third victory over the Norwegian.

After the battle, Von Porat said he quit punching from the fourth round on because of injuries of his hands. He had no excuses to offer, however. Paulino said the Norwegian was the best man he has ever encountered.

Von Porat weighed 208¾. Paulino 196¼.

Freddie Lenhart, free swinging heavyweight from Spokane, Wash., opened his eastern campaign tonight by knocking out Phil Mercurio of New York, in the sixth round of the opening ten round bout. Lenhart belted out the lanky Mercurio, who outweighed him by 12 1-2 pounds, with a sweeping left hook to the chin after 1:16 of the sixth.

Paul Bianchi, Argentine giant, won the decision over Mark Simons of New York in a four rounder. Bianchi was knocked down twice for counts of five in the first round but outscored Simons the rest of the way. Bianchi weighed 213; Simons 232.

Edgar Normans, Danish light heavyweight, defeated Eddie Huelsedus, of Germany, in a six round preliminary.

Y FIVE FACES WILLINGTON AT Y TONIGHT

The Norwich "Y" Five will tackle South Willington tonight on the local court. South Willington comes here with a great reputation and last year were state county "Y" champions. The team is composed of several former college stars and have been playing together for the past three years.

The locals have been putting in a number of practice sessions the past week, working on new plays, and developing a stronger offensive game. Coach Demarest hadn't announced his lineup at press time but it is expected that Brown and Lynch will start at the forward positions, Harris at center, with Pingree and Eccleston doing guard duty. This outfit is one of the sweetest combinations seen on local basketball floors in some years.

This game is a non-league game but Norwich will swing back into league competition next Saturday night, Jan. 18th, when they play Ansonia at Ansonia. At present the local club is in second position, Middletown still heading the league.

Randy Whaples will be the eleventh man on the floor.

The preliminary game will be between the Norwich Internationals and the Riversides of New London. This will start at 7:45 and the main game at 8:30.

YALE BEATS AGGIES WITH EARLY SPURT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Yale smothered the Connecticut Aggies basketball team in the first half of their game here tonight, and thereby won the game. The score was 25 to 19. Yale did most of its scoring in the first period when it took a 17 to 4 lead. The Aggies, however, played superior ball in the second half, outscoring the Elis by 15 to 8, but could not overtake the leaders because of the size of the lead which they had amassed.

Horwitz of Yale and Ryan of the Aggies were the stars of the game, each being high scorer for his team. Horwitz took individual honors with ten points. The Aggies missed 13 out of 18 foul shots. The summary:

MISS WETHERED SILENT ON GOLF PLANS FOR 1930

LONDON, Jan. 10 — (AP) — Joyce Wethered, British women's golf champion, is keeping her competitive plans for the future to herself. Today, she refused to either confirm or deny reports that she would retire from competition and on that account would not assemble a team of British women to play a team from the United States, headed by Glenna Collett. It was recalled that Miss Wethered announced her retirement in 1926, but consented to make another campaign on the links when Miss Collett threatened to take the title to the United States in 1929.

Earth

What is earth, greybeard?—A place to grow old.
What is earth, miser?—A place to dig gold.
What is earth, schoolboy?—A place for my play.
What is earth, maiden?—A place to be gay.
What is earth, seamstress?—A place where I weep.
What is earth, sluggard?—A good place to sleep.
What is earth, soldier?—A place for a battle.
What is earth, herdsman?—A place to raise cattle.
What is earth, widow?—A place for true sorrow.
What is earth, tradesman?—I'll tell you tomorrow.
What is earth, sick man?—'Tis nothing to me.
What is earth, sailor?—My home is the sea.
What is earth, statesman?—A place to win fame.
What is earth, author?—I'll write there my name.
What is earth, monarch?—For my realm is given.
What is earth, churchman?—The gateway of heaven!

Christmas Gifts.

The joy that's born of Christmas gifts is not within themselves
Or you or I could pick our joys from any merchant's shelves
And you could buy more costly things than ever I could give.
And though no friend should come your way contented you could live.
Yet some poor trinklet rich becomes and treasure to the end
Because it is the symbol of a true and loyal friend.

The thing is nothing as it lies upon a merchant's shelf,
And scarce a thought you'd give to it for what it is itself.
There may be thousands like it round about you everywhere,
But let a friend bring it to you and straightway it is rare.
For something of that friend into his simple gift is wrought
And it becomes a precious thing—a token of a thought.

We are a sentimental clan, we fight and strive for gold,
Yet treasures which we closest guard are never bought or sold;
The things we value most are not the gems our money buys.
But all these sweet and lovely things that memory bids us prize.
The faded slippers of a babe not in themselves are dear,
But in the thoughts they bring to us of one no longer here.
And so it is with Christmas gifts, 'tis friends who make them rare.
The trifle that with love is rich has worth beyond compare;
The moment that it passes from some friendly hand to you
It has assumed a value that before it never knew.
And what was common in itself is now beyond all price
Because it represents to you some good friend's sacrifice.

Requirement.

We live by Faith; but Faith is not the slave
Of text and legend. Reason's voice and God's,
Nature's and Duty's never are at odds.
What asks our Father of his children save justice, and mercy and humanity,
A reasonable service of good deeds,
Pure living, tenderness to human needs,
Reverence and trust, and prayer for light to see.

The Master's footprints in our daily ways?
No knotted scourge or sacrificial knife,
But the calm beauty of an ordeal life,
Whose very breathing is unworded praise—
A life that stands as all true lives have stood,
Fast rooted in the faith that God is good?

Help.

Dream not, O soul! that easy is the task
Thus set before thee. If it proves at length,
As well it may, beyond thy natural strength,
Doubt not, despair not. As a child may ask a father, pray the Everlasting Good
For light and guidance mids't the subtle snares
Of sin, thick planted in life's thoroughfares,
For spiritual nerve and moral hardihood.

Still listening 'midst the noises round about
Of time and sense, the inward speaking word,
Bitter in blame, sweet in approval heard,
Piercing the tumult of the world without;
To health of soul a voice to cheer and please,
To guilt the worth of the Eumenides!

Utterance.

But what avail inadequate words to touch
The innermost of Truth? Shall I essay,
Blinded and weak, to point and lead away,
Or grasp a theme for angels over-much?
Yet if it be that something not my own,
Some shadow of the thought to which our schemes
And creeds and rituals are uncertain dreams,
Is even to my unworthiness made known,
I may not hide what yet I scarcely dare
To utter, lest on doubtful lips of mine
The real seem false, the fitness less divine.
So through the pauses of an inward prayer,
I own the faith which seems the simple truth
At evening time, as in the dawn of youth.

Concerning X

Fickle as air, or your favorite six,
What a remarkable letter is X.
X in the Roman notation is ten;
X is the mark of illiterate men;
X means a crossing as drivers should note;
X in a circle may count as a vote;
X is a quantity wholly unknown;
X is a ruler removed from his throne;
X may be xenon, a curious gas;
X is a ray of similar class;
X-mas is Christmas, a season of bliss;
X in a letter is good for one kiss;
X is for Xerxes, that monarch renowned;
X is the place where the body was found.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

PORTIA NERISSA, ALVERNON: Your names have been listed as Corner members.

NONESOPRETTY: The expiration date is Jan. 11.

AMLY: Paper sent.

GREETINGS FROM L. T. H.

Social Corner Editor and Writers: I wish you all a happy New Year. A little late, perhaps, but all the same I send it.

I wish to thank the Social Corner member for the darling calendar, so full of cheer and sunshine, sweet little messenger of 1930.

I never had so many greeting cards in my life and all filled with sunshine and cheer and from true friends, old and young. They sure did bring cheer and comfort to me as my sister was buried the 23rd of December. The letter being delayed, I got it at 12:30 with the funeral at Hope Valley, R. I., at 2 p. m. But I feel I did for her when living so not so bad as we can not do for the dead as we can when living. Give a helping hand and flowers when living so they can enjoy it. Flowers after death to me is a waste of money, to freeze in a few minutes, and so many are living who are suffering and in need.

Nonesopretty: I am really ashamed for not writing you a letter and thanking you for the nice Christmas gift and letter. Sent card intending to send letter at once. I will write soon. I am better than when I last wrote, so I am able to walk on limb quite good again; walk about three fourths of a mile to wood lot, chop a load of wood and come home again. Now go earlier and take lunch, so if you and Joan or Aries come along I could give you some lunch. Am by the side of the road so you won't miss seeing me. Just say, "This is Kochia's auto," I will know Joan anyway.

Joan: I was so glad to get your nice letter, also to see one in Corner page.

I wish to thank all the Corner writers that sent me Christmas and New Year cards from Club 1, 2, 4 and 6, also to Cecil Brunner for the lively card and calendar. Is that Barry at your feet helping you?

Aries: Many thanks for card and good wish on it. Hope you are feeling better.

Violet: Sorry you had to go home. Glad no one was hurt. I sure was glad to see M and H. Sorry they couldn't stay longer. So kind of them to come and tell me reason not here early and you and others with them.

I wonder how many of club members know Begonia has had a shock? I think it would be appreciated if cards were sent to her. Mrs. Lucy Burnham, Scotland, Conn. She is a dear, sweet soul. I have known her most 47 years. I hear she is on the gain and hope she may be around again. She is being tenderly cared for by her sister and two nieces I am told.

Just I: Cheer up, summer is coming when you can come and we will take a cruise and see nature's lovely scenery and views. Best wishes to all.

PLUCKING GEESE FEATHERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Since Quid Nunc, Jennie and Cretia have started us in a reminiscent vein, I would like to ask if any of our readers ever had any experience in plucking geese feathers? Among the childhood experiences mother has related is that of watching her father and mother pick geese. The season for doing this was in early summer, probably June, for at this time the quills are dry and loose and picking does not hurt the geese as it would when the feathers are newly started and full of blood.

The goose was held with the head under one's knee. Sometimes a saucy bird would take revenge by giving a smart nip at the calf of its captor's leg and many people used to draw a stocking over the goose's neck but grandmother never bothered with that.

The fluffy feathers about the breast, back, etc., are plucked. Care must be taken when picking around the wings, that the little clumps of feathers, a sort of second wing, so to speak, are not disturbed, for without these the wings will drag.

Furniture dealers were the ones who purchased them, for in the days of fluffy feather beds those filled with geese feathers were rightly considered the best. And before the days of furnaces a good feather bed was one of the best insurances against the penetrating cold of unheated sleeping rooms.

Live geese feathers sold for a dollar a pound for these brought a little more money than those plucked from fowl killed for the market.

When grandmother felt the desire for a little extra pin money to buy something she especially desired the horse was hitched up and she and mother drove to the store with their bags of feathers and made a sale.

CANNING THE SURPLUS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Folks: Will stop procrastinating and write a few lines to the Social Corner. Have intended to for several weeks, now I'll get busy and do it.

First I want to thank a Social Corner Member for my dainty calendar. It is very pretty. When I looked at the page lately I wonder if we deserve such faithfulness. You see, I am judging every one by myself.

Today has been such a beautiful day clear but cold, with a gorgeous sunset. I was very much pleased to hear the Butterfly sing in spite of the cold. You see, we have a peculiar kind of Butterfly here, that really and truly sings in spite of the weather. It's a unique specimen, don't believe one could be found in the Limberlost. By the way has any one read "Freckles Comes Home," a sequel to "Freckles?" If so, how did you enjoy it? I had it for a Christmas present.

I re-read Freckles before I commenced the new one. There are several discrepancies in the first chapter but in spite of that I am enjoying it just as much.

I want to thank all the sisters for their Christmas cards. I intended to send more but ran out of cards. Thought I had an abundant supply but found out I was wrong. I try to remember all the aged, sick and shut-ins.

Am glad to welcome Turquoise. I'm sure I know "who is who." Is your birthday in December?

Well, Twice Twenty, you sure had me guessing when I got your card. Don't know as I should have ciphered it out, but for Mr. 1492.

Well, Mary Gusta, did you get scolded? I haven't heard any SOS.

I am going to try your ginger bread some day, Cenzi.

Wonder what has become of Bee True.

I wonder if any of the sisters can their surplus Christmas turkey. Instead of trying to use up a whole turkey I can part of it and then we don't get tired of it. When we take a notion to have a turkey dinner I just open a jar and have a treat any time. I need the last of my 1929 Christmas turkey last August. In the winter when I bake beans I bake a big pot full and can except what we want for two meals. Then in the summer when I don't want to keep a fire for baking beans, you see, all I have to do is to open a jar and warm them.

Am enclosing a little poem I found some time ago. I thought it rather interesting.

NEW MEMBER WHO PLANS TO WRITE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Please may I join your Social Corner? I have read the Social Corner letters for the past ten years but didn't have courage to join before. If I am accepted I will try and do my share of letter writing. Wishing all a very happy and prosperous New Year.

I will take for my pen name.

ALVERNON

CONTENTED IN NEW HOME

Dear Social Corner Friends: Have been one of the silent ones so long I hardly know what to write about now. Have read and enjoyed the letters each week and wanted to write but just didn't get to it. And lately I had all I could attend to, for I have moved from the house where I had spent the last 20 years. When I heard that Ma of Greene Gables had moved from her old home I felt very sorry for her for it seemed to me it must have been very hard for her to leave that pleasant place, but "Lo and Behold" when we heard from Ma she was happy and contented in her new home and did not regret leaving the od home. Well, now, I know how she felt, for I like my new home very much and would not want to go back to the old home, even if I could. My only regret in leaving the old home was in leaving my kind neighbors and friends who lived near, but we can still visit each other, even if we are not so near. As of yore, Lady Slipper was glad to see a letter from you recently; had wondered why you did not write to the Corner. I often think of you and I value the gift you sent me. By the way, I wrote to thank you for it; hope you received the letter? One of my gifts at Christmas was a handkerchief with tatting on edge (single ring). Now I want to thank a Social Corner member for a pretty calendar. Very kind of you to remember so many of us year after year.

Cala Lily: Your card received, will answer that, also your letter, soon. I did enjoy so much the letter by Quid Nunc, "Beauties of the Frost King." I was reminded of times when I was a tiny girl, my father would hold me in his lap and trace out pictures in the frost on the windows and all my life since, when I have seen windows covered with frost, I would trace pictures, same as my father taught me so many years ago. He also loved to watch the clouds and find pictures in those. He also loved to watch the sun set. And I love it as well as he did. From the window in my new home I can see the sun set and it's a great pleasure to me. I wish I could write something which would be of some help to someone but I do not know what it would be; surely nothing about moving. The man who moved my things said I had packed things fine and not a thing was broken. It was the first time I ever moved and I hope it will be the last. It was a cold day, raw wind and snow on the ground, but when it was all over, how thankful I was, and now I am so contented in the new place I am going to try and forget the terrors of moving and how tired I was. Some happy hours were spent in the old home, but more sad hours than happy ones. Now that is all in the past. I hope the new year will prove to be a happy one for each and every one of the readers of this paper.

Best wishes to the Social Corner Editor and all the members.

AUNT SUSIE

NEW YEAR WISHES.

Dear Social Corner Folks and Editor: This is the first time I have written 1930. Now I must bid the old year good-bye and for each and every one of you I am hoping you will have the happiest year of your lives.

To the Social Corner member who sent me the lovely letter calendar I will say, Thank you! I only hope everyone of you had as nice a Christmas as I did. Oh, so many cards! Nearly 100 came to us here. It is fun, but not so with the carriers I fear! I will not attempt to write all the different gifts I received for I want to send a poem that is very appropriate for this time of the year entitled Christmas Gifts.

Jennie: When I read your trundle bed experience, I thought I would write and tell you about mine which I can just remember. My folks moved to Pomfret from a neighboring town when I was born. I had one sister and we used to sleep in a trundle bed which was pulled out from under a large bed where father and mother slept. I can just remember it. My sister died when she was 18 and father and mother have gone to the mysterious beyond. When I think of those long ago happenings I can only say, "Life is a book we read." I am alone again this afternoon and the radio is quiet. I have improved every minute to get my letter writing caught up.

Nonesopretty: Thank you for the gift you sent. It was tiny but very cunning.

Rose of New England: I have just been reading your trundle bed experience. Now I must tune in for the Dandys. They are always good when I am alone.

Thirty Two: I, too, heard the goodwill programs from England, Holland and Germany. Yes, it was wonderful. Since then I heard the football game in California; never listened to one before. Heard Holy Night 27 times. That is always good, you know. Hoping to see the page full next time, I will say "Aurevoir."

ANN TENNA

STARTING NEW YEAR RIGHT.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I do not want to let the first month of 1930 go without doing my bit. Haging been away for five weeks, owing to the death of a dear brother, was sorry not to be able to do my part for the last meeting of Club No. 2, but hope to be able to be at the next, Jan. 14th.

Hope everyone had a merry Christman, and I wish them a happy New Year.

U. C. E.: Are you taking subscriptions again? My paper says mine has run out and I would like to renew it.

I want to thank the Social Corner Member for the very pretty calendar, also to thank all who so kindly remembered me with gifts and cards. Would like to thank each one personally, and may later.

Kind wishes for the corner.

SCOTTIE (Club 2.)

GREETINGS FROM NONESOPRETTY

Dear Editor and Friends: Some fine winter weather we are having and I hope it lasts. I thank each and all who sent me cards and gifts and for the pretty calendar. It is so nice I can keep it in my letter box.

Velvie: How are you? I sure have not forgotten you in the little brown house by the road, and Ella and Gertie are still remembered.

Kochia: How are you and your ma? Did not fall on the ice, did you? The best way not to fall is to stay in the house. Another good way is to take burlap and tie it over the shoes. I know this to be the best thing to put on the feet to keep you from a fall. I know an old gent who always puts it on and he never got a fall even on glare ice. Now those that have to be out just try it. I used to have some creepers but the bag beats anything yet.

Butterfly: Hope you are fine. Has bubby got that trap handy?

Aries, Skipper, Violet, L. T. H.: Will try and answer your dead letters.

Aries: I did not tell you all about that picnic but will before long.

Daisy Dean; Pisces: Glad to see your letters.

L. C.: Providence Rose is slightly better.

Rural Aunty and Ma of Green Gables: Did you get blown off the old hill? I know how the wind can blow up there.

Peter Prose: Be a good little girl and give us one of your fine letters to cheer up an old whippoorwill still on the rock. The wind has not blown me off yet.

Well, I hope all the sick are better and may God be with them all and the dear shut-ins. Every day brings us one nearer to springtime and the birds. Well, I have music all the time for there are blue jays, crows and other birds and the hum of flies by day and a dog concert by night. Now, isn't that fine?

NONESOPRETTY (Club 4.)

IN TRUNDLE BED DAYS

Dear Cornerites: A happy New Year to all.

May the coming year be splendid
Every day till it is ended,
Then—well, maybe that will do you
Till I send more wishes to you.

Thanks, editor, for the yellow slip which found its way to me a few weeks ago. They are always received with pride and pleasure.

Jennie: I, too, remember the trundle beds but do not remember of ever sleeping in one. When I was between seven and eleven years old we lived in a large old farm house. There was a very large kitchen and out of that a very large bed room and in this room there were two full sized beds, one for father and mother, the other for sister and me, then there was the trundle bed for brother. When we moved from there we children had to go upstairs to sleep and then brother slept on one of those cross-legged and canvas covered cots. Don't know what ever became of the trundle bed or cot.

When I was very small, father kept sheep and I can remember seeing the wool sheared from them and then it was taken to a factory in Rhode Island where it was washed and made ready to spin into yarn. We thought it lots of fun to watch mother spin and then to listen to the click of the swift as she wound the yarn into skims. When in the skims mother colored it to suit her fancy (not with diamond dyes) but with barks, roots and plants she gathered and the colors were set with alum, salt and copperas. Evenings father would hold the skeins on his hands while we wound them into balls and would get us into all sorts of trouble by letting off several strands at a time and if a tangle resulted, mother came to the rescue. Out of these balls she knit stockings and mittens for the whole family. I believe people were happier then than now. What think you?

Your Neighbor: Am I not right in saying I have sat in a lodge room with you many times? And also seen you in the East? Welcome to our Corner.

Sisters, the next time you get a bruise cover it immediately with salt butter so there will be no discoloration.

1492: I surprised myself greatly when I tried your spelling contest. Hope we have one at some of our meetings.

TWICE TWENTY

KOCHIA'S OBSERVATIONS

Dear Editor and Social Readers: Greetings! It's a long time between drinks, once said the governor of North Carolina; and so it is the same with my writings.

You are all without a doubt reading and following the outcome of the Black Duck case. I am afraid the coast guards acted too quickly. It certainly seems too bad that three of the men must pay by losing their lives. But is that all? Some proclaim it is just a step towards another war. A war here on our native soil. Rhode Island, one of the richest states in the Union, declares it is not through with its investigation. Massachusetts has not forgotten that all men are created equally, since the landing of the Pilgrims, the Boston Tea Party and the Spirit of '76.

The morning paper stated that the jury finds Washington is not half as bad as painted. A little ways farther on we read; Finds large number of cases of crime due directly or indirectly to violations of the prohibition act. Our last Sunday paper reported that New London was well supplied with booze. How much of the above are really true facts is for us to learn. Yet perhaps we never will know.

Speaking of New London I was invited to attend the installation of the Unity Circle Companions of Foresters of America, which was held on Monday evening at the Moose hall in New London. Supper was served at 6:30, followed by installation at 8 o'clock Chief Deputy Mrs. Vine and her able assistant, Miss Cavanaugh, most ably installed the officers. The ceremonies were very impressive. At the close communications were read from headquarters in New York that Mrs. Vine was reinstated as chief deputy for two more years. The Mohican Hotel orchestra furnished music for dancing which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

All that I saw that looked wet to me beside the coffee, was the slippery streets caused by the rain which fell during the evening and froze, making driving very difficult and slowed our arrival home. Best wishes.

FLAKEY PIE CRUST

Dear Editor and Corner Members: I was real pleased to see my first letter to the Corner published December 14th for then I knew I was accepted in the Corner, for which I wish to thank the editor most sincerely. I also wish my thanks to be accepted for the prize check I received. It was a very pleasant surprise, and I say, thank you again. I hope I'll be able to spend this at some of the Corner meetings.

I wonder if there are any sisters who have trouble making a real good pie crust? Often times a good cook has been heard to say, her pies weren't presentable. I am trying to give a simple but good recipe clearly so everyone may be successful, as pie is America's leading dessert and we all want to be able to make luscious ones. First remember all ingredients must be cold. For a one crust pie take 1 1-2 cups pastry flour, (one teaspoon salt, sifted), 1-2 cup fat, (lard makes the better crust), cut into flour with two knives or pastry cutter until the whole resembles very coarse meal or a bit like cottage cheese. Some flour requires more or less lard, so if you find your lard and flour is paste like, add more flour, if too dry add more lard. Add cold water gradually until the paste comes away from sides of bowl. Three or four tablespoons may do. Chill the paste, then roll out lightly. Fit it in pie plate, being careful not to enclose air. Flute edge if desired and prick bottom and sides well with fork. Bake in quick oven 500 degrees F., for 12 minutes. You then have a delicious shell for a meringue pie. If you wish a two crust pie use twice the amount and do not prick the bottom crust. Sprinkle with a little flour and sugar mixed together; this prevents the juice soaking into the bottom crust. Fill with desired filling and wet edge of crust with water, put top crust on and press on the edge lightly with floured fork and cut off overhanging dough. Brush over crust with a little milk or light cream for a beautiful golden colored pie. Cut a few slits in center of top crust and your pie is ready for a hot oven 450 degrees F., for 40 or 45 minutes, reducing temperature to 375 degrees F., last part of baking.

I have tried recipes calling for sugar or baking powder or saving some of the fat to do the dough after rolling out, but I prefer this simple recipe. Hope any that may try it will like it as well as I do.

May everyone enjoy good health and be prosperous this new year.

FIDELIS.

STARTS NEW YEAR RIGHT.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am starting the new year right you see, but you can never tell from the start you make how you may finish, and as it is the finish that counts I may come out far from right.

First I want to thank all of the sisters who sent me cards or letters of sympathy. It is nice to be remembered. Also I thank Skipper for her little visit. I wish I could write such long letters like Sunse. The words seem to run right out of her pen and almost every week, too. And it seems she has so many trips to tell us about and all sorts of meetings besides.

I am home again after being away for the last seven weeks, but can't tell you about my trip for I was only two streets away in my same old town. I hope that some of the people call me up now that I am here that have called when I wasn't and then told me about it when I saw them. You know I don't like to miss anything and when I think of the times that telephone has rung and I not here to answer it! Talking is one of the things I am noted for among a few others.

I enjoy the letters from Evelyn Burr very much. We were at the same small table in Norwich once and she told me who a number of the sisters were and where they lived.

I will have to get Nonesopretty to help me catch my rats and mice I think for I seem to have an over supply all at once and the worst part of it is I can't find where they get in. We have caught four or five in the last two days and I can hear one in the pantry this minute. Well the traps are set in there so all I can do is wait for them to do the work.

I must tell you about the vase I made from an earthen jar. It is about six inches high and perhaps five across the bottom and almost straight up and down. I took the colored linings from Christmas card envelopes and cut them into odd shapes and all different sizes and glued them on until the whole jar is covered like a patchwork quilt, then varnished or shelaced over the papers and paint a band of gold around the top and I have a vase that is different and rather pretty. One could do this with any well shaped glass jar or a larger earthen one as long as the varnish covers the papers the water won't harm the colors.

For the first letter this year this is growing rather long so I must wish all a happy New Year and say good-night.

TISH (Club No.6.)

A HAPPY DAY

Dear Social Corner Members: If not too late, will wish the editor and all members a very happy New Year. I also want to thank Social Corner Member for the dainty calendar.

Ora: Was glad to see your letter. Was thinking of you not long ago.

Now Christmas is past, what a lot of things we find to do, sewing, etc. Today, Skipper and myself have been spending the day with Lauret and such a nice time as we had. Our needles flew as well as our tongues, and that is going some. Mr. Lauret and Ravena helped along in the conversation so it was a red letter day, only we had no appetite for supper when we got home.

Olga: Had fine success cooking my turkey, as you cook yours.

Prudence: Was so glad I met you and to think I did not recognize you.

Commuter: Your letter was fine. Write often. I agree with your suggestions for an auto trip. We always carry those things you mention, also a little box filled with first aid remedies. We always keep soap, towel and a pair of overalls in the car.

Hope to see a large number at our next meeting of Club 6, on January the 21st.

E. L. M.

SOMETHING UP HER SLEEVE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Again we are starting a new year in our meetings and the Christmas rush is over so start the year right by being there to answer, present, when the roll is called.

Be sure and bring your bit of food; it is expected of you. Don't be a slacker.

I understand there were several sisters who went to the Buckingham last Tuesday by mistake. Too bad for those after they had the food all prepared. It's Tuesday, the 14th, and I hope there will be a room full as I am to be hostess.

I have "something up my sleeve" for the entertainment so look over your old school speller and dictionary, and bring along a pencil and a piece of scrap-paper.

Libby: Hope you will be able to come this time, also Mawb.

Sister Ready: Hope you can come in for a while. Best wishes for your new year.

PICKS A NEW PEN NAME

I received a notice some time ago in the Social Corner of the Norwich Bulletin that the name, Pocahontas, belongs to some one else as a pen name.

You have asked me to make another selection. May I have "Portia Nerissa" for my pen name?

This pen name will ever remind me of the many pleasant hours I spent studying the play, The Merchant of Venice, the author of which was William Shakespeare.

Trust I have chosen a proper name for my pen name.

PORTIA NERISSA.

SUCCESS TO THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have been very busy during the holidays and could not find time to attend the meetings, but I shall in the near future.

I hope all the members are feeling fine, not forgetting Canterbury Bell.

I will end this short letter, wishing success to the Corner.

SENSITIVE PLANT

DAIRIES VALUABLE FOR REFERENCE.

Dear Social Corner Members: I just stopped ironing to rest, so think I will try to improve the time by writing a letter. I hope to write one letter each month this year, but may fall far short of carrying out my plan. We have to live by the day instead of looking forward a whole year ahead. It is easier to live one day well than a longer time.

Although we often think there is nothing interesting to write about, yet all letters are probably helpful to some and some are helpful to all. If we can't all write like the late Kitty Lou, we must do the best we can to make an interesting Corner.

More time is wasted on ironing than on most work. If the clothes are folded when taken from the line, the flat pieces require only to be aired, except the nicest pieces, which may need sprinkling. If several handkerchiefs are placed on a towel on the board together it saves time in ironing.

In colonial days every thrifty housewife made her own candles. The waxy berries of the bayberry bush which still grows in large quantities in New England, were often used. Bayberry candles burn brighter and more slowly than wax candles and yield a fragrant odor, especially when extinguished. "Insomuch that nice people often put them out on purpose to have the incense of the expiring snuff."

The Bayberry candle, so wise folks say,
Brings wealth, peace, joy and health
If you burn the dip on Christmas day.

Another verse says:

A Bayberry candle
Burnt to the socket,
Brings luck to the house
And gold to the pocket.

My mother helped her mother dip candles. They placed pieces of candle wicking on a rod, then dipped the wicks into hot tallow in a kettle over a fire in the fireplace. Then hung the wicks up to drip and harden. (If in too warm a place most of the tallow dripped off.) The wicks had to be dipped until the candles were large enough. When candle molds came into use much time and labor was saved. Mother's great uncle used to move a lighted candle along the lines of print in a newspaper while reading. He called the paper some "weak-ly" and said it wasn't printed until "day after tomorrow."

When my mother was 14 years old she helped her grandmother bake in the brick oven and got so tired that she cried. There is a brick oven in my house but I have never had the courage to use it.

One sister spoke of diaries in her letter. If they are well kept from year to year they often prove interesting and valuable when certain questions come up about some happening. If one isn't persistent about writing in them regularly, there are too many blank pages to have them of much value for reference. Best wishes for the New Year.

ROSARY (Club No. 1).

WANTS A FULL PAGE.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just now the weather is fine for January. After all the pleasures and happiness of the holiday season, to say nothing of how tired most everyone is, it is a good time to rest and relax after all the excitement and take life easy for a while. Hope that Santa Claus was as good to you all as he was to us.

I take this time to thank the Social Corner sister, who so kindly sent me the pretty calendar for 1930. I shall place it on my desk as I have those that I received in previous seasons, for they are very much appreciated by me and useful. I realize that the writing on this calendar is different than in previous years and that means another kind hearted person has taken up this pleasant thought of our lost sister and continues the years brightness to different Social Corner members.

Pinkey: In your letter to the Corner Saturday I read that you have $4.35 in Red Arrow money which you wish to give away. If I am not too late would you pass it along to me? I am saving it and for two auctions have not had money enough to win what I selected. I have about $100.56, but have been overbid each time, so would be very pleased to receive your money. If so, sometime perhaps, I can do you a kindness. I thank you, and if I am too late, and you have given it to someone else, I still thank you, and think you very kind to offer it as "every little bit added to what you've got, makes a little bit more."

Well as I have not written for some time I thought it best to add my bit for a start for the new year, as I do love to see our page full of the thoughts and ideas of the different writers.

Aries: That is a good thought of yours to "Pull together for a full page." Sumac also says, "Keep Corner page full."

Diana: I agree with you in not having a long list of New Year resolutions, because it is almost impossible to carry them out.

Still I will try and write more often than I did last year for our Corner page. I always feel sorry when the page is not full and a little bit guilty that I had not contributed toward filling it. But as all housekeepers know there are often weeks when it is absolutely impossible to get anything extra accomplished. Season's greetings to our editor and Social Corner members, especially those in sorrow and the shut-ins. Will close wishing all a happy, prosperous New Year.

ECLIPSE.

SCALLOPED SALMON.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Am going to steal time to say Hello and a happy New Year to all. Have been sorry not to have been able to attend the meetings lately but have been busy getting ready for Christmas and all have been sick since, but hope to attend the next if nothing breaks. I always enjoy Sumac's letters as well as the rest.

Am sending a recipe which we all like and which has been liked at some covered dish dinners where I have taken it.

Scalloped Salmon: 1 can red salmon, flaked. Put first a layer of cracker crumbs in baking dish, then layer of salmon and so on until all the salmon is used, having crumbs on top. Dot with butter, salt, cover with milk and bake half hour or little more.

Best wishes to Corner.

CHICKENS.

THANKSGIVING, 1865

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: Well, I remember this Thanksgiving day for we had a special occasion to recognize and celebrate this old-time custom that was handed down to us from our Pilgrim fathers.

Not only had we been blessed with a bountiful harvest endowed by the goodness of God and the sweat of the brow, but we have welcomed home the boys who in 1861 girded on their armor and went forth to do and to dare for the right, for the preservation of the Union and the old flag against the elements of treason, secession and rebellion.

True, many of the boys never came back; others were maimed for life; others broken in health.

Those who were with us that day gave us an occasion for a most hearty celebration and Thanksgiving. Not a table through the rural districts, particularly, that did not have the customary Thanksgiving banquet. In these homes we draw this picture.

Not that the fatted calf is killed, but the choice well fatted turkey. Not for the return of the prodigal son, but for the father, husband, son and lover, who for more than four long years have faced rebel shot and shell with patient endurance of suffering on the long march with scanty rations; in the dark hours of imprisonment; in the hopelessness of the hospital; in the agony of wounds or lying on the field where they fell; in the burning southern sun and who have remained faithful to the cause for which they fought. But for all this suffering these hopes were buoyed up with the consciousness that at home they were not forgotten. Today we give thanks for their return.

It has been a busy day for the mother, but her labor has been lightened by the helping hand of a loveable daughter.

Dinner is announced. Seated at the table, groaning under the weight of a Thanksgiving bounty, sits, with father and mother, sons and daughters, single and married and the grandchildren are here. A son from a distant city. What means his empty sleeve? Will he ever forget Gettysburg? Another yet, using a crutch, to take the place of a leg; will he ever forget Shiloh? Another with wasted form and tottering step; will he ever forget the exposure and starvation in that "hell hole," Andersonville prison pen?

With this Thanksgiving and coming together there is a pang of sorrow. Sitting beside her mother is the widowed daughter with her two bright-eyed children. And there stands the vacant chair. Through the mist of grief, tears, love and faith, she sees the spirit form of him who never came back. He gave his life on the bloody battlefield of Spotsylvania.

We cannot always grieve, cannot always lament, some day we will be less lonely. As one has said: "Most of us have an abiding faith in another life, confident that our loved ones still live and that we shall meet again. To that great hope we cling."

Ere the dinner was finished the lamp light spread a soft glow over the table. The day ended as all days should end, with music and song.

Patriotic songs filled the house with melody. "Marching Through Georgia," "In the Prison Cell I sit," "John Brown's Body," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," "The Star Spangled Banner," and "God Be with Us till We Meet Again." This picture, Thanksgiving, 1865, will forever hang in the gallery of memory.

Many thanks for the prize slip.

QUID NUNC

MY FIRST LETTER TO YOU ALL IN 1930

Dear Social Corner Readers: I very recently read that the planet Mercury could be seen in the western sky, soon after sunset, Jan. 6, and perhaps a few days before that date.

Saturday, Jan. 4, we had a long bright twilight. The west was watermelon red, I called it, and I was fearful lest Mercury would set before it was dark enough to see it; but my vigilance and patience was at last rewarded and I gazed on the planet, which is, as you all know, nearest the sun in our solar system.

Its position is a little south of due west and follows the sun quite closely.

Mercury is not a very bright appearing planet and is only seen once in 116 days and then not always visible on account of clouds or the brightness of the moon.

Unlike our earth and moon, it presents one side continually to the sun making it hot enough to melt lead while its opposite side remains stone cold.

As is has no atmosphere, Mercury is uninhabited.

The heavenly constellations, intensely interesting to me always are at their brightest these winter months and I look for them as they appear so regularly season after season.

I read Daisy Dean's letter about a trundle bed and notice others have written about them, also.

Although I never remember sleeping in one at home, I did sleep in one at my grandmother's when visiting her as a small child and thinking it lots of fun.

My mother used to sing a song to us children about a trundle bed which was very sweet and low as a lullaby.

As I recall it now the words were:

"As I rummage through the attic
Listening to the falling rain,
As it pattered on the shingles
And against the window pane,
Peeping over chests and boxes,
Which with dust were thickly spread,
Saw I in the farthest corner,
What was once my trundle bed.
So I drew it from the recess,
Where it had remained so long,
Hearing all the while the music
Of my mother's voice in song."

There were more verses I am sure but don't recall them just now and if anyone can help me out I will be very thankful.

Isn't it about time Cactus Blossom, Turquoise and Your Neighbor wrote a letter to the Social Corner?

Yours for good health and prosperity through the coming year, 1930.

CORNER PAGE BRINGS BACK MEMORIES

Dear Corner Friends: First I want to thank the Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar which I received, also thanks for all cards from my friends and Social Corner Sisters. I received a good pile of them from all over, from Maine to California. Now the holiday season is over don't forget the Corner page and try and do our bit often to keep it full.

Well, Olga, so you too slept in the trundle bed. My mother had one and when we had company she pulled out the trundle bed and Old Glory and I slept in it. It was rolled half under the bed and our heads were outside. I believe that is the origin of the saying "trundle bed trash." The Social Corner page is a good one to bring back memories of by-gone days.

I want to remind everyone that Club 2 meets in Buckingham Memorial this second Tuesday of this month, January 14. Come all, bring something good for the table and start the new year right by attending and making an afternoon of it. Enjoy the after-dinner program and visit.

Chauffeur: Hope your husband is better, so you will be back with us soon. Also wish a happy and prosperous new year to all.

CALLY LILY.

Don't Cough Until Weak

No need for severe persistent weakening coughs this winter, when Foley's Honey and Tar compound carries the curative Balsamic virtues of pure pine tar and fresh demulcent honey with other valuable cough healing ingredients into direct contact with the irritated inflamed surfaces where the coughs start. Eugene Palmer, Lawrence, Mass., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar very quickly stopped a bothersome cough that had hung onto me for weeks, weakening me, and making me a nuisance to myself and family." NEW LONDON TIPPED WETHERSFIELD PRISONERS HAVE BEEN SIGHTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Officers of the state police, Groton and Centerbrook barracks are patrolling all trunk lines between New London and Hartford as well as side roads tonight, for the New London police, this afternoon received information that three men sighted near East Haddam answered closely the description of Roland Lalone, Worcester, Mass., "ice box" bandit; Watson Moulthrope and Leo Landry, who escaped from Wethersfield state prison several days ago by sawing their way to freedom. The informant of the New London police went to headquarters about 2 o'clock and stated that the three men had attempted to rob a store, but when he approached they fled to a waiting automobile and drove away at a rapid rate of speed. The car was headed toward Marlborough. The information was quickly relayed to the Groton barracks and the Centerbrook barracks, resulting in officers being dispatched to the highways.

WOMAN FINED $200 AND COSTS —MAN PARTNER GOES FREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Andrew Rosinsky, 37 and Mrs. Lube Sologob, residents of Quaker Hill, but who conduct a lunch room at 307 North Bank street, were in the police court this morning charged with violation of the liquor law. The charge against Rosinsky was nolled, but Mrs. Sologob was fined $200 and costs. Rosinsky and Mrs. Sologob were arrested yesterday by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Dennis Murphy. The officers had long suspected the proprietor and proprietress of dispensing liquor for men were seen to enter the lunch room apparently sober and emerge intoxicated. Although the officers did not have knowledge of a sale by either Rosinsky or Mrs. Sologob, they watched a favorable opportunity and entered the place about 5.30. Rushing to the kitchen the officers found a two-quart container of home-made gin on a sink, it having been placed there so that it could be emptied in case of officers' entering, but yesterday the cops were too speedy for the man and woman. The so-called "gin" was seized as evidence and resulted in the woman claiming to be the owner of the business, so she was fined.

Will Support Young Sons

Mortimer Connelly was presented on a charge of failing to support his two children, Robert, 12, and Warren, 10. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, execution of the sentence was suspended, for Connelly promised the court that he would contribute $8 weekly for the proper care of the two boys.

Sailor Not To Blame

R. L. Hults, submarine base, was charged with breach of the peace, but the charge was nolled. Hults was at the restaurant 10 State street last night where he engaged in a quarrel with George Miller, the night man in charge. The row resulted in Hults attacking and beating Miller. The sailor fled to the street, and ran to the railroad tracks of the New Haven railroad on Water street, leaving his coat and hat in the restaurant. Hults was followed by Patrolman Frank Linehan and arrested. It later developed that Miller was the cause of the row and Hults was released.

The state police of Groton and Centerbrook barracks conducted wholesale raids on liquor resorts in Westbrook last night for 20 such places were visited as a result of evidence being obtained that the proprietors were dispensing booze to a select trade. The Groton officers went to Centerbrook early in the evening and there joined the other raiding force. The officers were divided into groups of two and three and simultaneously moved upon the liquor resorts. Although evidence of actual sale was obtained at each resort, liquor was also revealed by the raid and seized as additional evidence.

A certificate of incorporation was filed for record at the office of the city clerk by the Gilbert-Warren Realty company of New London. FURNITURE-BOOZE TRUCK HEADED HERE FROM N. Y.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—The state police barracks at Ridgefield tonight sent out a state-wide request of all police departments to be on the lookout for a large truck that it is claimed is transporting liquor and which uses a quantity of furniture exposed as a blind. The truck left New York and was headed toward this city. The state police obtained information that the truck's load was a mixed one of liquor and furniture, but the truck could not be located. It is a five-ton one and has the liquor stored in front and furniture on the rear so that the latter is visible at all times. On the side of the truck is painted the Statue of Liberty in conspicuous paint so that it is easily recognized. It has long been understood that such a truck was coming to New London, but it was never detected.

C. G. BOATS AT BLOCK ISLAND TO AID STRANDED LINER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Tonight three boats of the United States Coast Guard are standing by the stranded liner Edward Luckenbach that went ashore on the southeast side of Block Island early this morning. The life saving corps at Block Island is also ready to lend assistance at rescue should that course be made necessary by the liner being pounded to pieces as she lies on the rocky bed. As soon as the SOS was sent out, the cutter Legare, which is stationed at this port, was but a mile and one-half off the island that vessel steamed to the Luckenbach. The destroyer Henley and one of the 125-foot patrol boats were sent from New London and arrived there this forenoon, so that three of the life-saving forces of the government are nearby to give whatever assistance is necessary. The Block Island life savers have sent a breeches buoy to the Luckenbach and the entire crew and passengers can be transferred from the boat to the shore in quick time if conditions warrant. No salvage boats of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott company were sent from this port for all the big boats were in New York and a fleet of them are now plowing their way through the sound to the rescue of the liner. The salvage boats should pass the harbor about 2 o'clock tomorrow morning and should reach the liner before day-break. In the meantime, the coast guard boats are riding in the trough of the heavy sea and in the gale, awaiting developments.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday Afternoon.

Seldom has the local Y. M. C. A. been able to bring to the 4 o'clock Sunday service as fine and as impressive a moving picture as that picture adapted from the famous story by Francis Marion Crawford, "The White Sister" the first part of which was seen by a very large audience last Sunday and the last part of which will be shown tomorrow in the big gymnasium. The main character in the picture is Lillian Gish, and this is said to be her greatest triumph. The story demonstrates how a great earthly love gave way to the keeping of Heavenly vows. In this day and time when the physical so often triumphs over things spiritual it is certainly impressive to see the spiritual win the victory. This picture story has been shown in several Protestant churches on Sunday evenings and has made very deep impressions.

To this service the adult public is specially invited, and youth fifteen and over will be admitted. None under 15 are expected.

NOANK

MATE STRUCK AT BOLD RAT, SENT HIMSELF OVERBOARD

Capt. L. Ashcraft and Mate C. Ashcraft went arm and arm down to their boat Roberta to go out to the fishing grounds recently. They got on Rogers dock where the boat is tied up and saw a dock rat almost "big as a cat" sitting on the cabin. It would not let the fishermen go aboard, keeping guard of the ship without a captain. Mate Ashcraft made a jump for the deck and the rat made a spring for him, as he made a kick with his No. 10. The rat got lost on deck and hid somewhere. Then Capt. L. Ashcraft went aboard. How that rat did fight. Held them off the boat for 15 minutes. Turning the engine over, soon the good ship Roberta was bound for the fishing ground. Around Watch Hill but 45 minutes late, on account of the fighting rat, that held them at bay. They were going to leave at 5 o'clock, but did not get away until 5.45. So Mate C. Ashcraft put on the coffee pot for the morning was cold and a good cup of fisherman's coffee puts the pep right into you. His Indian pipe was brought by the captain smoking as the boat headed where the fish ought to be. At last the captain arrived at the grounds where his pals were, about an hour ahead. Captain Ashcraft told the mate to throw over the net and the mystery rat was hid behind the boards as the mate threw it the rat made a dash for liberty. Then C. Ashcraft got the broom and tried a Bobby Jones stunt like on the golf links. Made a hit and sent the rat into the 18th hole of the seven seas for a swim. But Mate Ashcraft swung so hard he fell overboard into the icy water. Being a good swimmer he got hold of the rowboat without any help, then went into the cabin to dry his clothes so as not to get the January grip. As the mate was getting dried off, Capt. Ashcraft was dragging to see if the fish was around yet, while his brother down in the cabin was singing "Gee, Ain't it fun to Fall in the Ice Cold Water on a January morning." The good ship was going along slowly for a couple of hours, then they were all ready to haul the net on deck to see if they needed a pair of glasses to find the fish; but what a load in the net. Looked like Santa Claus came to sea and filled that net. The brothers got five barrels of fish, all good ones. Mate Ashcraft was coming out of the cabin, a brand new man again, all dry and said, "The rat brought us good luck For two weeks we never caught as many fish as that." "Well," the captain said "we will try it again." So over went the lucky net, pulling and straining for over two hours. Then the mate cried out, "Time to haul again!" So the net was taken from the ice cold water. They found the fish, four barrels of them, also a man's dress suit case.

It looked as though it had been in the salt water a long while. The mate, with a smile said "Some one moved in a hurry rather than pay rent!" The suit case was opened and a tooth brush, a tube of Colgate tooth paste and a tie were in the lost case. Leaving it all on deck Capt. L. Ashcraft said "Let's head for the Indian town! That is a good day's work for any Scott fishermen!" They tied up the Roberta so no dock rat would take charge while the ship was without a crew during the long hours of the night.

The story was told to a few members of the Saturday night club, at the gas station about the rat doing those stunts. The gilded bird cage was thrown at him and if he caught it it was a lie, but Mate C. Ashcraft let it go by so the rat story was true.

The fishing has not been good for a long while.

One fishermen sent a barrel of fish to Fulton market in the Father Time city and got a dollar's worth of stamps, so he gave his mate half and kept the rest. "You will hear people say, "Fishermen have it easy!" But they don't think of the hardship, handling an ice-cold net all day. Many times the boats come into the dock covered with ice from bow to stern.

SPECULATION IN STOCKS QUIET, WITH SALES REACHING ONLY 2,386,190 SHARES

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP) — The stock market faltered today, as short covering appeared to have been completed for the moment. Without the unwilling aid of the "bear" crowd, pools were unable to follow up yesterday's advances. Speculators generally remained apathetic, and the volume of trading barely approximated yesterday's turnover, sales totalling 2,386,190.

Credit was a little firmer, reflecting primarily the week end and payroll and bank requirements. Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent, and failed to drop to 4 as it did during the three preceding sessions. Time money also was tighter, with 4 3-4 per cent flat quoted for all maturities. Leading dealers increased the rates for shorter maturities of bankers acceptances by 1-8 of 1 per cent.

Announcement by U. S. Steel that unfilled orders during December increased nearly 300,000 tons, carrying the total close to last year's peak of April 30, failed to generate much enthusiasm, as orders evidently were permitted to pile up while operations were reduced. The weekly business reviews reported signs of a gradual upturn in industrial activity, particularly steel, but said weather conditions had been unfavorable to retail trade.

Share prices generally fluctuated uncertainly and in narrow ranges. The Standard Statistics Co. index of 90 leading stocks showed a decline of 6-10 of one point. Steels were generally firm, while utilities were inclined to react after yesterday's advance, centering in that group. U. S. Steel sold up more than 2 points, then sagged, closing up only 1-2. Some of the independents made moderate headway, Bethlehem, Follansbee Bros., and Spang Chalfont gaining a point or two, while Sloss Sheffield rallied 5 points. Republic and Colorado Fuel, however, each lost about a point.

Shares losing 2 to 4 points included American and Foreign Power, Du Pont, Firestone, Foster Wheeler, Hudson, Nickel Plate, Simmons, Western Union, and Westinghouse Electric. Radio and General Electric each lost a point. American Machine and International Silver each dropped 7 points.

Several shares made fair gains, including Allied Chemical, Chesapeake and Ohio, Coca Cola, General Railway Signal, Gold Dust, National Biscuit, Otis Elevator, Norfolk and Western, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Safeway Stores, closing 2 to 5 points higher.

United Cigar issues, already well deflated, failed to respond to the report of the auditors sharply reducing earnings as reported by the previous management. The common stock was unchanged at 4 1-2, and the preferred was inactive.

Commodities were reactionary. Wheat futures broke 2 cents a bushel on a statement by a member of the farm board that current loan prices applied only to the current crop. Corn lost a cent and more. Cotton sagged 55 to 80 cents a bale, losing nearly half yesterday's gains, in profit taking and in response to easier Liverpool cables.

Foreign exchanges rates again declined, wiping out yesterday's advance. The peseta, however, rallied sharply, dealers attributed the easiness of leading currencies to a growing conviction that the world credit rates are on the decline. Reductions in both the Bank of England and Bank of France rates during the next few weeks are predicted. Sterling cables closed at $4.87, off 1-16 of a cent.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Listed bonds were faced with competition from important prospective new financing today and the structure of market prices softened a trifle. In addition, money rates were a shade firmer, reflecting week-end readjustments by banks.

Announcement of the $150,000,000 issue of American Telephone 35-year debenture 5s at 99 1-2 caused favorable comment in bond circles, which regard the loan by the big utility as rather in the nature of a vote of confidence in the current market as well as in the country's fundamental economic position. Bankers recalled that the same company's issue of bonds several years ago came just before a protracted rise in fixed income securities. It was understood that over-subscription of the current loan was virtually assured, although the books do not open until Monday. The debentures were traded "when issued" on the New York Produce exchange's securities market during the afternoon at quotations ranging between 100 3-4 and 101. The listed 5s of 1960 were again sold freely, touching 101 and closing half a point above that figure for a net loss of 3-4.

In addition to the utility issue, a banking group offered $29,080,000 in State of Tennessee serial 4 1-2s and 4 3-4s priced to yield 4.40 to 4.30. This issue was purchased by a New York syndicate from Tennessee bankers. More than half the loan was reported sold an hour after the offering was made.

The result of these operations was a small decline in the quotations on numerous high grade domestic listings, which have been moving upward. Closing prices were more irregular than for several days, but the market's undertone was steady.

Rails, leaders of the recent advance, met with minor realizing, part of which was profit taking from the high levels. The averages showed recessions in both the carrier and utility groups, although the industrials managed to edge higher.

United States governments were dull and irregularly lower in keeping with the temper of the money markets.

Chesapeake & Ohio, 4 1-2s, Erie 5s, Virginian Railway 5s, Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s, St. Louis & Southwestern 4 1-2s and prior lien 4s, Southern Railway General 6s, and Union Pacific First 4s found lower ground, but there was some improvement in Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s, Atchison General 4s, Rock Island General 4s, Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Series B, and a few others. In the utility section minor selling affected Kansas Gas & Electric 5s, Utah Power & Light 5s and American Telephone 5 1-2s. The group, however, was generally firm.

Higher prices appeared in American Smelting 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s Republic Iron & Steel Collateral 5s, Western Electric 5s and miscellaneous other industrials.

Convertibles experienced a dull day, moving narrowly on small turnovers. The irregularly net changes were mostly fractional.

Foreign bonds, fairly active, tended higher. German 7s traded in the largest volume of the group, but rose only a small fraction.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Efforts to extend the recovery in today's curb market were frustrated today by heavy week end profit taking. Final quotations were irregular, with gains and losses about evenly divided. Trading was moderate in volume, the day's sales running just above 600,000 shares.

A few nominally inactive utilities, such as Tampa Electric, Duke Power and Standard Power & Light recorded substantial gains, but such recent favorites as American & Foreign Power Warrants, Electric Bond & Share, Allied Power & Light and United Light & Power A lost ground, the losses ranging from fractions to 2 1-2 points. The rise of nearly 2 points in United Gas was based on reports of steadily improving earnings.

Weakness again cropped out in the mining group. Bunker Hill broke 18 1-3 points to a new low record at 70 1-4 on a few sales. Newmont fell 4 points.

Indian Territory Oil, which was strong yesterday, added 1 1-2 points to its gain and Humble, Gulf and Standard Oil of Indiana showed small fractional gains, but Cheesebrough dropped 8 points. Southern Pipe Line 1 7-8 and Vacuum 1.

Most of the Investment Trust and Trading Corporation shares moved within a rather narrow range with a 3 point jump in Mayflower Associates and a point gain in Shenandoah preferred as the features.

New York, Rio & Buenos Aires Airline advanced 2 points on reports of an early merger with Pan American Airways. Fokker rallied more than a point on a few sales. Other aviation shares showed little change.

Wide fluctuations again took place in a few high priced issues. Deere & Co., jumped 15 points and Tubize Artificial Silk 14 1-2 while West Point Manufacturing dropped 8 to a new low at 112.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Stampede selling tumbled Chicago wheat prices downward following reports today of an address by Samuel R. McKelvie, member of the federal farm board. He was quoted as saying he had been informed that spring wheat growers northwest expected to increase seeded acreage this year, and he warned that the loan basis for the 1930 domestic production of wheat remained to be established when the crop comes on. With export business today in North American wheat virtually at a halt, the market here was giving evidence of being shaky when word about Mr. McKelvie's address was circulated, and prices toppled over in earnest.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 7-8c to 2 3-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1c to 1 3-8c down, oats 5-8c to 3-4c off, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 12c.

Lowest prices of the week were reached by the Chicago wheat market just before the day's trade came to an end in a hurried rush of selling. Much of this selling appeared to be in the nature of general letting go on the part of holders of future delivery contracts, the consequent breaks in prices forced into action also numerous standing orders to close other trades out at various set limits so as to put a stop to losses. Aggressive buying support for the market was lacking, and in addition to notable dearth of export demand for North American wheat, an extra element of late disturbance came from assertions that Russia had sold to Norway more than 1,000,000 bushels of rye.

Sharp downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations did a good deal at the outset today to undermine confidence of traders friendly to higher prices here. The action of the Liverpool market was emphasized by dispatches saying British millers were showing indifference to purchases, and that re-sellers of wheat in Europe were offering wheat 3 pence a bushel cheaper than was asked by North America. On the other hand, messages from St. Louis today told of No. 2 red wheat there having been disposed of at 6c a bushel higher than the prices of Chicago May delivery. Such encouraging factors, however, were lost sight of at the last, and so likewise was announcement that the 1929 yield of potatoes in Germany is officially estimated at 48,310,000 bushels short of the 1928 total.

Corn temporarily showed an upward trend today owing to smallness of receipts, but later gave way with wheat. Oats were dominated by the action of other cereals.

Provisions averaged lower, sympathizing with setbacks both in hog values and in grain.

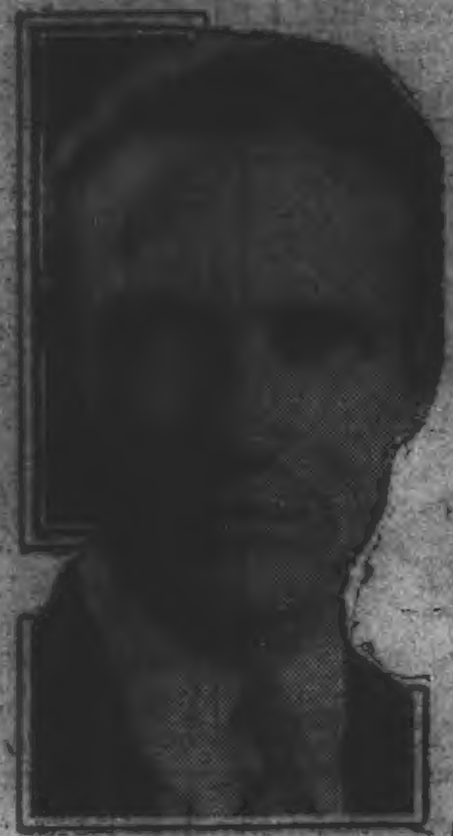
ANNOUNCEMENTS



RICHARD HALLIBURTON

Richard Halliburton went around the world on a shoe-string. For the past five years he has surrendered heart and soul to the call of romance—across Asia and Africa, from Spain to Siberia and up and down the Seven Seas. His first book, "The Royal Road to Romance," shattered all literary records for books on travel and adventure. A recent effort "The Glorious Adventure," bids fair to outdo the record of "The Royal Road." Mr. Halliburton is to appear here in the near future, bringing the personal story of his fascinating adventures. His name has become, almost overnight, a by word for youthful enthusiasm, sparkling imagination, and for the dauntless liberated spirit of the age. He recently returned from new adventures in Mexico, Yucatan, Panama and South America.

The Norwich College club are planning a lecture by Mr. Halliburton some time next month.

Breed Theatre

Long awaited but well worth the waiting for, "The Cock-Eyed World." Raoul Walsh's masterful Fox Movietone effort has come to town and is housed at the Breed for an engagement of seven days, starting today at 1:30.

Since the advent of talking pictures, no production has come to this city with such glorious acclaim from all parts of the country as this achievement of Movietone, which by the way is an all talking picture.

Based on a story by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, who co-authored the memorable "What Price Glory," it features Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe and Lily Damita — Lowe and McLaglen again the fighting marines but now, in times of peace, confining their chief battles to passages at arms over their various lady loves.

The trend of the story takes the marines to Russia, to the tropics and to New York and Coney Island. Lily Damita, more fascinating than ever, is their girl of the tropics; Lelia Karnelly their Russian girl and Jean Bary their New York girl.

Quelling an uprising in the tropics is their only opportunity to do the battling the marines are noted for, and Walsh has, even in this comparatively minor engagement, eclipsed for drama, force and thrills any battle of "What Price Glory."

"The Cock Eyed World" has every ingredient that makes for real pastime: humor, sparkling dialog, hectic love scenes, tense drama and a happy combination of all those things that appeal, from the screen, especially to the feminine sex.

The supporting cast is excellent, with El Brendel, former star of musical comedy and vaudeville, reaping plenty of honors with his incomparable portrayal of a Swede Marine, "Olson", Joe Brown, Bobby Burns and Ivan Linow also have important roles.

In addition to the dialog, there are several song numbers especially written for this production by Conrad, Mitchell and Gottler, including the theme song, "So Dear To Me," sung by Lily Damita, and "So Long," a Marine marching song.

That author of a hundred vaudeville and musical comedy successes, Billy K. Wells, wrote the dialog, while none other than Director Walsh wrote the scenario.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Surrounded by shark-infested waters and fever-haunted swamps, with fierce men on all sides hungering also for escape, a man and the woman he loves battle fiercely for escape from the world's worst penal colony! That is the dramatic situation in "Condemned," the new all-talking sensation starring Ronald Colman, Ann Harding, Louis Wolheim, Dudley Digges and others which opens today at the Palace theater here.

Adapted from the book, "Condemned to Devil's Island" this picture is an amazing and true account of the horror of penal servitude on that island. The sinister atmosphere of the place forms a magnificent background for the drama of terror and love which the authors of the screen play have woven.

The story concerns the love of a convict for the wife of the warden of the prison. The convict (Ronald Colman) is assigned to help the wife (Ann Harding) with her household duties. She is miserable and mistreated by a brute of a husband. He, a convict, smarting under the lash of confinement, does not dare to speak his real feelings to her. She, in turn is so frightened of the beast whom she married that she can find no voice for her love. It is not until the warden flies into a blind mad rage on hearing gossip about the two that they throw themselves into each others arms and find the words of love which for so long they dared not speak. From that point on the drama moves with a sinister swiftness and color that takes the breath away.

Some of the world's fiercest faces are to be seen in this picture. There is Louis Wolheim, who always looks as if he says, "dese," "dem" and "dose," a very tough lad. There is Harry Ginsberg who looks like such a suspicious character that he has been arrested many times. He is cast as a pirate. Bud Somers is another, and this chappie has a scar on his face that will scare you down under the seat if you take it seriously. Stanley Selznick, who has served a term at Leavenworth is another rough baby in the cast, to say nothing of "Baldy" Biddle with a crooked nose and cauliflower ear, and others too numerous to mention.

Broadway Theatre

Excited crowds in a small town rushing madly "down to the station" to see the start of the "Big Free Street Parade" as the "Giddy Parisian Widows" burlesque troupe arrived in town, is the opening scene in "Applause," the all-talking hit opening at the Broadway today. Memories of twenty-five years ago are sharply revived in this absorbing story of the old-time burlesque, when chorus girls wore hips, long before the flickering gas-lights gave way to the dazzling electrics of today. The orchestra boys "doubling in brass" for the street parade, the flashy show girls of those bygone days riding proudly in the livery-stable barouches, the tawdry costumes, cotton stockings, the cheap scenery, the dingy dressing rooms, the impossible hotels, the small-town smart clerks, the awkward chorus numbers, the blatant music, slapstick comedy, all are drawn by the hand of an artist in this marvelous production, which gives Helen Morgan, crooning voiced darling of Mazda Alley of today, her first starring opportunity in talking pictures. As the applause-mad chorus queen, giving of her health and strength and eventually her life to shield her sweet young daughter from the hardships and misery of following in her footsteps on the "burleycue time," Miss Morgan turns in a performance which for sheer drama and pathos, has never been dreamed of since the famous "Stella Dallas." Joan Peers, a dainty, lovable new-comer is the lovely daughter, Henry Wadsworth, another novice, the sailor sweetheart of the girl, and Fuller Mellish, Jr., the cynical, scheming, grafting leech, who gets his living from the simple minded women of the chorus line. Human to the last degree, with clever touches of humor to relieve the tragic story of Kitty Darling, "Applause" is a drama with appeal to everyone big or small. The surrounding bill, in addition to the latest Paramount Sound News, is one of howling comedy, with more laughs than that famous barrel of monkeys. O'Donnell & Blair, remembered in "The Piano Movers" are now "The Plasterers," with a new bag of tricks that are convulsing. Charley Chase has his latest laughfest in "Stepping Out," and a Paramount talkartoon "Marriage Wows," complete the circle of fun.

Parsons Theatre, Hartford

As an oldtime playgoer put it the other day, you certainly get your money's worth when you go to see Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" and this is a fact. There are nine acts in the sensational drama that the New York Theatre Guild will present at the Parsons theatre, Hartford on Monday, Jan 20 for six performances and it takes from 5:30 in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night to unfold them. Virtually two plays in one, with a rest between the first and second halves of the play for dinner. This occurs from 7:40 to 9 p. m.

But there is nothing at all drawn out in "Strange Interlude" despite its great length. Everything moves along like clockwork. No long waits between the acts, and something happening every minute on the stage—not the usual heroics of swift and hectic action, but the stimulating, absorbing utterances of what the different characters say to one another, coupled with the voicing of their innermost thoughts, oftimes entirely contradictory to what they have just said or done. For example, one man seeing another, registers the thought, "no giant intellect there," which he expresses as an "aside," so that the audience knows what he is thinking, but not the other man, then with a gracious smile he greets him with a hearty hand lasp.

It is the "asides" which make "Strange Interlude" a strange play, and this is not intended as a pun. The New York Theatre Guild, which produced the play, admits it was in a quandry for aw hile as to the best way in which to have the characters express the "asides." In earlier days when they were in general use, a character would put his hand on one side of his mouth and pretend to whisper them, confidentially, to the audience. But the expedient was hit upon to have the characters in "Strange Interlude" speak them right out while the other characters on the stage at the time remained mute and motionless, in a static condition, as it were. This works out perfectly, for the audience gets the sense that the spoken thoughts are not really being heard by the other characters, and the effect is as if one were listening to a choice bit of gossip.
